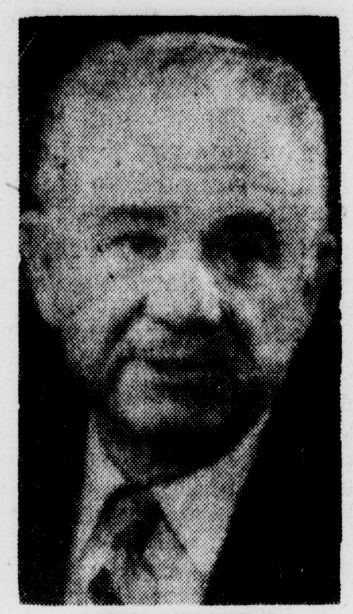
Jaworski Resigns Prosecutor's Post

Declares Pardon Was No Influence

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski resigned Saturday, saying his decision had nothing to do with Richard Nixon's pardon and that to challenge it in court would amount to "unprofessional conduct."



LEON JAWORKSI
"A great loss. . ."

His departure, planned for several weeks, will not affect the ongoing Watergate cover-up trial —the major prosecution under his leadership.

The 69-year-old Texas lawyer, who took over the demanding job 11 months ago following Nixon's firing of Archibald Cox, said his work was nearly completed and could be wrapped up by someone else.

And he said he felt it would be "intellectually dishonest...tantamount to unprofessional conduct" for him to try to undo the unconditional pardon President Ford granted to the former president.

"The bulk of the work entrusted to the care of this office having been discharged, I am confident that such of our responsibilities as revain unfulfilled can well be completed under the leadership of another special prosecutor," Jaworski wrote Saxbe.

In a separate letter, he rejected unspecified "suggestions" that he try to prosecute Nixon despite the pardon, saying the Constitution is clear that Ford had the power to do so and that the special prosecutor's charter does not supercede that right.

"For me now to contend otherwise would not only be contrary to the interpretations agreed upon in congressional hearings —it also would be, on my part, intellectually dishonest," Jaworski said.

"Thus, in light of these conclusions, for me to procure an indictment of Richard M. Nixon for the sole purpose of generating a purported court test on the legality of the pardon, would constitute a spurious proceeding in which I had no faith; in fact, it would be tantamount to unprofessional conduct and violative of my responsibility as prosecutor and an officer of the court."

He said he felt obliged to discuss his views on the pardon "to dispel any thought that there may be some relation between my resignation and that issue."

His letters were delivered to Saxbe at midmorning and the White House was informed simultaneously. There was no immediate reaction.

Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, a member of the now-defunct Senate Watergate committee, called Jaworski's impending departure "a great loss."

Sources close to Jaworski, who was spending the long holiday weekend in New York, said he had decided "several weeks ago" to resign but waited until a jury was chosen and sequestered in the Watergate cover-up trial of five former Nixon aides to avoid further pretrial publicity.

"It was no sudden decision," one source said. "It had been in the works for some time."

A jury of nine women and three men plus six women alternates was picked yesterday, the ninth day of the cover-up trial, and immediately sequestered. A team of assistant prosecutors headed by James F. Neal is handling the case.

Opening arguments are to be made Monday by prosecution and defense lawyers and the first witness —reportedly former White House counsel John W. Dean III —will be called on Tuesday.

Philip A. Lacovara, a Republican and the No. 3 man on the Watergate Special Prosecution Force, resigned last month in protest to the Nixon pardon. Internal staff discussions that led to Jaworski's decision to resign apparently began about the same time.

A NEW CAREER — Former Playboy Club bunny Suzanne Kurers, of Ardmore, Okla., has turned in her bunny costume for a shovel. Miss Kurers is on a cement gang for an construction company in Ardmore. She took the job two months ago because she got "tired of the hassle of it all."

Legal Aid Snubs Highlands Talks

The board of directors of the Marin County Legal Aid Society yesterday snubbed a request from two county supervisors to discuss a threatened suit over the Richardson Highlands project in Marin City. (See related story page 35.)

Instead, directors agreed to send a three-member delegation to meet with Supervisors Gary T. Giacomini and Robert A. Roumiugiere and directed the team not to discuss sepcifics of the the Marin City controversy.

As reported earlier, Legal Aid staff attorneys have threatened to try to halt the 379-unit housing project uless both phases of the two-stage development include low and moderate cost units.

The county has approved the first phase of 139 townhouses to be sold at "market rate" and indicated the second phase of 240 apartment-condominiums must include 48 moderate-cost units.

The county did not require low-cost units in either phase after being told federal officials consider Marin City already "impacted" with such units.

Supervisors have charged that Legal Aid is misusing the legal process to overturn a political decision, limiting inexpensive housing to moderate-cost levels.

On Tuesday, they appointed Giacomini and Roumiguiere to meet with the full board of Legal Aid to determine its position on the threatened suit.

The action came after Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste said he may seek to withhold county funding from the legal assistance agency unless its board of directors takes a position.

He and others questioned who at legal aid decides what cases it accepts and how they are handled.

According to Douglas H. Bosco, a member of the Legal Aid board, the directors voted yesterday simply to send a three-member team to meet with the two supervisors.

Bosco, who is director of the County Human Relations Department, said the three-member team was instructed to discuss the general guidelines under which legal aid accepts cases but not to discuss the Marin City case.

On a related matter, Bosco said the County Human Rights Commission voted unanimously Thursday to join with the County Housing Authority in supporting Marin City demands for low and moderate cost units in both phases of the project.

Long-Awaited Highway 101 Bypass Will Open Tuesday

The long-awaited Highway 101 bypass of Novato will open at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday to northbound traffic.

It will carry motorists east of downtown Novato on 5.2 miles of uninterrupted freeway and return them to the present Highway 101 freeway just north of the city.

Southbound highway traffic will continue to use the present highway for some six weeks while part of the present northbound lanes are converted into a freeway, according to Thomas R. Lammers of the California Department of Transportation.

Signs will be placed to advise motorists of the routing changes during the conversion period, he said.

Since only northbound traffic will use the new bypass freeway, some temporary traffic routings will be made at the Atherton Avenue-San Marin Drive interchange for local traffic.

Northbound drivers will be able to use the Rowland Boulevard off-ramp and can cross the freeway to South Novato Boulevard. But connections from the Rowland Boulevard interchange to the old Redwood Highway have not been completed.

Southbound traffic from Airport Road must turn right onto the existing northbound freeway lanes, go one-quarter mile north and make a U-turn at the new median opening.

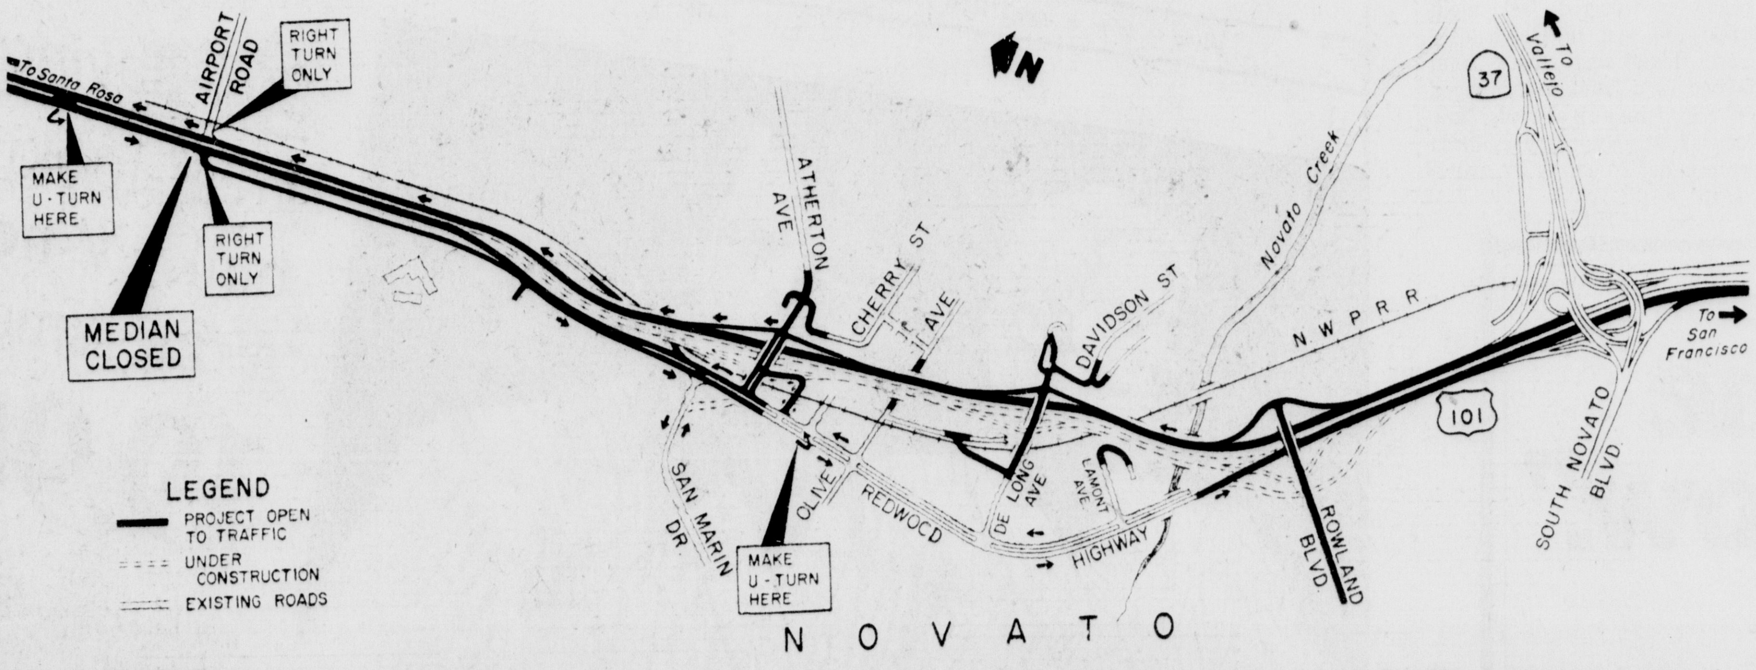
Motorists bound for the McGraw-Hill Book Co. and the Sportsman Lodge motel should continue north of the airport road and make the same U-turn at the new median opening. The present airport road median opening will be closed after Tuesday.

Northbound autos leaving McGraw-Hill and the motel will travel south to Cherry Street, make a U-turn across the freeway onto the new Atherton Avenue bridge and then take the northbound on-ramp to join the freeway.

163 Arrested At Football Bash

DALLAS (UPI) — Police last evening said the annual pre-Texas-Oklahoma football game downtown bash started with the arrest of "three old drunks." Early this morning police had arrested 163 persons, mainly "young drunks."

There were 144 arrests during the same period last year, and that was a drop from years past. Most of those arrested were charged with being drunk and disorderly.



NEW BYPASS — Bold upper line on the map shows how the new Novato bypass of Highway 101 will carry northbound through-traffic east of the present route. Northbound motorists will use the new bypass highway beginning at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday. Traffic from just north of the Highway 37 interchange will flow northward uninterrupted along the new bypass and return to the present four-lane highway north of Novato.

Bunny Shovels Way To New Job

ARDMORE, Okla. (UPI) — Pouring concrete is a lot different than sporting a bunny tail at a Playboy Club, but former hutch tender Susanne Kurers feels she is accomplishing more in her new vocation.

Susanne one of 10 women is shoveling cement for the H.T. Ibberson Construction Co., builder of a 140-foot grain elevator tower for Comet Mills of Ardmore.

Coworkers at the previously all-male construction firm welcome the girls. They say having the young ladies on the site helps break the monotony of 12-hour work shifts without lunch breaks.

Miss Kurers said she made the switch from satin and bunny tails to blue jeans and gloves two months ago because she got "tired of the hassle of it all."

The work is hard, but the pay is good and the exercise helps keep the former bunny trim. Missing lunch can be an advantage.

The guys and gals works side-by-side, making slip-forms for the elevator bins and distributing the fresh concrete. Breaks come only when the work is

Rocky Discloses $2.1 Million In Gifts, Loans To Friends

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice presidential nominee Nelson A. Rockefeller, saying he was innocent of moral or legal wrongdoing, has disclosed personal loans and gifts totaling more than $2.1 million to friends, political associates, a journalist and 18 former U.S. and New York State officials.

Among those listed as recipients of Rockefeller's largesse were Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who received $50,000 just before he joined the Nixon administration; and former New York GOP Chairman L. Judson Morhouse, later imprisoned for bribery.

Rockefeller boosted by $75,000 the size of his previously reported total gifts to Dr. William J. Ronan, his single biggest beneficiary. He said Ronan, a former adviser and now the unsalaried chairman of the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, got $625,000 between 1958 and 1974.

The former New York governor also disclosed he had given gifts and forgiven loans totaling $155,000 to former Newsweek columnist Emmet John Hughes. Rockefeller said he forgave a $150,000 loan for Hughes in 1970 "because of my personal friendship ... and my respect for his talents as a writer."

The Washington Post quoted Hughes as saying the money was not a gift, but deferred compensation for his work as adviser and speech writer during Rockefeller's 1968 presidential campaign.

Disclosure of the gifts and loans came in a two-page letter and an accompanying six-page list made public by Rockefeller Friday night after they were sent to Sen. Howard Cannon, DNev., chairman of the Senate Rules Committee.

Cannon had requested the details based on gift tax reports provided in income tax material Rockefeller gave the Senate and House as part of his confirmation hearings. Rockefeller said he made the letter and list public because part of the information already had been leaked to reporters.

By far the bulk of the gifts and loans — totaling almost $1.8 million — were made to 18 men and women who were present or former U.S. and New York state officials or were on Rockefeller's staff when he was governor.

Rockefeller said these 18 "all operated in a framework of policy established by me as governor of the state." He said all had been appointed by him and were responsible to him.

Church Asked Priest To Quit

BOSTON (UPI) — The Rev. John J. McLaughlin, one of Richard Nixon's staunchest defenders during the impeachment furor, was ordered to leave the White House by church officials shortly after Nixon's resignation, according to a Jesuit newspaper.

McLaughlin

The SJ News, a Jesuit publication published in Boston, said it had learned that McLaughlin was ordered to resign his post as a presidential aide five days after Nixon's resignation. The paper said McLaughlin initially refused to confirm the report, but later verified he received such an order from the New England Provincial of the Jesuits, Rev. Richard Cleary.

McLaughlin recently announced he would leave his White House post later this month.

The paper said it had learned from both Washington and Jesuit sources of Cleary's letter. It said McLaughlin refused to discuss the reasons for the letter. He also reportedly said his resignation was because of "Jesuit policy." He refused to elaborate further.

Search For Trio

SAXIS, Va. (UPI) — Coast Guard searchers early today located the wreckage of a light plane which crashed and sank in marshland near the Chesapeake Bay near this fishing village after colliding with a military jet last night.

A spokesman said searchers also found a flight bag and billfold belonging to the owner-pilot of the Piper PA24, Robert A. Axley of White Plains, N. Y. Also aboard the plane and also still missing were Axley's wife, Dale, and their daughter, 3.

Begins Work

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson began work today on a cautious Socialist program designed to curb Britain's rising inflation.

Wilson plans to introduce his Socialist package to the new parliament which opens Oct. 22 in a state ceremony highlighted by Queen Elizabeth reading a government-written speech outlining Wilson's legislative program.

Because of his bare three-seat majority in the House of Commons, political commentators said Wilson is likely to avoid controversial measures such as his plans to nationalize large sections of industry now in private ownership.

Coup Dampened

ROME (UPI) — A group of right-wingers led by Prince Junio Valerio Borghese took up positions around Rome on a cold night nearly four years ago, awaiting the signal to seize key installations and topple Italy's government.

But the coup was called off because of rain.

Police arrested eight men in Rome, Pisa and Bari Friday, looked for another 12 and searched 90 homes, including those of two retired air force generals.

Borghese, who headed a Fascist antiguerrilla unit during World War II, died last year in Spain and was buried in Italy after a stormy funeral in Rome before admirers giving the Fascist salute.

Police said on the night of Dec. 8, 1970, a 200-man forest ranger force from Cittaducale, 50 miles northeast of Rome, marched to the capital's outskirts under pretext of a fire-fighting exercise and stood ready to occupy television studios for Borghese to issue a takeover proclamation.

Hundreds of other men stood by in three Rome gyms. A few armed men even managed to sneak into the Interior Ministry, the nerve center of Italy's police.

Then driving rain set in and someone called off the coup.

Club Bombed

LONDON (UPI) — Bombs shattered two exclusive military clubs on London's West End in the second bombing attack against the British army in six days. Police said the outlawed Irish Republican Army apparently planted the explosives.

Three persons were injured in the blasts last night. One of the bombs exploded at the Victory ex-serviceman's club and the second went off 10 minutes later at the Army and Navy Club a mile away.

"It would seem reasonable to suggest that it was an IRA attack, although we have no confirmation at this time," a Scotland Yard spokesman said.

Asks Autopsy

PARIS (UPI) — A young daughter asked the Paris prosecutor to order an autopsy today into the death of her mother Mrs. Stavros Niarchos, wife of the Greek shipping magnate and former wife of millionaire Aristotle Onassis.

Tina Niarchos, former wife of Onassis, died Thursday in her glass-and-stone mansion in Paris's fashionable 7th district of what a family spokesman called heart failure. The family reported the death of the 45-year-old woman Friday.

The autopsy request came from Christina Onassis, 24, Mrs. Niarchos's daughter by her marriage to Onassis, another world-renowned shipping tycoon and the husband of Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy.

A preliminary coroner's investigation said: "It seems it is a case of natural death following extreme edema of the lung." Edema is a swelling or congestion brought on by heart attack.

Ex-Officer Dies

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — Oskar Schindler, a former German officer honored by Israel for saving more than 1,200 Jews from Nazi brutality in occupied Poland and Czechoslovakia, died Wednesday, his family announced today. He was 66.

As manager of industrial enterprises the Nazis had taken away from their Jewish owners in Poland and the German Sudetenland, now part of Czechoslovakia, Schindler blocked deportation of Jews to the gas chambers of Auschwitz and other concentration camps at the ridk of his own life.

Mills Criticized

LITTLE ROCK (UPI) — The Arkansas Gazette, the largest newspaper in Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, 2nd Congressional District, today criticized Mills for his absence from congressional duties since his involvement in an incident at Washington earlier in the week.

Mills, another man, and three women — one identified as a former stripper — were stopped by park police for speeding and driving without headlights. The former stripper, Mrs. Anabell Battistella, jumped out of the car and plunged into the tidal basin. Police said Mills was intoxicated and bleeding.

Mills, a Democrat facing reelection opposition from Republican Judy Petty, and chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, has remained in seclusion since the episode.

Betty Ford Returns To White House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — First Lady Betty Ford is back home in the White House after making an "excellent" recovery from surgery for removal of a cancerous right breast two weeks ago.

Dr. William Fouty, the physician who performed the operation, described her condition and progress as "excellent." The final hospital medical bulletin said "Mrs. Ford has excellent use of her right arm."

Presley Sued After Fight

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — A man who said he was beaten at a party given by Elvis Presley filed a federal court suit Friday seeking more than $6.2 million damages.

Edward Ashley, Nevada County, Calif., alleged he was beaten after he knocked on the door of a 14th floor room at the hotel where Presley was giving a party after a show last May 20.

Ford Signs Energy Bill; AEC Erased

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has signed a bill abolishing the Atomic Energy Commission and putting all energy research efforts under a new Energy Research and Development Agency.

Its goals will include development of new energy sources to make the country less dependent on foreign oil and methods of extracting energy resources which will not harm the environment.

"I think it's a tremendous step forward," Ford said yesterday as he went through 11 ballpoint pens to sign the Energy Reorganization Act of 1974.

The new agency will operate side by side with the present Federal Energy Administration, headed by John C. Sawhill, which will continue to be in charge of energy policy matters, particularly allocation of supplies.

The AEC, created in 1946 to continue the World War II atomic research program, will cease to exist. Most of its functions will pass to one of six departments in the new ERDA headed by an assistant administrator for nuclear energy development.

The bill also establishes two other bodies, a five-member Nuclear Regulatory Commission to license and safeguard nuclear reactors and radioactive materials, and an Energy Resources Council.

On top of all these energy bodies will be the National Energy Board, which Ford created last week, headed by Interior Seeretary Rogers C.B. Morton. Morton thus appears to be emerging as Ford's top energy official. He also will hed the Energy Resources Council.

AEC Chairman Dixy Lee Ray was handed one of the ceremonial pens at the signing Friday and mused: "Is this the pen that helped abolish my job?"

Rocky Discloses $2.1 Million In Gifts, Loans To Friends

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice presidential nominee Nelson A. Rockefeller, saying he was innocent of moral or legal wrongdoing, has disclosed personal loans and gifts totaling more than $2.1 million to friends, political associates, a journalist and 18 former U.S. and New York State officials.

Among those listed as recipients of Rockefeller's largesse were Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who received $50,000 just before he joined the Nixon administration; and former New York GOP Chairman L. Judson Morhouse, later imprisoned for bribery.

Rockefeller boosted by $75,000 the size of his previously reported total gifts to Dr. William J. Ronan, his single biggest beneficiary. He said Ronan, a former adviser and now the unsalaried chairman of the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, got $625,000 between 1958 and 1974.

The former New York governor also disclosed he had given gifts and forgiven loans totaling $155,000 to former Newsweek columnist Emmet John Hughes. Rockefeller said he forgave a $150,000 loan for Hughes in 1970 "because of my personal friendship ... and my respect for his talents as a writer."

The Washington Post quoted Hughes as saying the money was not a gift, but deferred compensation for his work as adviser and speech writer during Rockefeller's 1968 presidential campaign.

Disclosure of the gifts and loans came in a two-page letter and an accompanying six-page list made public by Rockefeller Friday night after they were sent to Sen. Howard Cannon, DNev., chairman of the Senate Rules Committee.

Cannon had requested the details based on gift tax reports provided in income tax material Rockefeller gave the Senate and House as part of his confirmation hearings. Rockefeller said he made the letter and list public because part of the information already had been leaked to reporters.

By far the bulk of the gifts and loans — totaling almost $1.8 million — were made to 18 men and women who were present or former U.S. and New York state officials or were on Rockefeller's staff when he was governor.

Rockefeller said these 18 "all operated in a framework of policy established by me as governor of the state." He said all had been appointed by him and were responsible to him.

PURSUIT, BUT NO ARREST

Officers from Belvedere, Tiburon, Mill Valley, Corte Madera and the California Highway Patrol gather on Lyford Drive in Tiburon, before they set off in pursuit of two men thought to be burglarizing a home in the area last night. After officers chased the two by car through the area, the men fled on foot into the brush, and were not found.

Body Found Near Beach

The body of a 36-year-old San Francisco man who apparently shot himself to death several days ago was pulled from a crevice below a bluff northwest of Cronkhite Beach at Fort Cronkhite yesterday.

Frank Esposito Rila, managing editor for a San Francisco travel guide, apparently climbed down the cliff and then shot himself in the chest with a revolver, according to the Marin County corners office.

Two hikers found Rila's body on Thursday, but Coast Guard and Army crews were unable to retrieve it until yesterday, a spokesman said.

An Army helicopter crew yesterday hooked a line to the dead man's belt and attempted to lift the body away, but the belt snapped and the body plunged 300 feet into a ravine. The body was finally recovered by a land crew.

Rescuers found a note in the form of a poem dated Oct. 5, indicating despondency.

The 5-foot-8, 24-year-old former model seems to have suffered no ill effects from the rigorous labor except for some broken fingernails and a few callouses on her hands.

Robert Quitmeir, a Utah State student taking time off from studies to earn some money, said having the girls around makes more of a social atmosphere.

"They do everything we can do, except maybe lifting the really heavy equipment," he said.

Project supervisor Jerry Wigens of Fort Worth, Tex., said hiring the women was a necessity.

"Sometimes it is hard to find enough workers," he said, "and the girls are dependable and do a good job, sometimes better than the men."

Color Film

"Small World," a color film on insects, will be screened at the College of Marin at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in Olney Hall. The film will be narrated by naturalist Fran William Hall. General admission is $2. Children under 16 will be admitted for 50 cents.

Indians Plan Harvest Fete

An acorn harvest moon celebration will be staged by the Dry Creek Pomo Indians from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. tomorrow to raise funds for the legal effort against the Warm Springs Dam near Healdsburg.

The festival, on the Westerbeke estate at 2300 Grove Street in Sonoma, will include an Indian-style deep pit barbecue dinner, dancers, drummers and singers from several western tribes, according to a spokesman.

Traditional and contemporary art and craft goods, including pomo basketry and Navajo rugs, will be exhibited and sold.

The Dry Creek Pomo band is one of the plaintiffs in a lawsuit which resulted in a U.S. Supreme Court order temporarily stopping work on the dam.

Admission will be $25 per couple or $15 for each adult, $5 for children 13 to 18 and free for those 12 and under.

Larkspur Ferry Permit Issued

The last permit required to start construction of the Larkspur ferry terminal has been issued by the Army Corps of Engineers.

The only permits still pending approval are from Marin Municipal Water and Ross Valley Sanitary districts. They will be needed before the opening of the $17.3 million terminal, scheduled in the spring of 1976, two years behind schedule.

The Golden Gate Bridge District's engineer, Harry D. Reilich, reported to district directors yesterday that the permit authorizes dredging as well as construction of the terminal.

District directors also accepted a $3,706 bid by Ziegler Steel Service Corp. of Union City to supply 4,000 high tensile strength galvanized bolts with nuts.

Black Point Plan Presented

A preliminary plan for embellishing the entrance to Black Point was given last night to the Black Point Improvement Association by committee chairman Dr. Richard Gabel.

The plan calls for concrete work and plantings in the area between the grocery store and the Northwestern Pacific Railroad. There may possibly be benches and a picnic table, according to secretary Kathleen Taylor.

The members also voted to ask the county to patrol the Petaluma River to enforce the five-miles per hour speed limit. Boats are going faster than the limit and their wakes are eroding the banks, she said.

San Quentin Convict Dies

A San Quentin convict was found hanging in his honor block cell yesterday, apparently having taken his own life.

The body of John Garcia, 46, was found dangling at the end of an electrical cord at 12:40 p.m. yesterday, according to William D. Nyberg, prison information officer.

The cord came from a set of earphones, he said.

Garcia, serving a life term for first degree murder in Los Angeles, had been imprisoned since 1961. He left a note saying he was despondent about a scheduled appearance before the California Adult Authority Board.

He was a native of New York.

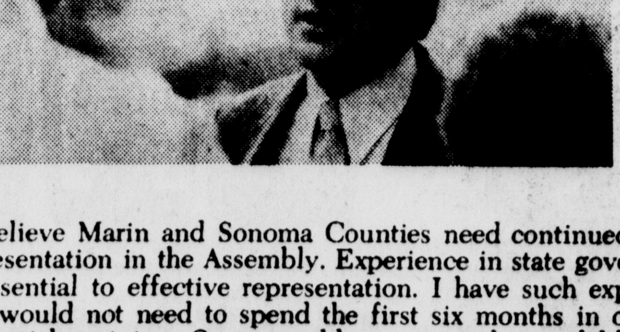
One of Marin's best resources is Alan Hill . . . let's all use him.



"I believe Marin and Sonoma Counties need continued strong representation in the Assembly. Experience in state government is essential to effective representation. I have such experience and would not need to spend the first six months in office in on-the-job training. Our assemblyman must be available to the people on a regular basis. I intend to have two district offices . . . one to serve Marin and the other to serve Southern Sonoma. In addition, I would hold periodic meetings in local areas to assure the citizens an opportunity for discussion of problems and issues."

Body Found Near Beach

The body of a 36-year-old San Francisco man who apparently shot himself to death several days ago was pulled from a crevice below a bluff northwest of Cronkhite Beach at Fort Cronkhite yesterday.

Frank Esposito Rila, managing editor for a San Francisco travel guide, apparently climbed down the cliff and then shot himself in the chest with a revolver, according to the Marin County corners office.

Two hikers found Rila's body on Thursday, but Coast Guard and Army crews were unable to retrieve it until yesterday, a spokesman said.

An Army helicopter crew yesterday hooked a line to the dead man's belt and attempted to lift the body away, but the belt snapped and the body plunged 300 feet into a ravine. The body was finally recovered by a land crew.

Rescuers found a note in the form of a poem dated Oct. 5, indicating despondency.

The 5-foot-8, 24-year-old former model seems to have suffered no ill effects from the rigorous labor except for some broken fingernails and a few callouses on her hands.

Robert Quitmeir, a Utah State student taking time off from studies to earn some money, said having the girls around makes more of a social atmosphere.

"They do everything we can do, except maybe lifting the really heavy equipment," he said.

Project supervisor Jerry Wigens of Fort Worth, Tex., said hiring the women was a necessity.

"Sometimes it is hard to find enough workers," he said, "and the girls are dependable and do a good job, sometimes better than the men."

Indians Plan Harvest Fete

An acorn harvest moon celebration will be staged by the Dry Creek Pomo Indians from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. tomorrow to raise funds for the legal effort against the Warm Springs Dam near Healdsburg.

The festival, on the Westerbeke estate at 2300 Grove Street in Sonoma, will include an Indian-style deep pit barbecue dinner, dancers, drummers and singers from several western tribes, according to a spokesman.

Traditional and contemporary art and craft goods, including pomo basketry and Navajo rugs, will be exhibited and sold.

Admission will be $25 per couple or $15 for each adult, $5 for children 13 to 18 and free for those 12 and under.

Larkspur Ferry Permit Issued

The last permit required to start construction of the Larkspur ferry terminal has been issued by the Army Corps of Engineers.

The only permits still pending approval are from Marin Municipal Water and Ross Valley Sanitary districts. They will be needed before the opening of the $17.3 million terminal, scheduled in the spring of 1976, two years behind schedule.

The Golden Gate Bridge District's engineer, Harry D. Reilich, reported to district directors yesterday that the permit authorizes dredging as well as construction of the terminal.

District directors also accepted a $3,706 bid by Ziegler Steel Service Corp. of Union City to supply 4,000 high tensile strength galvanized bolts with nuts.

Black Point Plan Presented

A preliminary plan for embellishing the entrance to Black Point was given last night to the Black Point Improvement Association by committee chairman Dr. Richard Gabel.

The plan calls for concrete work and plantings in the area between the grocery store and the Northwestern Pacific Railroad. There may possibly be benches and a picnic table, according to secretary Kathleen Taylor.

The members also voted to ask the county to patrol the Petaluma River to enforce the five-miles per hour speed limit. Boats are going faster than the limit and their wakes are eroding the banks, she said.

San Quentin Convict Dies

A San Quentin convict was found hanging in his honor block cell yesterday, apparently having taken his own life.

The body of John Garcia, 46, was found dangling at the end of an electrical cord at 12:40 p.m. yesterday, according to William D. Nyberg, prison information officer.

The cord came from a set of earphones, he said.

Garcia, serving a life term for first degree murder in Los Angeles, had been imprisoned since 1961. He left a note saying he was despondent about a scheduled appearance before the California Adult Authority Board.

He was a native of New York.

One of Marin's best resources is Alan Hill ... let's all use him.

"I believe Marin and Sonoma Counties need continued strong representation in the Assembly. Experience in state government is essential to effective representation. I have such experience and would not need to spend the first six months in office in on-the-job training. Our assemblyman must be available to the people on a regular basis. I intend to have two district offices . . . one to serve Marin and the other to serve Southern Sonoma. In addition, I would hold periodic meetings in local areas to assure the citizens an opportunity for discussion of problems and issues."

Marin's Holdings Up $5.6 Million

The net worth of Marin County government holdings rose $5.6 million during the last fiscal year to a new total of $40.4 million, county auditor-controller Michael Mitchell reported yesterday.

According to Mitchell, some $36.2 million is in capital assets such as buildings and land and the remainder in cash and reserves.

He arrived at the county's net worth by subtracting the county's liabilities from its assets arriving at a net worth of $40,402,615.

The major county liability is $7,208,455 in principal and interest owed on the Hall of Justice bond issue, he said.

Major assets include $22,176,114 for the Civic Center and grounds, and $4,614,809 for parks and open space.

"From a fiscal standpoint, the County of Marin is, indeed, in a strong financially solvent position which requires constant and meticulous fiscal controls by this office," Mitchell wrote to supervisors.

He said the county, school district, special district and district under the control of county supervisors have a total bonded indebtedness of $64,293,077, including future interest.

The auditor-controller did not list the total assets of the agencies other than the county.

Oil Tanker Regulations Urged

Sen. Peter H. Behr of San Rafael, Republican nominee for reelection in the Second District, has proposed that the state's new energy commission regulate oil tanker traffic to protect the North Coast from oil spills.

Construction of the Alaska pipeline soon will mean far more oil will be shipped along California's coastline, Behr noted. Most will move in supertankers averaging 135,000 deadweight tons, and tankers appraoching 250,000 tons are being considered.

Behr contrasted these figures with the San Francisco Bay spill in 1971 by two tankers of 17,000 deadweight tons.

The commission, he proposed, should regulate planning and construction of new mooring spots along the coast, related new pipelines, onshore tank farms and new refineries.

The commission also should regulate the safety and structural features of the supertankers, the senator said.

On another issue, Behr announced he will introduce legislation, if reelected, to finance field reserach on a program to train coyotes not to eat lambs.

The research by the University of California, to coast about $50,000, would be done at the university's field station at Hopland in Mendocino County, according to Behr's proposal.

The system, lacing lamb meat with a substance which makes coyotes sick without harming them, worked in laboratory tests. Experiments have shown that after several exposures to the treated lamb meat the coyotes will not attack live lambs, Behr said.

The test would be aimed both at the problem of coyote attacks on sheep and the presently inhumane system of killing coyotes with explosive devices, a spokesman for the senator said.

BAGLEY — Assemblyman William T. Bagley of San Rafael, GOP nominee for state controller, has been endorsed by the California League of Conservation Voters. It said "his record of legislative accomplishments in environmental matters makes him the obvious choice." The league praised Bagley for carrying its first legislative attempt in 1967 to establish a coastal commission and for creating in 1971 the Bagley Conservation Fund. The fund has paid for purchase of more than 42,000 acres of parkalnd, the league noted. It also praised him for his legislation to impose a moratorium on offshore drilling for oil, and said he "continues to maintain a strong environmentalist position on this vital issue."

GAY — The Gay Activists Alliance of San Francisco has endorsed both Rep. John L. Burton and Rev. Ray Broshears, Democratic and Peace and Freedom nominees respectively in the Fifth Congressional District. The alliance said "both were found equal."

CAYLOR — Thomas O. Caylor, Republican nominee in the Fifth Congressional District, has proposed federal funding to registrars of voters so that local voters can be mailed "a comprehensive campaign manual of candidates and their positions." Each candidate should be allowed space in the manual for a photograph, biography and platform statement, Caylor said.

SLEEPY HOLLOW — The Sleepy Hollow Homeowners Association will hold a candidates' night for contestants in Assembly, Senate, Marin Municipal Water District and county clerk races at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 28 at the association's clubhouse. Candidates to speak are Democrat Michael Wornum and Republican A. Alan Hill in the Ninth Assembly District, Democrat Ernest F. Banker and Republican incumbent Peter H. Behr in the Second Senatorial District, Richard J. Boylan and Betty Forry in the water district's Division 1, and county clerk candidates Peter C. Meyer and John F. Musser Jr.

Lucas Valley Ranch Plan To Be Aired

A master plan and related rezoning for development of the Luiz and Grady ranches in upper Lucas Valley will be considered Monday by the Marin County Planning Commission.

The master plan, more than a year in the works, calls for 472 dwelling on about 244 acres of the ranches' combined total of 1,615 acres.

They are currently zoned for one unit for every two acres and are proposed for one unit for every three-and-a-half acres.

The master plan calls for 40 single-family ranchettes, 296 townhouses and 136 garden apartments, plus recreational facilities and a fire station.

The planning department staff has recommended adoption of the rezoning and master plan subject to a number of conditions dealing with preservation of Miller Creek, roads, traffic and availability of water and sewage services, among other things.

The planning staff also has recommended that at least 15 per cent of the townhouse and apartment dwellings be reserved for moderate-income families and sold at the equivalent 1974 sales price of between $32,000 and $36,000.

The commission, meeting at 9 a.m. at the Civic Center, will hear the matter at about 10 a.m.

Manson Figure Loses Suit

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — William E. Garretson, the only survivor of the Manson Family's slaughter at the Sharon Tate mansion, yesterday lost his $108,000 suit against the city for false arrest.

Garretson, a houseboy on the Tate-Polanski estate, was held for two days on suspicion of the five killings there, until it was established that he was innocent.

A Superior Court jury yesterday unanimously absolved the police department of improper conduct in arresting Garretson.

"I am very disappointed. Defeat is too much," said Garretson, now 25.

MUSIC REVIEW

Cleo Lane: Chameleon Of Rock

By BLAKE A. SAMSON

Cleo Lane.

Put her name in bold, capital letters, for last night the Paramount in Oakland was all hers. Soul, pop, be-bop, English drawing room song (Noel Coward, that is), even British vaudeville, jazz and hard rock — she covers it all.

She's a chameleon of versatility, having sung opera at the Edinburgh Festival, soloed and recorded symphonic works, given recitals of leider and jazz . . . together, acted Titania, Hedda Gabber and Andromache and won polls and album awards and a London Times tribute as the best popular singer "in the world."

She is backed by John Dankworth, her saxophonist, clarinetist and husband and a band of piano, drums and bass, electric bass and electric piano.

Most often, last night, though she carried the melody alone, as the band played embellishments. It was a classic performance.

John Dankworth played a shimmering sax in most of the songs, particularly in "That Certain Feeling," where jazz met popular music, but Dankworth is an even better clarinetist.

The clarinet accents he gave "Matelot" were other worldly and the base he set for "London Pride" was pure virtuosity. This song took on a British vaudevillean tone with a twist of Cockney thrown in. Hardly all drawing room song, there was a host of Gershwin, some of it modernized, and a most popular medley of songs just off this morning's charts.

Miss Lane's show had great humor, partly due to the Noel Coward wit. There was also a marvelous spoof on British "heritage," sung totally to a man's teeth.

"Sing a song of praise to them," said one line of the lyrics to this rousing, funny, funny march.

I could fault only one interpretation, her "Someday I'll Find You." It is a nostalgic love song. She sang it tongue-in-cheek, while it will stand fine if played straight.

This was, however, purely a difference of interpretation, not style. She seemed as if not to have style — that word that too often translates into artifice. She sang with an open sincerity that gives her intimacy, even in such a large auditorium. And the way she gave her songs space, elongating the notes, let them live.

Hers is not a gifted, natural voice. She has obviously had to work at it. To avoid the high soprano, she'll flip into the falsetto, momentarily effective, but harmful to the voice physically.

In the open notes placed far back in the throat, there was just a touch of hoarseness. By the second half it was lubricated out, but I think she cut "I Loves You, Porgy" from the program to protect her throat for tonight's repeat concert at the Masonic Auditorium in San Francisco.

However, what the voice lacks in nature's gift, it has made up in control and intellect.

Hers is the popular music sound but much of her lyrics were set to poetry — by e. e. cummings, the British poet laureate Sir John Betjeman and Shakespeare (to the Eighteenth Sonnet).

The lyrics were so profound, one regrets that sound goes by so fast. She made the sonnet seem a letter and takes complicated Shakespearean logic and makes it toughingly simple.

Miss Cleo Lane, "shall I compare thee to a summer's day?"

The show will be repeated at the Masonic Auditorium in San Francisco at 8:30 p.m. today and a few tickets are still available. I would stand myself just to hear her sing again Sondheim's classic, "Send in the Clowns."

The commission also should regulate the safety and structural features of the supertankers, the senator said.

On another issue, Behr announced he will introduce legislation, if reelected, to finance field reserach on a program to train coyotes not to eat lambs.

The research by the University of California, to coast about $50,000, would be done at the university's field station at Hopland in Mendocino County, according to Behr's proposal.

The system, lacing lamb meat with a substance which makes coyotes sick without harming them, worked in laboratory tests. Experiments have shown that after several exposures to the treated lamb meat the coyotes will not attack live lambs, Behr said.

The test would be aimed both at the problem of coyote attacks on sheep and the presently inhumane system of killing coyotes with explosive devices, a spokesman for the senator said.

BAGLEY — Assemblyman William T. Bagley of San Rafael, GOP nominee for state controller, has been endorsed by the California League of Conservation Voters. It said "his record of legislative accomplishments in environmental matters makes him the obvious choice." The league praised Bagley for carrying its first legislative attempt in 1967 to establish a coastal commission and for creating in 1971 the Bagley Conservation Fund. The fund has paid for purchase of more than 42,000 acres of parkalnd, the league noted. It also praised him for his legislation to impose a moratorium on offshore drilling for oil, and said he "continues to maintain a strong environmentalist position on this vital issue."

GAY — The Gay Activists Alliance of San Francisco has endorsed both Rep. John L. Burton and Rev. Ray Broshears, Democratic and Peace and Freedom nominees respectively in the Fifth Congressional District. The alliance said "both were found equal."

CAYLOR — Thomas O. Caylor, Republican nominee in the Fifth Congressional District, has proposed federal funding to registrars of voters so that local voters can be mailed "a comprehensive campaign manual of candidates and their positions." Each candidate should be allowed space in the manual for a photograph, biography and platform statement, Caylor said.

SLEEPY HOLLOW — The Sleepy Hollow Homeowners Association will hold a candidates' night for contestants in Assembly, Senate, Marin Municipal Water District and county clerk races at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 28 at the association's clubhouse. Candidates to speak are Democrat Michael Wornum and Republican A. Alan Hill in the Ninth Assembly District, Democrat Ernest F. Banker and Republican incumbent Peter H. Behr in the Second Senatorial District, Richard J. Boylan and Betty Forry in the water district's Division 1, and county clerk candidates Peter C. Meyer and John F. Musser Jr.

Manson Figure Loses Suit

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — William E. Garretson, the only survivor of the Manson Family's slaughter at the Sharon Tate mansion, yesterday lost his $108,000 suit against the city for false arrest.

Garretson, a houseboy on the Tate-Polanski estate, was held for two days on suspicion of the five killings there, until it was established that he was innocent.

A Superior Court jury yesterday unanimously absolved the police department of improper conduct in arresting Garretson.

"I am very disappointed. Defeat is too much," said Garretson, now 25.

Lucas Valley Ranch Plan To Be Aired

A master plan and related rezoning for development of the Luiz and Grady ranches in upper Lucas Valley will be considered Monday by the Marin County Planning Commission.

The master plan, more than a year in the works, calls for 472 dwelling on about 244 acres of the ranches' combined total of 1,615 acres.

They are currently zoned for one unit for every two acres and are proposed for one unit for every three-and-a-half acres.

The master plan calls for 40 single-family ranchettes, 296 townhouses and 136 garden apartments, plus recreational facilities and a fire station.

The planning department staff has recommended adoption of the rezoning and master plan subject to a number of conditions dealing with preservation of Miller Creek, roads, traffic and availability of water and sewage services, among other things.

The planning staff also has recommended that at least 15 per cent of the townhouse and apartment dwellings be reserved for moderate-income families and sold at the equivalent 1974 sales price of between $32,000 and $36,000.

The commission, meeting at 9 a.m. at the Civic Center, will hear the matter at about 10 a.m.

Cleo Lane: Chameleon Of Rock

By BLAKE A. SAMSON

Cleo Lane.

Put her name in bold, capital letters, for last night the Paramount in Oakland was all hers. Soul, pop, be-bop, English drawing room song (Noel Coward, that is), even British vaudeville, jazz and hard rock — she covers it all.

She's a chameleon of versatility, having sung opera at the Edinburgh Festival, soloed and recorded symphonic works, given recitals of leider and jazz . . . together, acted Titania, Hedda Gabber and Andromache and won polls and album awards and a London Times tribute as the best popular singer "in the world."

She is backed by John Dankworth, her saxophonist, clarinetist and husband and a band of piano, drums and bass, electric bass and electric piano.

Most often, last night, though she carried the melody alone, as the band played embellishments. It was a classic performance.

John Dankworth played a shimmering sax in most of the songs, particularly in "That Certain Feeling," where jazz met popular music, but Dankworth is an even better clarinetist.

The clarinet accents he gave "Matelot" were other worldly and the base he set for "London Pride" was pure virtuosity. This song took on a British vaudevillean tone with a twist of Cockney thrown in. Hardly all drawing room song, there was a host of Gershwin, some of it modernized, and a most popular medley of songs just off this morning's charts.

Miss Lane's show had great humor, partly due to the Noel Coward wit. There was also a marvelous spoof on British "heritage," sung totally to a man's teeth.

"Sing a song of praise to them," said one line of the lyrics to this rousing, funny, funny march.

I could fault only one interpretation, her "Someday I'll Find You." It is a nostalgic love song. She sang it tongue-in-cheek, while it will stand fine if played straight.

This was, however, purely a difference of interpretation, not style. She seemed as if not to have style — that word that too often translates into artifice. She sang with an open sincerity that gives her intimacy, even in such a large auditorium. And the way she gave her songs space, elongating the notes, let them live.

Hers is not a gifted, natural voice. She has obviously had to work at it. To avoid the high soprano, she'll flip into the falsetto, momentarily effective, but harmful to the voice physically.

In the open notes placed far back in the throat, there was just a touch of hoarseness. By the second half it was lubricated out, but I think she cut "I Loves You, Porgy" from the program to protect her throat for tonight's repeat concert at the Masonic Auditorium in San Francisco.

However, what the voice lacks in nature's gift, it has made up in control and intellect.

Hers is the popular music sound but much of her lyrics were set to poetry — by e. e. cummings, the British poet laureate Sir John Betjeman and Shakespeare (to the Eighteenth Sonnet).

The lyrics were so profound, one regrets that sound goes by so fast. She made the sonnet seem a letter and takes complicated Shakespearean logic and makes it toughingly simple.

Miss Cleo Lane, "shall I compare thee to a summer's day?"

The show will be repeated at the Masonic Auditorium in San Francisco at 8:30 p.m. today and a few tickets are still available. I would stand myself just to hear her sing again Sondheim's classic, "Send in the Clowns."

THE LAST WORD

Affluent Families Have Problems, Too

By PAT BALMES

Driving through some of the beautiful neighborhoods in Marin, which are among the nation's most affluent residential areas, one wonders if the people there have indeed found paradise.

Psychologist Frances Clark of Tiburon says No — affluent families have problems, too.

She shared her impressions of these problems at her office at the Ross Valley Psychological Services where she does counseling. Dr. Clark also teaches at the California School of Professional Psychology in San Francisco.

PROBLEMS BROUGHT about by affluence often surface in the children who suffer emotional deprivation, a lack of intimacy with their often absent parents. These children have more trouble identifying with their fathers; they don't understand what business executives and stockbrokers do.

The parents put pressure on their children to excel and go to a prestigeous college, to achieve "because that is what I did." Children are pressured to act grown-up, making it necessary to skip normal developmental stages such as an adolescent girl's tomboy phase.

WIVES OF AFFLUENT men, tending to be separated from their husbands a lot, are sometimes lonely and bored. Husbands and wives have little time together for activities they both enjoy.

The more affluent the family, the less likely the wife is to find paid employment. The more sheltered she has been, the less experience she has had working in the world. It is hard for her to find things that interest her and give her self-esteem. Volunteers are usually at the bottom level of authority. Even having a college degree does not enforce her self-esteem.

When a family is committed to an affluent life style, it can become a trap if they are living beyond their means. Even if not, high costs still make the husband feel trapped into making more and more money. He is absent a lot because of work pressures.

THE AFFLUENT couple may find themselves caught up in social relationships which are faintly competitive and superficial, not supportive. A sense of identity may be derived from material possessions, with an accompanying anxiety. They wonder, "if I were to lose my possessions, would I still have my standing and my friends?"

In today's nuclear family, the psycologist believes, one has no real sense of belonging, no extended family, no intimate friends. A mutual suppory system seems lacking. People are trying out the idea of community with groups like Open End.

These problems contribute to Marin's high rate of suicide, alcholism and divorce. A good education and a high paying job do not mean you know how to deal with emotional and spiritual problems.

THE ANSWER is more education, according to the psychologist, such as preventative mental health programs to educate people to take care of their own and their children's emotional needs.

Recommending meditation for psychological and physiological reasons, the psychologist said, "take a look at things that are important to you. What are the things that are really satisfying in your life? When you get in touch with what gives you most satisfaction, then you can help your chilren find what would most satisfy them."

Pointing out that affluent families put less focus on family activities she believes that a busy business executive, upon reflection, may realize that he will later wish that he had taken time to enjoy his children more rather than putting pressure on them to achieve and act grown up.

Foster Parent Finds It Rewarding

By DOROTHY NEWELL

"I can't think of a thing I'd rather do," said Ronald W. Stratton of Novato, talking about having two foster sons in his home.

Stratton, a bachelor, is the new president of the Marin County Foster Parents' Association and has been a member for two years.

Brad, 14, has been with Stratton for one month and Matt, 13, (he preferred not to use his real name) has been with him since February. Stratton has had two other boys in his home. One of the boys went back to live with his father, but calls Stratton every day, he said, and they visit frequently.

The boys were placed in Stratton's home through the Department of Public Social Services. His original idea was to adopt a boy, and he still hopes someday to adopt children. "I hope the rest of my life will be like this," he said, as he talked in his neat two bedroom townhouse. "Eventually I hope to build a home out in the country and have eight boys with me," he continued.

The Marin County Association recently received an $18,000 federal grant for education for foster families. Phase one is "Parent Effectiveness Training." Administrative services of the probation department and College of Marin set up the project. Stratton is among the foster parents who meet once a week at Redwood High School to share ideas regarding the foster children and discuss legislation affecting the foster children programs.

Most of the foster parents in the group are young and dedicated, said Stratton. "They really care."

(Children are placed in foster homes for varying lengths of time and for various reasons when circumstances in the natural home make it desirable — e.g., traumatic illness or divorce or troubled relationships among family members.)

A typical day in the Stratton home begins when he gets up at 5 a.m. to go to work in San Francisco as a stockbroker at Lawson, Williams and Stern. He is home by the time the boys are out of school. They attend San Jose Junior High School. They make their own breakfasts and sometimes take their lunches. They also make their own beds, put their own dishes in the dishwasher and take turns washing the pots and pans. "I don't give them too much responsibility, as I want them to have some fun," Stratton said.

He plans the meals for about two weeks, but the day of this interview he was taking the boys out for clam chowder, Brad's favorite.

Allowed to choose their own elective classes, Brad is now taking guitar and Matt elected typing, because "I can make use of it in college." Both boys like to read the newspapers, and Matt plays with the Pop Warner Football League in Novato.

Of course there are arguments, as in any family, and there is slamming of doors sometimes, Stratton said. He lets the boys decide if they feel he is a father image, big brother or a friend.

The boys and Stratton like sports cars, and Stratton enjoys racing, camping, reading, cooking, model trains, painting and going to parties. Stratton and the boys attended the Laguna Seca auto races last weekend in Monterey.

To make extra money Brad and Matt wash and polish Stratton's Porsche automobile and also paint any little nicks that might be on the car.

Stratton was born in Ross, was graduated from Honolulu High School, attended Honolulu Academy of Arts and Pacific Lutheran University in Tacoma, Wash.

He is a member of the Sports Car Club of America, a charter member of California Foster Parents Association and National Foster Parents Association.

Officers serving with Stratton are Susanna Lowry of Mill Valley, vice president; Glenn Murray of San Anselmo, treasurer; and Marge Ferretti of Fairfax, secretary.

Interfacing Needed In Buttonhole Work

By EUNICE FARMER
Distributed by Register and Tribune Syndicate

DEAR EUNICE,

I just finished a sweater-type cardigan and put my machine buttonholes in the front banding as the pattern suggested. The buttonholes are pulling out of shape and are twice the original size. What should I have done to keep the shape nice and even? — DEBBIE D.

DEAR DEBBIE,

You apparently didn't use any interfacing in the fronts of the sweater; thus, there was nothing to prevent the buttonholes from continuing to grow larger and larger.

Years ago, it was popular to place a strip of grosgrain ribbon on the wrong or the right side of the front edge of sweaters that were hand knitted. This would keep the front edges in shape and would provide a nice sturdy background for the buttonholes.

Since your pattern didn't call for grosgrain ribbon, you should have used interfacing under the buttonholes. This could have been separate pieces placed under each buttonhole instead of a long strip. Another solution would have been to press on a square of press-on interfacing on both the wrong side of the sweater and the facing. This would also have provided the firmness necessary for the buttonholes.

DEAR EUNICE,

I have had such difficulty stitching on the sewing machine with the new polyester buttonhole twist that I have given up in despair. I have tried everything possible. Is there something wrong with my sewing machine, the thread, or me? — MRS. W. H.

DEAR MRS. W. H.,

Many women have written me that they simply can't use the new polyester buttonhole twist with their machines. There could be a combination of reasons, but because there are so many sewing machines around, I will have to generalize.

We have found that the difficulty is usually the tension of the machine — it simply doesn't want to feed the thicker thread through the machine evenly. Sometimes you will find that you aren't using a large enough needle; we suggest a size 16 or 18. Try using the regular thread in the bobbin, also use a larger stitch length. Whatever you do, please experiment with scraps of your fabric, using at least two layers to assimilate your garment.

If everything fails, you may have to resort to using two layers of your regular thread to create the heavier effect. This will usually work without any change in tension, but again, use a longer stitch length for most decorative stitching.

I have noticed that so many garments today are topstitched everywhere — hems, collars, pockets, seams, — and they are usually done with the regular thread in a contrasting color. If one technique won't work, forget it, and try to achieve the same effect by other means.

DEAR READERS,

I have always tried to keep you informed about new products that have proven to be important sewing aids to help you gain perfection in your home sewing. Today's product is called "Tissue Tape" by Belding.

This new tape prevents slippage. Unlike the sticking tape that guides ornamental topstitching, this non-sticking Tissue Tape is for plain, basic stitching of seams, when the difficult material is likely to slip, stretch, creep or snag.

The "Tissue Tape" can be pinned over the seam line, and knit, sheers and open weaves (including laces, pile fabrics, velvets, etc.) are easily stitched. There are guidelines for seam-stitching with the seam allowances clearly marked.

When stitching is completed, the tape is gently pulled off in large strips, leaving no tiny tissue specks to bother with.

Bazaars for the holidays will be starting soon. Get ready by creating gifts from the booklet, "Boutique Gifts." For your copy, send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Eunice Farmer, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

HAPPY COUPLE — Preparing to take off in their golf cart from their Hillside home in Novato are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Lindauer, who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Sept. 26.

Honeymoon On 50th Anniversary

Fifty years after their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Lindauer of Marin Country Club Estates took a "honeymoon" trip to Niagra Falls.

They were staked to the trip — at least partially — by the 150 guests who gathered for a cocktail party and buffet at Hamilton Air Force Base Officers Club to help them celebrate the golden anniversary of their wedding in San Francisco in 1924.

Invitations to the party read "no gifts," but the guests tossed money in a barrel with the understanding it would be used for trip to Niagara.

The party was hosted by the Lindauers' son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Lindauer of San Rafael, and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pritchard of Upper Lucas Valley.

The Lindauers left San Francisco Sept. 23 for the trip east. They toured the falls in the company of Shirley Martin, sister of Mrs. C. W. McColpin of Marin Country Club Estates. From there, the Lindauers went to Washington, D.C., where they stayed at the famous Watergate Hotel, and Williamsburg, Va.

The Lindauers — she is the former Selina Bateman — met when both were 15 years old and students at Polytechnic High School in San Francisco. They were married the year after their graduation from high school in 1923.

Residents of Country Club for 12 years, their home was designed for them by their son Stewart.

Now semi-retired, Lindauer is co-owner with his son-in-law of Redwood Garden Products, with businesses in San Francisco and Santa Rosa. The company was started by his grandfather in 1884, when sawdust was delivered to San Francisco saloons by horse and wagon.

A homemaker active in volunteer work, Selina Lindauer was publicity chairman for the Marin Country Club Homeowners Association for 11 years, and now both Lindauers are membership chairmen for the association. Mrs. Lindauer was the first president of the Marin Country Club Garden Club.

She is publicity chairman for the Oleander Unit, Marin Foundation, Friends of Arequipa, and served many years as the Marin Country Club Golf Association social publicity chairman.

Her hobby is bonsais, their oldest being 35 years. Lindauer is a member of Islam Temple of the Shriners and they are both members of the Eastern Star.

Golf, traveling and people are among the couple's many interests. In their travels they have experienced bombings in Hong Kong, a revolution in Panama, and were caught in an elevator for 45 minutes in Sweden.

The Lindauers have six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Asked how they have gotten along these many years, Lindauer said, "Selina is a sounding board for me."

World Series: Special Time

ON BASEBALL

By GARY HUGHES

Starts Today In 'City Of Angels'

It started today in the "City of Angels." Baseball's premier attraction, the World Series. In this day and age where everything is labeled at the very least, super, the World Series still stands out.

This year's two finalists are representatives of organizations steeped in baseball lore — the Athletics and the Dodgers. No, they no longer play in Shibe Park or Ebbetts Field. They don't represent the City of Brotherly Love nor the borough of Brooklyn but neither are they the Astros or the Rangers or the Expos.

THE WORLD SERIES. What memories it brings to mind! Don Larsen striking out Dale Mitchell to finish his perfect game. Willie Mays racing into deep centerfield to catch Vic Wertz's drive with his back to the infield. The same Mays in his last time around on his knees at home plate begging umpire Augie Donatelli to change his call.

Who can forget 1962 at Candlestick Park when Willie McCovey hit a ball as hard as it could be hit. Bobby Richardson caught it and the Giants still wait. Brooks Robinson didn't get into this year's Series but his defensive play in others was unrivaled. Bob Gibson, in his effortless way, striking out 17 batters for a record.

WHEN I WAS A KID it always seemed like the Dodgers were playing the Yankees and I was too sick to go to school. Duke Snider. Carl Furillo. Roy Campanella. Carl Erskine. Jackie Robinson. Do you remember? Whitey Ford. Mickey Mantle. Yogi Berra. Gil McDougald. Boy, those were the days.

How about Bill Wambsganss? He once made a triple play all by himself. In 1955, Jackie Robinson stole home against the Yankees. In 1947 an obscure outfielder named Al Gionfriddo robbed Joe DiMaggio of a home run. Can you image that! Al Gionfriddo.

THERE HAVE BEEN so many many thrills, so many great plays, so many heroes and just as many goats. And yet one man rises aboveit all, the most dominating figure the game has known — George Herman Ruth.

Babe Ruth was simply the greatest player ever to play the game. It can't be argued. Sure you could say that many of his records have been broken. While he was a very good fielder, you might be able to come up with better. Not noted for his speed, the Babe was nonetheless an excellent baserunner. In World Series play, he stood out. His series average was .326 with 15 home runs. Fifteen home runs! In 1921 he hit .378, scored 177 runs, hit 59 home runs and drove in 170.

I'M SURE MANY STILL would argue for a favorite player as Ruth's superior. Well, here is the clincher. In addition to his many hitting records the Babe was the finest pitcher of his day. In 163 major league games, he won 94 and lost only 46. In the World Series he pitched in three games, won them all and pitched 29 consecutive scoreless innings.

Time goes on and this afternoon in Brooklyn on Flatbush Avenue I'm sure a guy cracked a cold one and yelled across the street to his neighbor, "Hey! How'd dem bums do today in da Series!"

Latest Fight May Be Costly

A's Odom Is Ailing; Fingers Set To Pitch

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Oakland A's latest fight may have cost them a pitcher for the World Series.

The A's, as renowned for their skirmishes off the field as they are for their abilities on the diamond, had two of their relief pitchers, Rollie Fingers and John "Blue Moon" Odom, square off with each other in the lockerroom yesterday and it resulted in a head wound for Fingers and an injured ankle for Odom. (Other World Series story and pictures on page 13)

Odom, who triggered the fight with a remark about Fingers' wife, was limping noticeably after the fracas and it was not known if he would be able to pitch in the Series, which begins today with the American League champion A's meeting the National League champion Los Angeles Dodgers.

Fingers, who required six stitches to seal a cut in the back of his head, showed no ill effects from the incident, however, and was expected to be ready for his familiar role as the A's No. 1 relief pitcher.

"I'm fine, I'm ready to pitch," Fingers assured Wes Stock, the A's pitching coach.

The fight between the two men lasted less than a minute. Odom's remark about Fingers' wife infuriated Fingers and the in favor of a Rhodes Scholarship at Oxford and Maurice Lucas returned to Marquette.

Besides Walton, the NBA signed 12 other first round choices and 15 second round selections.

Among the names to follow in one of the best rookie crops in recent seasons are Tom Burleson (Seattle), John Shumate (Phoenix), Mike Sojourner (Atlanta), Keith Wilkes (Golden State), Brian Winters (Los Angeles) and Gary Brokaw (Milwaukee).

Several Oakland players immediately jumped in and the whole thing was over inside a minute. Jim "Catfish" Hunter got some cotton and applied it to the cut on Fingers' head and Joe Romo, the A's trainer, administered preliminary treatment to Fingers, who subsequently was taken to the hospital and given six stitches.

When Fingers returned he pitched batting practice and also insisted on doing his running chores, almost along side Odom.

Manager Alvin Dark said he did not know the extent of Odom's injury. Dark was in his office when the fight occured. Owner Charlie Finley immediately put in a call when he heard about the fracas.

Asked what his reaction to the fight was on the eve of the World Series, Dark shrugged and said, "Que sera, sera, what will be, will be."

Fights are so common among the A's players that the other members of the team dismissed the episode as "just a friendly little thing."

GETTING READY — Oakland's ace pitcher Jim (Catfish) Hunter worked out yesterday at Dodger Stadium in Los Angeles for the World Series, which starts today. Published reports say Hunter will quit the team after the series and become a free agent because of a salary dispute with A's owner Charles Finley.

Conversion Kick Is Difference

By DAVID DEL GRANDE

An extra-point kick can mean the difference between victory and defeat. This was demonstrated last night when San Rafael High School edged Terra Linda, 7-6, in Marin County Athletic League football.

The Bulldogs mounted a 46-yard, third-quarter touchdown drive. Keith Sovig booted the decisive extra point before almost 1,500 fans at Miller Field.

After a scoreless and relatively actionless first halfin which neither club came within 30 yards of scoring, both teams came out fired up for the third quarter.

Midway through the third period, San Rafael (1-0-1) started its drive. The touchdown came two plays after a pass interference call against Terra Linda and a 22-yard pass play from Dave Steele to Jim Sherman. Steele climaxed the march with a 15-yard scoring pass to Mike McGrath. Sovig's kick made it 7-0.

The score stood until Terra Linda (1-1) took over with 3:20 left in the game. Following a short Bulldog punt which left Terra Linda at San Rafael's 34, reserve quarterback Brian Wark took over for his third consecutive series. Put into scoring position on first-down runs of nine and 12 yards by Dick Labarthe, Wark passed to receiver Dave Sanderson in the corner of the end zone. Now, it was 7-6.

But what were the Trojans to do? With only 1:14 left Terra Linda could either go for the tie (by kick) or the win (by run or pass). After a time out, the Trojans sent Labarthe on a sweep around right end, but defensive back Eric Wheeler felled him one yard short with a diving tackle. San Rafael had the win.

"Our whole defensive unit has really been remarkable thus far," exclaimed Bulldog coach Bob Muster. "But we are going to have to start moving the ball. You don't win a league scoring seven points a game." Well, thus far it has seemed to be successful so why not.

TARS' PIRINJIAN SCORES SIX GOALS

PITTSBURG — All-American Misak Pirinjian scored a school-record six goals as College of Marin routed Los Medanos, 10-1, yesterday in a Camino Norte Conference soccer game.

In winning their second league game without a loss and running their overall record to 5-4-1, the Tars had 39 shots on goal. Mike Linder, Bob Gaddini, Mark Schlobohm and Dave Hardin each scored to support Pirinjian's effort.

"Los Medanos is a first-year school, and they're just getting soccer together," said Tar coach Vic Petreshene. The 10 goals were not really indicative of how strong we are."

The Tars traveled north today for a non-league game against Santa Rosa. Marin defeated the Bear Cubs earlier in the season, 5-1.

A real test of Marin's strength will come next Friday, when the Tars host Camino Norte favorite Canada of Redwood City, currently the No. 1 ranked junior college team in California.

"What we awer able to do yesterday we won't be able to do against Canada," Petreshene said.

TARS' PIRINJIAN SCORES SIX GOALS

PITTSBURG — All-American Misak Pirinjian scored a school-record six goals as College of Marin routed Los Medanos, 10-1, yesterday in a Camino Norte Conference soccer game.

In winning their second league game without a loss and running their overall record to 5-4-1, the Tars had 39 shots on goal. Mike Linder, Bob Gaddini, Mark Schlobohm and Dave Hardin each scored to support Pirinjian's effort.

"Los Medanos is a first-year school, and they're just getting soccer together," said Tar coach Vic Petreshene. The 10 goals were not really indicative of how strong we are."

The Tars traveled north today for a non-league game against Santa Rosa. Marin defeated the Bear Cubs earlier in the season, 5-1.

A real test of Marin's strength will come next Friday, when the Tars host Camino Norte favorite Canada of Redwood City, currently the No. 1 ranked junior college team in California.

"What we awer able to do yesterday we won't be able to do against Canada," Petreshene said.

World Series: Special Time

ON BASEBALL

By GARY HUGHES

Starts Today In 'City Of Angels'

It started today in the "City of Angels." Baseball's premier attraction, the World Series. In this day and age where everything is labeled at the very least, super, the World Series still stands out.

This year's two finalists are representatives of organizations steeped in baseball lore — the Athletics and the Dodgers. No, they no longer play in Shibe Park or Ebbetts Field. They don't represent the City of Brotherly Love nor the borough of Brooklyn but neither are they the Astros or the Rangers or the Expos.

THE WORLD SERIES. What memories it brings to mind! Don Larsen striking out Dale Mitchell to finish his perfect game. Willie Mays racing into deep centerfield to catch Vic Wertz's drive with his back to the infield. The same Mays in his last time around on his knees at home plate begging umpire Augie Donatelli to change his call.

Who can forget 1962 at Candlestick Park when Willie McCovey hit a ball as hard as it could be hit. Bobby Richardson caught it and the Giants still wait. Brooks Robinson didn't get into this year's Series but his defensive play in others was unrivaled. Bob Gibson, in his effortless way, striking out 17 batters for a record.

WHEN I WAS A KID it always seemed like the Dodgers were playing the Yankees and I was too sick to go to school. Duke Snider. Carl Furillo. Roy Campanella. Carl Erskine. Jackie Robinson. Do you remember? Whitey Ford. Mickey Mantle. Yogi Berra. Gil McDougald. Boy, those were the days.

How about Bill Wambsganss? He once made a triple play all by himself. In 1955, Jackie Robinson stole home against the Yankees. In 1947 an obscure outfielder named Al Gionfriddo robbed Joe DiMaggio of a home run. Can you image that! Al Gionfriddo.

THERE HAVE BEEN so many many thrills, so many great plays, so many heroes and just as many goats. And yet one man rises aboveit all, the most dominating figure the game has known — George Herman Ruth.

Babe Ruth was simply the greatest player ever to play the game. It can't be argued. Sure you could say that many of his records have been broken. While he was a very good fielder, you might be able to come up with better. Not noted for his speed, the Babe was nonetheless an excellent baserunner. In World Series play, he stood out. His series average was .326 with 15 home runs. Fifteen home runs! In 1921 he hit .378, scored 177 runs, hit 59 home runs and drove in 170.

I'M SURE MANY STILL would argue for a favorite player as Ruth's superior. Well, here is the clincher. In addition to his many hitting records the Babe was the finest pitcher of his day. In 163 major league games, he won 94 and lost only 46. In the World Series he pitched in three games, won them all and pitched 29 consecutive scoreless innings.

Time goes on and this afternoon in Brooklyn on Flatbush Avenue I'm sure a guy cracked a cold one and yelled across the street to his neighbor, "Hey! How'd dem bums do today in da Series!"

Latest Fight May Be Costly

A's Odom Is Ailing; Fingers Set To Pitch

GETTING READY — Oakland's ace pitcher Jim (Catfish) Hunter worked out yesterday at Dodger Stadium in Los Angeles for the World Series, which starts today. Published reports say Hunter will quit the team after the series and become a free agent because of a salary dispute with A's owner Charles Finley.

(UPI Telephoto)

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Oakland A's latest fight may have cost them a pitcher for the World Series.

The A's, as renowned for their skirmishes off the field as they are for their abilities on the diamond, had two of their relief pitchers, Rollie Fingers and John "Blue Moon" Odom, square off with each other in the lockerroom yesterday and it resulted in a head wound for Fingers and an injured ankle for Odom. (Other World Series story and pictures on page 13)

Odom, who triggered the fight with a remark about Fingers' wife, was limping noticeably after the fracas and it was not known if he would be able to pitch in the Series, which begins today with the American League champion A's meeting the National League champion Los Angeles Dodgers.

JOHN ODOM
Injured ankle

Fingers, who required six stitches to seal a cut in the back of his head, showed no ill effects from the incident, however, and was expected to be ready for his familiar role as the A's No. 1 relief pitcher.

"I'm fine, I'm ready to pitch," Fingers assured Wes Stock, the A's pitching coach.

The fight between the two men lasted less than a minute. Odom's remark about Fingers' wife infuriated Fingers and the in favor of a Rhodes Scholarship at Oxford and Maurice Lucas returned to Marquette.

Besides Walton, the NBA signed 12 other first round choices and 15 second round selections.

Among the names to follow in one of the best rookie crops in recent seasons are Tom Burleson (Seattle), John Shumate (Phoenix), Mike Sojourner (Atlanta), Keith Wilkes (Golden State), Brian Winters (Los Angeles) and Gary Brokaw (Milwaukee).

Several Oakland players immediately jumped in and the whole thing was over inside a minute. Jim "Catfish" Hunter got some cotton and applied it to the cut on Fingers' head and Joe Romo, the A's trainer, administered preliminary treatment to Fingers, who subsequently was taken to the hospital and given six stitches.

When Fingers returned he pitched batting practice and also insisted on doing his running chores, almost along side Odom.

Manager Alvin Dark said he did not know the extent of Odom's injury. Dark was in his office when the fight occured. Owner Charlie Finley immediately put in a call when he heard about the fracas.

Asked what his reaction to the fight was on the eve of the World Series, Dark shrugged and said, "Que sera, sera, what will be, will be."

Fights are so common among the A's players that the other members of the team dismissed the episode as "just a friendly little thing."

WHILE WAITING FOR MONEY

Unhappy Florida Just May Say: 'No Pay, No Play!'

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Florida Blazers, unhappy about missing salary checks for a month, are talking about issuing a "no pay, no play" ultimatum to the World Football League.

Quarterback Bob Davis, Florida's player representative, indicated that today was the informal deadline for the financially woe-stricken WFL to deliver the checks. He promised decisive action if the team was not paid.

"If we don't get paid Saturday, I'll have a team meeting and my vote will be not to play the next game," said Davis.

The Blazers, leading the WFL Eastern Division with an 11-4 record, are scheduled to play next Wednesday at Memphis.

"The league is already in default on its contract with the players," said linebacker Billy Hobbs. "If we don't get the money Saturday there are going to be definite problems."

The WFL, which has already given each Blazer $200, said enough money had been sent to Orlando, Fla., to provide each player with half of his back pay. But the money did not arrive yesterday as planned.

The league, which has taken over the Blazers from managing general partner Rommie Loudd, also was having problems with two other weak franchises it owns — the Jacksonville Sharks and the Detroit Wheels.

WFL Commissioner Gary Davidson — who says the two teams are not folding — has ordered that Jacksonville and Detroit be removed from the league's 1974 scheduled. They each had five games remaining.

Miami builder Maston O'Neal Jr., said yesterday he was ready to take over the Sharks as soon as WFL officials arrived to close the deal.

Sharks players have begun looking for jobs to tide them over until the franchise situation can be resolved.

And if weekend conferences to revive the Jacksonville franchise for 1975 are successful, the players will own a share of the Sharks, says player representative Ike Lassiter.

"There's never been a deal like this before," Lassiter said. "The players, the whole roster including the taxi squad, will own shares in the team."

Unlike Detroit, which has no significant jumpers, Jacksonville had signed a host of well-known National Football League players to future contracts. And their status also has become indefinite.

"It was my understanding that if the club folded, we'd be paid anyway," said tight end Chip Glass, uncertain about leaving the New York Giants in 1975 as scheduled to join the Sharks.

NATIONAL FOOTBALL LEAGUE

Are Cardinals For Real?

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Apparently people still don't believe the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Cardinals are 4-0 and have given up only 29 points this season, the lowest total in the National Football League, and Sunday they play host to the Dallas Cowboys, who have lost three straight games after opening with a 24-0 rout of Atlanta.

You'd think the Cardinals would be favorites. Well, you'd be wrong.

The oddsmakers apparently think the Cardinals' bubble will burst this week and have established the Cowboys as three-point favorites.

A loss to St. Louis would put Dallas four games back and even the annual Cowboy closing rush might have trouble making up a deficit like that.

While Dallas' offense has had trouble getting untracked, the Cardinals have been explosive. Terry Metcalf has a 75-yard run from scrimmage and a 94-yard kickoff return for touchdowns to his credit and seven of St. Louis' 11 TDs this season have come from 56 yards or longer.

And the Cardinal defense, almost non-existent last year, suddenly has come to life, dropping opposing quarterbacks 13 times while giving up an average of only seven points a game.

The other surprise team this season, the unbeaten New England Patriots, also face a big task but they still rank as three-point favorites. The Patriots are in New York to face Joe Namath and the Jets and they haven't been able to beat Namath since his rookie year of 1965.

Wait Ends For Seals' Rookie Goalie

OAKLAND (UPI) — "I've waited 10 years for this moment," said 30-year-old rookie goalie Gary Simmons after recording a shutout in his National Hockey League debut.

The big California Seals netminder stopped 24 Atlanta shots in leading the rejuvenated Seals to a 3-0 win over the Flames, who absorbed their first defeat of the season, including a string of exhibition triumphs.

The game, the only one in the NHL last night, was a lot closer than the score indicates as Flames goalie Phil Myre also turned in two shutout periods.

But things exploded in the third stanza when Ron Huston took a pass from defenseman Ted McAneeley at 11:14 and scored from 10 feet out.

It was still only 1-0 when the night's most controversial play occurred. Jacques Richard drove in on the left side from 10 feet and fired a shot which the Flames thought had tied the count.

Simmons asserted later that "the puck hit my shoulder, bounced off the crossbar and landed in front of me. I picked it up. The referee saw it all the way."

Simmons played for Phoenix of the now-defunct Western Hockey League where he won frequent all-star honors. He was signed in the off-season by the Seals.

"My men played super in front of me," Simmons said of his impressive debut.

California scored its final two goals in the last minute of play as Morris Mott and Stan Weir registered goals. That gave Weir three goals in two games as the Seals improved their record to 1-0-1.

First period—No scoring. Penalties: Bialowas 3:29, Bennett 10:10.

Petaluma High School may win its third straight North Bay League football championship if last night's game against Hogan was any indication. The Trojans (2-0 in league) won, 28-19, on Durst Field.

Petaluma quarterback Sam Piezzi and wide receiver Rick Schroeder proved to be the winning combination, hooking up for touchdown passes of 27,12, and 25 yards. Paul Ramatici ran 17 yards for the other Trojan touchdown.

Hogan rallied in the fourth quarter, recovering a Trojan fumble at the Petaluma five. Running back Joe Smith then ran it in for the six points.

With five minutes left in the game, the Spartans tried to catch up as Derwin Boyd caught two touchdown passes from quarterback Armand Chiono covering 52 and 40 yards, but time ran out.

Reggie's Pals Aren't So Nice

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — "Gee, you're nice," a woman told Oakland outfielder Reggie Jackson when he gave her his autograph after several other A's had ignored her while getting on a bus to head for a workout at Dodger Stadium.

"But some of your friends on the bus aren't so nice," she said.

Jackson replied, "Lady, this is the Oakland A's. There are no friends on the bus."

Mays: Robinson To Make Good

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Willie Mays doesn't have any doubts that Frank Robinson, baseball's first black manager, will do "a helluva good job" for the Cleveland Indians next year.

The only problem Willie foresees for Robinson is his decision to take on the designated hitter chores for the Tribe along with the many responsibilities of a big league manager.

"Just managing is enough pressure on him I think," said Mays. "I can't see him holding up all season doing both. If he does, he'll be a super manager.

"I just hope he surrounds himself with some good coaches. I mean guys who'll be for him 100 per cent. What he'll need is one coach who'll be almost a second manager."

Willie said he figured Robinson would get the Indians' managers job when he was sold to Cleveland by the California Angels.

"But, if you'd asked me, say five years ago, who'd be the first black manager, I'd said Junior Gilliam. He's quiet, observing and has had years of schooling while serving as a coach under Walt Alston with the Dodgers."

Does Willie see any special problems for Robinson?

"Most of Robby's problems are behind him," Mays said. "He has mellowed. He has learned you can't hollar at people. You gotta play it cool.

"But, I don't envy him. Managing isn't for me. I never gave one thought to managing.

"You gotta handle 25 players who are all different. I didn't want the aggravation. Twentythree years as a player was enough for me. Now, I want my independence and freedom to do anything I want.

"Hell, you're more locked up as a manager than as a player. Its a lonely job."

Novice Swimming Program Offered

Terra Linda Soccer Team Triumphs, 1-0

Terra Linda High School scored early and then depended on the goalkeeping of Jim Carew to preserve a 1-0 victory over Novato yesterday that kept the Trojans undefeated in Marin County Athletic League soccer.

The win was the fourth for the Trojans against two ties and kept them right behind the Redwood Giants, who ran their record to 6-0 with a 6-1 triumph over Marin Catholic. In other MCAL games, Drake downed San Rafael, 4-2 while Tamalpais and San Marin tied, 2-2.

Ken Tompkins scored Terra Linda's goal with 15 minutes gone in the first half. Carew, who stopped two penalty shots Tuesday against Marin Catholic, recorded his third straight shutout.

Standings — Redwood, 6-0; Terra Linda, 4-0-2; San Marin, 3-1-2; Drake, 3-2-1; Novato, 2-3-1; Tamalpais, 2-3-1; Marin Catholic, 0-5-1; San Rafael, 0-6.

A loss to St. Louis would put Dallas four games back and even the annual Cowboy closing rush might have trouble making up a deficit like that.

While Dallas' offense has had trouble getting untracked, the Cardinals have been explosive. Terry Metcalf has a 75-yard run from scrimmage and a 94-yard kickoff return for touchdowns to his credit and seven of St. Louis' 11 TDs this season have come from 56 yards or longer.

And the Cardinal defense, almost non-existent last year, suddenly has come to life, dropping opposing quarterbacks 13 times while giving up an average of only seven points a game.

The other surprise team this season, the unbeaten New England Patriots, also face a big task but they still rank as three-point favorites. The Patriots are in New York to face Joe Namath and the Jets and they haven't been able to beat Namath since his rookie year of 1965.

Wait Ends For Seals' Rookie Goalie

OAKLAND (UPI) — "I've waited 10 years for this moment," said 30-year-old rookie goalie Gary Simmons after recording a shutout in his National Hockey League debut.

The big California Seals netminder stopped 24 Atlanta shots in leading the rejuvenated Seals to a 3-0 win over the Flames, who absorbed their first defeat of the season, including a string of exhibition triumphs.

The game, the only one in the NHL last night, was a lot closer than the score indicates as Flames goalie Phil Myre also turned in two shutout periods.

But things exploded in the third stanza when Ron Huston took a pass from defenseman Ted McAneeley at 11:14 and scored from 10 feet out.

It was still only 1-0 when the night's most controversial play occurred. Jacques Richard drove in on the left side from 10 feet and fired a shot which the Flames thought had tied the count.

Simmons asserted later that "the puck hit my shoulder, bounced off the crossbar and landed in front of me. I picked it up. The referee saw it all the way."

Simmons played for Phoenix of the now-defunct Western Hockey League where he won frequent all-star honors. He was signed in the off-season by the Seals.

"My men played super in front of me," Simmons said of his impressive debut.

California scored its final two goals in the last minute of play as Morris Mott and Stan Weir registered goals. That gave Weir three goals in two games as the Seals improved their record to 1-0-1.

Petaluma May Be On Way To Title

By DIANE FISHER

Petaluma High School may win its third straight North Bay League football championship if last night's game against Hogan was any indication. The Trojans (2-0 in league) won, 28-19, on Durst Field.

Petaluma quarterback Sam Piezzi and wide receiver Rick Schroeder proved to be the winning combination, hooking up for touchdown passes of 27,12, and 25 yards. Paul Ramatici ran 17 yards for the other Trojan touchdown.

Hogan rallied in the fourth quarter, recovering a Trojan fumble at the Petaluma five. Running back Joe Smith then ran it in for the six points.

With five minutes left in the game, the Spartans tried to catch up as Derwin Boyd caught two touchdown passes from quarterback Armand Chiono covering 52 and 40 yards, but time ran out.

Reggie's Pals Aren't So Nice

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — "Gee, you're nice," a woman told Oakland outfielder Reggie Jackson when he gave her his autograph after several other A's had ignored her while getting on a bus to head for a workout at Dodger Stadium.

"But some of your friends on the bus aren't so nice," she said.

Jackson replied, "Lady, this is the Oakland A's. There are no friends on the bus."

Mays: Robinson To Make Good

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Willie Mays doesn't have any doubts that Frank Robinson, baseball's first black manager, will do "a helluva good job" for the Cleveland Indians next year.

The only problem Willie foresees for Robinson is his decision to take on the designated hitter chores for the Tribe along with the many responsibilities of a big league manager.

"Just managing is enough pressure on him I think," said Mays. "I can't see him holding up all season doing both. If he does, he'll be a super manager.

"I just hope he surrounds himself with some good coaches. I mean guys who'll be for him 100 per cent. What he'll need is one coach who'll be almost a second manager."

Willie said he figured Robinson would get the Indians' managers job when he was sold to Cleveland by the California Angels.

"But, if you'd asked me, say five years ago, who'd be the first black manager, I'd said Junior Gilliam. He's quiet, observing and has had years of schooling while serving as a coach under Walt Alston with the Dodgers."

Does Willie see any special problems for Robinson?

"Most of Robby's problems are behind him," Mays said. "He has mellowed. He has learned you can't hollar at people. You gotta play it cool.

"But, I don't envy him. Managing isn't for me. I never gave one thought to managing.

"You gotta handle 25 players who are all different. I didn't want the aggravation. Twentythree years as a player was enough for me. Now, I want my independence and freedom to do anything I want.

"Hell, you're more locked up as a manager than as a player. Its a lonely job."

Novice Swimming Program Offered

Marin Aquatic Club will conduct a novice swimming program beginning Monday and running through Dec. 20 at the Terra Linda and San Rafael high school pools.

Classes of 45 minutes each will be held Monday through Thursday, beginning at 5:30 p.m. at Terra Linda and 6 at San Rafael. The program, designed as an introduction to competitive swimming, is open to children from six to 12 who can swim.

The program costs $15 per child. Preregistration is not necessary.

Terra Linda Soccer Team Triumphs, 1-0

Terra Linda High School scored early and then depended on the goalkeeping of Jim Carew to preserve a 1-0 victory over Novato yesterday that kept the Trojans undefeated in Marin County Athletic League soccer.

The win was the fourth for the Trojans against two ties and kept them right behind the Redwood Giants, who ran their record to 6-0 with a 6-1 triumph over Marin Catholic. In other MCAL games, Drake downed San Rafael, 4-2 while Tamalpais and San Marin tied, 2-2.

Ken Tompkins scored Terra Linda's goal with 15 minutes gone in the first half. Carew, who stopped two penalty shots Tuesday against Marin Catholic, recorded his third straight shutout.

Standings — Redwood, 6-0; Terra Linda, 4-0-2; San Marin, 3-1-2; Drake, 3-2-1; Novato, 2-3-1; Tamalpais, 2-3-1; Marin Catholic, 0-5-1; San Rafael, 0-6.

Warriors Accentuate Decline In S.F.

THE TIPOFF:

San Francisco's decline as a major league sports market will be further accentuated when the pro basketball Warriors, who call themselves Golden Gate, pull complete stakes out of the city and even take their business office over to Oakland where they play their games anyhow.

Q. If a good hitting pitcher such as Ken Brett was traded from the National to the American League, could he be inserted as the designated hitter even though he's pitching? Could Brett be inserted as the DH if someone slse was pitching? — Fred Burns, Westerly, R.I.

Of course, on both counts. The American League rule on designated hitters wasn't intended to discriminate against pitchers. Guys like Catfish Hunter of the Oakland Athletics are perfectly capable of swinging their own bats but because pitchins is so important, AL managers prefer they concentrate all their attention on that specialty and leave the hitting to others, except during the World Series when pitchers of both teams must bat. That's why you still see AL pitchers taking batting practice. Only the opposition of Chub Feeney is keeping the NL from falling into line on the designated hitter syndrome.

Q. I want to know who won the NFC rushing title last year, John Brockington or Calvin Hill? Who came in third and how many yards did Larry Brown have? — Sebron Russell, Oakland, Calif.

Brockington of the Packers, topping the 1,000 mark for the third straight year (the only man in NFL history to achieve that in his first three pro seasons), led the NFC with 1,144 yards, a scant two yards more than the Cowboys' Hill. Lawrence McCutcheon, the nominal rookie of the Rams, was third at 1,097. Larry Brown, limited by injuries, gained 860 yards, low point of his five-year career. If Brockington played in a more publicized situation, he'd be right up there with O.J. as an attraction — his record with the up-and-down Packers is phenomenal.

Q. I maintain that Don Larsen, of perfect no-hit World Series fame, never beat the Cleveland Indians while pitching for the Yankees. Am I right or wrong? — Anthony J. Hess, Brooklyn, Ohio.

You maintain right. In fact for all his fame, old Goony Bird, who now lives and works quietly in San Jose, Calif., shows a career deficit as a major league pitcher — 81 won, 91 lost — his high mark being the 11 games he won in 1956, the year he pitched his Series classic against the Dodgers. Quick, who was the final batter in that game? Answer: Dale Mitchell.

Q. Can you tell me how many times Sugar Ray Robinson fought Jake LaMotta and did he win them all? Where is Sugar Ray now? — T.L., Rahway, N.J.

Over a period of 10 years, 1942-51, Sugar Ray and Jake fought five times. Jake won only the second bout, a 10-round decision in Detroit on Feb. 5, 1943, an upset which Sugar Ray reversed exactly three weeks later. Their last bout, for the middleweight title, was stopped with defending champ Jake out on his feet after 13 rounds. Sugar Ray is now located in Los Angeles doing youth rehabililitation work.

Q. How much more is the NBA and ABA planning to expand? Will there be a merger? If so, when? — Richard Patterson, Urbana, Ill.

The NBA is expanding into New Orleans this season and Toronto next year, giving them an unwieldy total of 19 teams — and making San Diego, which had been rumored for a franchise, the likely 20th. The ABA is fighting like hell to hold on to what it's got. Merger prospects, which go up and down like a yo-yo, are currently in a state of suspension.

PARTING SHOT:

The strongest overall squad in pro football still belongs to the Oakland Raiders but they'll miss being a Super Bowl team until they pick up a super back — the ones they have are good but in football today you need a Mercury Morris, a Churck Foremann or a Franco Harris to put you over the top.

Defense Keys Rancho Victory

FORESTVILLE — An impressive display of defensive strength gave Rancho Cotate High School its first Sonoma County League football victory of the season. The Cougars (1-1) blanked El Molino here, 10-0, last night.

Although El Molino (2-2) threatened three times, the strong Cougar defense held at the Rancho 10.

A 25-yard field goal by Mike Balliett opened the scoring in the fourth quarter. John Curtin later sprinted 35 yards for a touchdown. Balliett's extra point kick concluded the scoring.

Rancho — Balliett 25 field goal.
Rancho — Curtin 35 run (Balliett kick).

DANNY ABRAMOWICZ
Big, big game

ABRAMOWICZ

Worried Sick Over Record

DETROIT (UPI) — For eight years now Danny Abramowicz has caught everything except the flu and a shutout. Now he's worried sick about being thrown a blank.

Monday night's nationally televised offering is just another National Football League game to the participants, the host Detroit Lions and the San Francisco Forty Niners. (The game will be televised at 6 o'clock on Channel 7.)

For Abramowicz, wide receiver of the Forty Niners, it's a big, big game.

One pass. One catch. That's all Abramowicz needs to go down in the agate print of the NFL record book beside Lance Alworth in the category: "Most Consecutive Games, Pass receptions, 96."

Alworth was denied the opportunity to extend his streak to 97 games because no passes were thrown his way in the 97th. There is a distinct possibility of that happening to Abramowicz Monday night.

The Xavier University product has oozed his streak along by the barest of margins so far this season — exactly one catch in each of San Francisco's four games.

But this time coach Dick Nolan is starting left-handed first-year quarterback Dennis Morrison in place of the recently ineffective Joe Reed.

That doesn't necessarily mean no passes. But couple Morrison's inexperience with a statistical tendency of the Forty Niners and you get one worried wide receiver. The team leads the conference in rushing but is dead last in throwing the ball.

"I'm very concerned about breaking the record," Abramowicz said prior to the game. "This thing goes back eight years now.

"I'm very proud of the streak," said San Francisco's 1973 acquisition from the New Orleans Saints, "but it brings a lot of pressure each game. I try not to think about it but I can't.

"One a game isn't the way I want it, but what bothers me even more is that I'm not able to contribute more to get our offense going," he said.

Even more remarkable about Abramowicz's streak is that his speed more resembles a truck than a bullet. Were it not for his snake-like moves over a pass route he would never have been around long enough to catch a pass in one game, let alone 95.

The Lions, still looking for their first victory while the Forty Niners are 2-2, give further statistical credence to the probability of a San Francisco game plan grounded on running. Detroit rates last in defense against the rush.

Tennis Postponed

TOKYO (UPI) — Rain caused the postponement of today's matches in the Japan Open, with the remaining finals rescheduled for tomorrow and Monday at the Denen Tennis Club courts.

A's, Dodgers Are Worlds Apart

Clubs As Different As Owners

By KEN RAPPOPORT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers and Oakland A's play baseball in the same state, but live in two different worlds.

O'Malley, a member of the old-line establishment, rules the Dodgers with an iron hand but lets competent lieutenants run the show on the field. Finley, a maverick owner who walks to his own music, not only pulls the strings at Oakland but keeps a meddlesome thumb in every area, including managing the team.

These striking differences were dramatically apparent as the National League champion Dodgers and American League champion A's met in the 1974 World Series opener today. (The second game will be televised tomorrow at 1 p.m. from Los Angeles on channel 4.)

O'Malley and Finley are plainly cut from different cloth and their organizations reflect their widely-divergent baseball styles.

O'Malley, the Dodgers' chairman of the board, has structured perhaps the most powerful organization in baseball. After moving the Dodgers to Los Angeles from Brooklyn in 1958 O'Malley has built a solid, gold empire. Millions flock each year to Dodger Stadium, a palm-lined sports palace known as O'Malley's taj Mahal.

(UPI Telephoto)

Finley, who left Kansas City in a hurry because of no support, got little more at Oakland when he moved the A's there in 1968. While the Dodgers have presented a solid, united front in their years in California, Finley's reign has been often tumultuous.

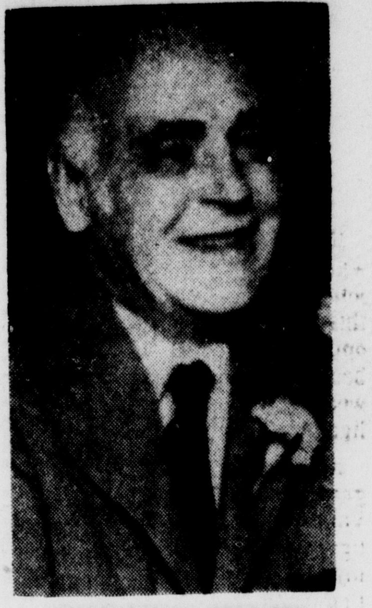
The Dodgers have rarely washed their dirty linen in public. Internal fueds are kept to a minimum, and rarely publicized. With the Dodgers, everything is a family affair.

With the eccentric Finley in charge of the A's, such harmonius rythym has not been possible. The A's family brawls are widely known. Players talk freely of their disenchantment with management. Finley himself has been the target of their roadside blasts, especially his penchant for ordering strategic moves by his manager on the telephone from the stands.

The Dodgers hold onto their good people, while Finley has gotten rid of a lot of his often on whim. The classic Dodger example is manager Walter Alton, now in his 21st season. The Dodger heriarchy is structured with family members and long-time friends. O'Malley even brought an announcer with him from Brooklyn and Vince Scully is still the "Voice of the Dodgers" after all these years.

Finley has not only had a lot of different managers in his time, but has shuffled people in and out of his organization like a Mississippi gambler.

The Mike Andrews Affair has been one of Finley's most notorious and celebrated cases. The former Oakland infielder, apparently dropped by Finley for making errors in the 1973 World Series, has filed a $2.5 million law suit against the Oakland boss for defamation of character.



CHARLES O. FINLEY
Different approaches

Observers don't expect it to be the last bit of trouble for Finley. Then there's the case of Jim Hunter . . .

Raiders 15-Point Favorites Over San Diego Tomorrow

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The Oakland Raiders, despite the questionable status of their leading passer and leading rusher, loom as 15-point favorites when they visit the San Diego Chargers tomorrow at 1 p.m. (The game will be televised on Channel 44.)

Quarterback Ken Stabler and running back Clarence Davis suffered knee injuries in last week's win over Cleveland. Charlie Smith, who has been out two weeks with an injury, was expected to replace Davis.

Stabler's injury was not as severe and he was expected to start with Daryle Lamonica, who always beats the Chargers, waiting in the wings.

San Diego has not beaten the Raiders since 1968, but Oakland coach John Madden does not feel overconfident.

"They had different offensive ideas last year but now they're pretty solid," he said of the Chargers. "They're running more and better, particularly to the outside."

The big man for San Diego has been running back Don Woods, acquired from Green Bay for the waiver price. In two games plus one play in a third, Woods has gained 311 yards and has averaged 7.6 yards a carry. He trails American Conference rushing leader O. J. Simpson by only nine yards.

"It's guys like this that have turned San Diego around," Madden said.

Woods, augmented by fullback Cid Edwards, has made the Chargers first in the conference in rushing. The passing of Dan Fouts to league-leading receiver Gary Garrison also should cause the Raiders trouble, but Oakland defenders already have intercepted 13 passes, and San Diego may prefer to stick to the ground.

Oakland showed a balanced attack last week, running for 222 yards and passing for 223. Small but speedy Cliff Branch has replaced Fred Biletnikoff as the team's leading receiver.

Warriors Accentuate Decline In S.F.

THE TIPOFF:

San Francisco's decline as a major league sports market will be further accentuated when the pro basketball Warriors, who call themselves Golden Gate, pull complete stakes out of the city and even take their business office over to Oakland where they play their games anyhow.

Q. If a good hitting pitcher such as Ken Brett was traded from the National to the American League, could he be inserted as the designated hitter even though he's pitching? Could Brett be inserted as the DH if someone slse was pitching? — Fred Burns, Westerly, R.I.

Of course, on both counts. The American League rule on designated hitters wasn't intended to discriminate against pitchers. Guys like Catfish Hunter of the Oakland Athletics are perfectly capable of swinging their own bats but because pitchins is so important, AL managers prefer they concentrate all their attention on that specialty and leave the hitting to others, except during the World Series when pitchers of both teams must bat. That's why you still see AL pitchers taking batting practice. Only the opposition of Chub Feeney is keeping the NL from falling into line on the designated hitter syndrome.

Q. I want to know who won the NFC rushing title last year, John Brockington or Calvin Hill? Who came in third and how many yards did Larry Brown have? — Sebron Russell, Oakland, Calif.,.

Brockington of the Packers, topping the 1,000 mark for the third straight year (the only man in NFL history to achieve that in his first three pro seasons), led the NFC with 1,144 yards, a scant two yards more than the Cowboys' Hill. Lawrence McCutcheon, the nominal rookie of the Rams, was third at 1,097. Larry Brown, limited by injuries, gained 860 yards, low point of his five-year career. If Brockington played in a more publicized situation, he'd be right up there with O.J. as an attraction — his record with the up-and-down Packers is phenomenal.

Q. I maintain that Don Larsen, of perfect no-hit World Series fame, never beat the Cleveland Indians while pitching for the Yankees. Am I right or wrong? — Anthony J. Hess, Brooklyn, Ohio.

You maintain right. In fact for all his fame, old Goony Bird, who now lives and works quietly in San Jose, Calif., shows a career deficit as a major league pitcher — 81 won, 91 lost — his high mark being the 11 games he won in 1956, the year he pitched his Series classic against the Dodgers. Quick, who was the final batter in that game? Answer: Dale Mitchell.

Q. Can you tell me how many times Sugar Ray Robinson fought Jake LaMotta and did he win them all? Where is Sugar Ray now? — T.L., Rahway, N.J.

Over a period of 10 years, 1942-51, Sugar Ray and Jake fought five times. Jake won only the second bout, a 10-round decision in Detroit on Feb. 5, 1943, an upset which Sugar Ray reversed exactly three weeks later. Their last bout, for the middleweight title, was stopped with defending champ Jake out on his feet after 13 rounds. Sugar Ray is now located in Los Angeles doing youth rehabililitation work.

Q. How much more is the NBA and ABA planning to expand? Will there be a merger? If so, when? — Richard Patterson, Urbana, Ill.

The NBA is expanding into New Orleans this season and Toronto next year, giving them an unwieldy total of 19 teams — and making San Diego, which had been rumored for a franchise, the likely 20th. The ABA is fighting like hell to hold on to what it's got. Merger prospects, which go up and down like a yo-yo, are currently in a state of suspension.

PARTING SHOT:

The strongest overall squad in pro football still belongs to the Oakland Raiders but they'll miss being a Super Bowl team until they pick up a super back — the ones they have are good but in football today you need a Mercury Morris, a Churck Foremann or a Franco Harris to put you over the top.

Defense Keys Rancho Victory

FORESTVILLE — An impressive display of defensive strength gave Rancho Cotate High School its first Sonoma County League football victory of the season. The Cougars (1-1) blanked El Molino here, 10-0, last night.

Although El Molino (2-2) threatened three times, the strong Cougar defense held at the Rancho 10.

A 25-yard field goal by Mike Balliett opened the scoring in the fourth quarter. John Curtin later sprinted 35 yards for a touchdown. Balliett's extra point kick concluded the scoring.

Rancho — Balliett 25 field goal.
Rancho — Curtin 35 run (Balliett kick).

DANNY ABRAMOWICZ
Big, big game

ABRAMOWICZ

Worried Sick Over Record

DETROIT (UPI) — For eight years now Danny Abramowicz has caught everything except the flu and a shutout. Now he's worried sick about being thrown a blank.

Monday night's nationally televised offering is just another National Football League game to the participants, the host Detroit Lions and the San Francisco Forty Niners. (The game will be televised at 6 o'clock on Channel 7.)

For Abramowicz, wide receiver of the Forty Niners, it's a big, big game.

One pass. One catch. That's all Abramowicz needs to go down in the agate print of the NFL record book beside Lance Alworth in the category: "Most Consecutive Games, Pass receptions, 96."

Alworth was denied the opportunity to extend his streak to 97 games because no passes were thrown his way in the 97th. There is a distinct possibility of that happening to Abramowicz Monday night.

The Xavier University product has oozed his streak along by the barest of margins so far this season — exactly one catch in each of San Francisco's four games.

But this time coach Dick Nolan is starting left-handed first-year quarterback Dennis Morrison in place of the recently ineffective Joe Reed.

That doesn't necessarily mean no passes. But couple Morrison's inexperience with a statistical tendency of the Forty Niners and you get one worried wide receiver. The team leads the conference in rushing but is dead last in throwing the ball.

"I'm very concerned about breaking the record," Abramowicz said prior to the game. "This thing goes back eight years now.

"I'm very proud of the streak," said San Francisco's 1973 acquisition from the New Orleans Saints, "but it brings a lot of pressure each game. I try not to think about it but I can't.

"One a game isn't the way I want it, but what bothers me even more is that I'm not able to contribute more to get our offense going," he said.

Even more remarkable about Abramowicz's streak is that his speed more resembles a truck than a bullet. Were it not for his snake-like moves over a pass route he would never have been around long enough to catch a pass in one game, let alone 95.

The Lions, still looking for their first victory while the Forty Niners are 2-2, give further statistical credence to the probability of a San Francisco game plan grounded on running. Detroit rates last in defense against the rush.

Tennis Postponed

TOKYO (UPI) — Rain caused the postponement of today's matches in the Japan Open, with the remaining finals rescheduled for tomorrow and Monday at the Denen Tennis Club courts.

A's, Dodgers Are Worlds Apart

Clubs As Different As Owners

By KEN RAPPOPORT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers and Oakland A's play baseball in the same state, but live in two different worlds.

O'Malley, a member of the old-line establishment, rules the Dodgers with an iron hand but lets competent lieutenants run the show on the field. Finley, a maverick owner who walks to his own music, not only pulls the strings at Oakland but keeps a meddlesome thumb in every area, including managing the team.

These striking differences were dramatically apparent as the National League champion Dodgers and American League champion A's met in the 1974 World Series opener today. (The second game will be televised tomorrow at 1 p.m. from Los Angeles on channel 4.)

O'Malley and Finley are plainly cut from different cloth and their organizations reflect their widely-divergent baseball styles.

O'Malley, the Dodgers' chairman of the board, has structured perhaps the most powerful organization in baseball. After moving the Dodgers to Los Angeles from Brooklyn in 1958 O'Malley has built a solid, gold empire. Millions flock each year to Dodger Stadium, a palm-lined sports palace known as O'Malley's taj Mahal.

(UPI Telephoto)

Finley, who left Kansas City in a hurry because of no support, got little more at Oakland when he moved the A's there in 1968. While the Dodgers have presented a solid, united front in their years in California, Finley's reign has been often tumultuous.

The Dodgers have rarely washed their dirty linen in public. Internal fueds are kept to a minimum, and rarely publicized. With the Dodgers, everything is a family affair.

With the eccentric Finley in charge of the A's, such harmonius rythym has not been possible. The A's family brawls are widely known. Players talk freely of their disenchantment with management. Finley himself has been the target of their roadside blasts, especially his penchant for ordering strategic moves by his manager on the telephone from the stands.

The Dodgers hold onto their good people, while Finley has gotten rid of a lot of his often on whim. The classic Dodger example is manager Walter Alton, now in his 21st season. The Dodger heriarchy is structured with family members and longtime friends. O'Malley even abrought an announcer with him from Brooklyn and Vince Scully is still the "Voice of the Dodgers" after all these years.

Finley has not only had a lot of different managers in his time, but has shuffled people in and out of his organization like a Mississippi gambler.

The Mike Andrews Affair has been one of Finley's most notorious and celebrated cases. The former Oakland infielder, apparently dropped by Finley for making errors in the 1973 World Series, has filed a $2.5 million law suit against the Oakland boss for defamation of character.

CHARLES O. FINLEY
Different approaches

Observers don't expect it to be the last bit of trouble for Finley. Then there's the case of Jim Hunter . . .

Raiders 15-Point Favorites Over San Diego Tomorrow

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The Oakland Raiders, despite the questionable status of their leading passer and leading rusher, loom as 15-point favorites when they visit the San Diego Chargers tomorrow at 1 p.m. (The game will be televised on Channel 44.)

Quarterback Ken Stabler and running back Clarence Davis suffered knee injuries in last week's win over Cleveland. Charlie Smith, who has been out two weeks with an injury, was expected to replace Davis.

Stabler's injury was not as severe and he was expected to start with Daryle Lamonica, who always beats the Chargers, waiting in the wings.

San Diego has not beaten the Raiders since 1968, but Oakland coach John Madden does not feel overconfident.

"They had different offensive ideas last year but now they're pretty solid," he said of the Chargers. "They're running more and better, particularly to the outside."

The big man for San Diego has been running back Don Woods, acquired from Green Bay for the waiver price. In two games plus one play in a third, Woods has gained 311 yards and has averaged 7.6 yards a carry. He trails American Conference rushing leader O. J. Simpson by only nine yards.

"It's guys like this that have turned San Diego around," Madden said.

Woods, augmented by fullback Cid Edwards, has made the Chargers first in the conference in rushing. The passing of Dan Fouts to league-leading receiver Gary Garrison also should cause the Raiders trouble, but Oakland defenders already have intercepted 13 passes, and San Diego may prefer to stick to the ground.

Oakland showed a balanced attack last week, running for 222 yards and passing for 223. Small but speedy Cliff Branch has replaced Fred Biletnikoff as the team's leading receiver.

Market Scores Its Best Gain

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, with a new economic program to ponder and signs of easing monetary pressures to appreciate, rallied this week for the best gain in history in the heaveist trading of the year on the New York Stock Exchange.

President Ford's detailed prrogram to fight inflation and boost the economy stirred Wall Street hopes and provided some of the spark that ignited the rally at a time, as one analyst put it, "when the market was ripe."

WEEK IN BUSINESS

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 73.61 points for the week, its best gain ever. The previous record was 51.55 points gained in the week ended last June 7.

The Dow scored the sixth biggest daily gain in its history — 28.39 points — on Wednesday, the day after Ford announced his "Whipping Inflation Now" program.

Ford's program included a 5 per cent surtax on corporations and middle-income Americans, some relief for the poor, incentives to business, and proposals to reduce oil consumption by one million barrels a day in 1975.

Skeptical investors stayed on the sidelines at first, but when they saw the reception to the program was not overly critical, they plunged into action and produced an upswing that carried through yesterday. The 26,360,000 shares traded Thursday marked the fifth heaviest turnover in Big Board history.

Volume for the week totaled 95,729,225 shares, heaviest of the year compared with 73,189,970 shares the week before and 100,888,007 traded during the same week a year ago. The increased volume was welcome news for financially strapped brokerages on Wall Street.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 73.61 points for the week, its best gain ever. The previous record was 51.55 points gained in the week ended last June 7.

The Dow scored the sixth biggest daily gain in its history — 28.39 points — on Wednesday, the day after Ford announced his "Whipping Inflation Now" program.

Ford's program included a 5 per cent surtax on corporations and middle-income Americans, some relief for the poor, incentives to business, and proposals to reduce oil consumption by one million barrels a day in 1975.

Skeptical investors stayed on the sidelines at first, but when they saw the reception to the program was not overly critical, they plunged into action and produced an upswing that carried through yesterday. The 26,360,000 shares traded Thursday marked the fifth heaviest turnover in Big Board history.

Volume for the week totaled 95,729,225 shares, heaviest of the year compared with 73,189,970 shares the week before and 100,888,007 traded during the same week a year ago. The increased volume was welcome news for financially strapped brokerages on Wall Street.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Some 2 Million Persons Don't Know They Have Glaucoma

Some 2 million people who have glaucoma and don't know it could lose their sight unless they get immediate treatment.

Although glaucoma is easy to diagnose and good remedies are available, the condition is responsible for 13 per cent of all blindness in this country.

What happens when a person develops glaucoma?

In the normal eye, there is a continuous flow of fluid through the chambers of the eyes. This secretion has sufficient enough pressure to keep the eyeballs from collapsing. Glaucoma occurs when the outflow is blocked and the excess fluid overdistends the visual compartment.

The increased pressure damages the delicate retinal nerve cells unless the tension can be reduced by allowing the fluid to escape. Several medicines and surgical procedures are capable of doing this.

Pressure within the eyeball is easily determined with a tonometer, an instrument with a blunt plunger on one end and a scale at the other. The plunger measures the tension of the chamber flow. Other tests give clues to the possibility of glaucoma, but none is as effective.

VIOLENT PAIN

Since it causes violent pain and redness in the eye, acute glaucoma is almost always treated in time. But this chronic type of glaucoma can escape dectection until vision is impared even though there are several noticeable symptoms.

Glaucoma is suspected whenever foggy vision or discomfort in or about the eyes develops.

Although glaucoma is easy to diagnose and good remedies are available, the condition is responsible for 13 per cent of all blindness in this country.

What happens when a person develops glaucoma?

In the normal eye, there is a continuous flow of fluid through the chambers of the eyes. This secretion has sufficient enough pressure to keep the eyeballs from collapsing. Glaucoma occurs when the outflow is blocked and the excess fluid overdistends the visual compartment.

The increased pressure damages the delicate retinal nerve cells unless the tension can be reduced by allowing the fluid to escape. Several medicines and surgical procedures are capable of doing this.

Pressure within the eyeball is easily determined with a tonometer, an instrument with a blunt plunger on one end and a scale at the other. The plunger measures the tension of the chamber flow. Other tests give clues to the possibility of glaucoma, but none is as effective.

VIOLENT PAIN

Since it causes violent pain and redness in the eye, acute glaucoma is almost always treated in time. But this chronic type of glaucoma can escape dectection until vision is impared even though there are several noticeable symptoms.

Glaucoma is suspected whenever foggy vision or discomfort in or about the eyes develops.

Proposition 17 Would Benefit Few

In almost every California election, one ballot measure draws the major headlines, diverts attention from other proposals that may be more important, and becomes so emotion-packed that rational discussion of it is difficult.

Such is the case with Proposition 17 on the Nov. 5 ballot.

PROPOSITION 17 is an initiative measure, titled "Wild and Scenic Rivers Initiative." It would place two sections of the Stanislaus River, totaling 64 miles, under protection of the California Wild and Scenic Rivers System.

The effect would be to stop construction of the New Melones Dam, a major flood control-irrigation-electric power facility.

Friends of the River, an organization which gathered the signatures to put the initiative on the ballot, claims that the Stanislaus "is the most popular whitewater recreation river west of the Mississippi" and therefore should be kept in its natural "wild" state. The New Melones Dam, says the ballot argument by the proponents of Proposition 17, would leave the Stanislaus "only a memory."

WHAT ARE the facts?

Fact one is that the Stanislaus is not a wild river. There already are 11 dams on it. Moreover, the nine-mile white water stretch which Proposition 17 proponents want to save as a "natural" asset is in fact fed by a Pacific Gas and Electric Co. pipeline from one of those 11 dams.

The white water is indeed popular with raftsmen. The federal Land Management Bureau estimates that more than 22,000 people will take the raft run down it this year. This is 9,000 more than take the much longer trip by raft down the Colorado River above the Grand Canyon.

Completion of the New Melones Dam would create a 12,500-acre reservoir where the white water now exists.

THE OTHER section of the Stanislaus which Proposition 17 would place in the "wild rivers" cateogry is the 54 miles from Goodwin Dam (one of those 11 existing dams) to its confluence with the San Joaquin River. This is not the scenic part of the stream — nor, of course, its wild part.

The lower river now becomes a mere trickle four months out of the year. Sometimes it dries up completely.

Basically, then, Proposition 17 would protect nine miles of existing (though largely artificially created) white water. And it would protect lower stretches of the river which now carry too little water for either irrigation or fishing. To do both, it would prevent construction of the New Melones Dam.

CONSTRUCTION of the dam was approved by Congress in 1944. It was not started, however, largely because of arguments over whether the dam proposed was large enough to do the job needed.

It was finally decided that a larger dam would be required. In 1962, new federal legislation was passed which increased the size of the authorization and specified that propagation of fish and wildlife and operation of public park and recreation facilities should be parts of the project.

Construction was started in 1966, but blocked by a series of law suits. Eventually, the environmental challenges posed by the suits were rejected by the U.S. Supreme Court. Then Friends of the River was organized to put over the ballot measure, to do by legislation what could not be done by court action.

WHILE 22,000 may make the raft run this summer, many more thousands could fish the stream and reservoir and enjoy boating on the manmade lake.

The water impounded by the dam would be of major benefit to California's Central Valley, the state's "bread basket." The dam would permit even discharge of water to prevent those dry summer months on the lower stretch of the Stanislaus, benefitting fisherman and boaters along with the farmers.

Additionally, the dam would provide flood protection for many thousands of acres of agricultural land. Those who do not think this is needed simply have never lived in the San Joaquin Valley.

Further, the project would generate 430 million kilowatt hours of electricity each year. While this is a small part of the state's electric power needs, it is a worthwhile addition. This electricity would be generated without either air pollution or nuclear hazard. And production of hydro-electric power does not use up any natural resource, since the water supply is self-renewing.

ALTHOUGH FRIENDS of the River has made a strong campaign for Proposition 17 on the basis of environmental protection and wildlife preservation, some organizations concerned with conservation and wildlife are on the other side.

Signers of the ballot argument against Proposition 17 represent the Stanislaus River Flood Control Association, South Delta Water Agency, and Associated Sportsmen of California. The California Wildlife Federation has gone on record against the proposition. The State Department of Fish and Game supports the dam project as beneficial to fishermen both on the Stanislaus and in the San Joaquin River Delta. Also opposing the proposition is the California Federation of Labor, AFL-CIO.

Signing the ballot argument for the proposition were representatives of Friends of the River, Los Angeles County Energy Commission, and Calaveras County Chamber of Commerce. Also supporting the proposition are the Sierra Club and Planning and Conservation League.

Analysis of the proposal's effects leads to the conclusion that passage of Proposition 17 would benefit a relatively few rafting enthusiasts to the detriment of many, many thousands of agriculturists, boaters, campers, and lower valley residents — not to mention depriving the state of a pollution-free electrical energy source. And labeling the two stretches of the Stanislaus a "wild river" would be a farce and a falsehood.

We recommend a NO vote on Proposition 17.

Doctor Seeks To Avoid Confusion Of Names

In your issue of 2 Oct. on page 13, there appeared in the column headed, "Dieter's Guide," an article entitled, "Overweight Diet Said Unhealthy." It is noted at the start of the article that this was the fourth of several articles on dieting emanating from the Dairy Council of California based on research by the California Dietetic Association.

I am in total accord with the statements made in the article in your paper with respect to the Simeons Weight-loss diet. What is disturbing is the statement that this diet is "proposed by Southern California Dr. Harold Harper." Obviously there may be confusion in the minds of some as to the identification of this individual in Southern California with myself. The Doctor Harper referred to is, I believe, Harold W. Moving Bon Air Road Called 'Last Straw'

I hope the voting public accepts recent misbehavior by the Marin General Hospital directors as the last straw. What with the threat of having to pay federal income tax surcharges, we taxpayers have to pony up $400,000 to move Bon Air Road. As a former Marin General Hospital employee, I know how incompetently these elderly directors operate. However, I would never have suspected that they would be brazen enough to sue the County of Marin to force the county to move that road. Those old folks did just that! That costly maneuver means that a hospital employee can go to his parked car in the future without crossing Bon Air Road. Wouldn't a stop light or a foot bridge have been sufficient?

Henry Has His Little Pout, Then Plays Superman Again

WASHINGTON — For several years now, Secy. of State Henry Kissinger has been portrayed in magazines and books as Superman. Whenever there was trouble in the world, Henry would dash into a phone booth near the White House, change into his blue bodystocking costume, and fly off to settle the matter.

It came as a shock the other day to hear Henry admit he was no longer Superman.

I WAS PASSING the phone booth and I saw Henry inside. "Good," I said to myself, "Henry's going to settle the oil crisis." I waited to see him fly out of the booth on his mission, but he just remained there.

"Henry," I finally said anxiously, "why haven't you changed into your costume?"

"I'm not going to be Superman anymore," Henry said. "I'm sick and tired of working miracles."

"But, Henry, if you won't be Superman, what will we all do?"

"That's not my problem. Being Superman means you have to travel a lot. I want to spend more time with Nancy."

"I CAN APPRECIATE that," I told him, "but you have an image to uphold. The media made you what you are today. You just can't go into a phone booth and say you're not coming out."

"Why should I come out?" Henry replied. "The House is picking on me. You know Supermen have feelings, too."

"You can't pay attention to criticism, Henry. If everyone loved you, you wouldn't be doing your job."

"Everyone used to love me," he said.

"YES, BUT THAT'S because they didn't like Nixon. You always looked so much better compared to him. Once he resigned, you were more or less on your own, and some people decided they loved you and some people decided they didn't."

"I think Superman should be loved by everybody," Henry said. "I don't mind criticism, if it's fair. What I don't like is unfair criticism."

"Nobody likes unfair criticism," I told him.

"I'm the first one to admit," he added, "that I'm not perfect. What I don't like is other people telling me I'm not perfect."

"Nobody likes to be told they're not perfect, Henry. The thing to do is to rise above it and prove they're wrong. Now get into that silly costume and fly off to the Middle East and straighten out our problems."

"I'm not going to do it unless I have assurance that people will stop picking on me."

"You have my word, Henry. I'll make sure that there is not one line in the newspapers questioning any of your past actions."

HENRY STARTED taking off his pants.

"Okay," he said, "I'll do it one more time. But if I hear any squawks from anybody about what I did, it's the last time I go into this phone booth.

I held his pants while he took off his shirt.

"I don't know if I ever told you this, Henry," I said, "but you have lovely legs."

"Don't try to change the subject," he said as he took off his shoes and socks. This is everybody's last chance. If they don't like what I'm doing, let them get another Superman."

"They'll like it, Henry," I assured him. "They'll like it."

And so last Tuesday, as people looked up into the sky, they saw a weird object. One person said, "It's a bird"; another person said, "It's a plane," and then everyone cried out at once, "NO, IT'S KISSINGER!" And we all slept better that night.

Minority Vote Bloc Inhibit Making Of U.S. Foreign Policy

The recent vote in the United States Senate on cutting off American aid to Turkey is about as graphic an example as we have had in a long time of the special difficulty a government suffers under in Washington in making foreign policy. No other major country in the world labors under exactly this kind of difficulty.

There was every objective reason for the Senate not voting the way it did vote. And the reasonable leadership of both Republican and Democratic parties did its best to prevent the vote. Yet the Senate did vote by the lopsided score of 57 to 20 against Turkey — and against the wise council of the leadership.

CONSIDER FIRST the merits of the matter.

Turkey is vital to the survival of a western military position in the eastern Mediterranean. Without Turkey in the NATO alliance, there is no flank to NATO. Turkey is the front line of the West against the advance of Soviet influence into the eastern Mediterranean.

If Turkey defects to the Soviet side, Moscow gets free, gratis, for nothing, everything Moscow's czars and commissars have dreamed of getting on their southern flank for two centuries. Turkey is vital to the alliance.

Greece also is a highly desirable member of the alliance. Withdrawal of Greek units from the NATO military command is a definite and painful loss. But there is still a NATO flank in the eastern Mediterranean because Turkey is still in the alliance.

TURKEY HAS DONE in Cyprus things which injured the interests of Greek Cypriots and offended mainland Greeks. Washington would have much preferred if Turkey had not sent its troops into Cyprus. But there had been provocation.

It was not for Washington to pass judgment on the merits of the fighting in Cyprus, which was, in fact, triggered by the folly of the former regime in Greece when it engineered the overthrow of Archbishop Makarios.

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, majority leader of the Senate, did his best for Secy. of State Henry Kissinger in the debate preceding the vote by making the two most important points bearing on the matter.

The vote against Turkey will not get one single Turkish soldier out of Cyprus. On the contrary, it will only weaken Secretary Kissinger's position as a mediator.

So the Senate made it more difficult, not easier, for Dr. Kissinger to work out a solution of the Cyprus problem acceptable to the Greeks. His leverage on the Turks was undermined. The presumed intent of the senators was to help Greece. The effect is to injure Greece.

SO WHY WAS it done?

Obvious. There are many Greek votes in many congressional constituencies. The Turkish vote in American elections is as negligible as is the Egyptian or Lebanese vote.

So here is a foreign policy decision which injures the net interests of the United States in the Middle East, which burdens American foreign policy unnecessarily, and which fails of its actual purpose. Yet it happened inevitably because Congress inevitably responds to the emotions of organized and emotional minorities.

These minorities, consisting often of people two or three generations removed from their homelands and grossly out of touch with conditions back there, sometimes even dictate to the home government. The professional Irish of the United States are a case in point — still shouting for policies contrary to those of the government in Dublin.

Vociferous and organized minorities of course exist in other countries and sometimes influence foreign policy. But nowhere else are there so many vigorous ethnic minorities who so often get emotional about matters they really don't understand.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Democrats Recovering Euphoria After Temporary Setback

NEW YORK — The free-wheeling euphoria of the Democrats, set back by the Nixon resignation and the accession of Gerald Ford in the role of Mr. Clean, is rising again. It is manifest here, where Republicans have been dominant in state and national offices.

Rep. Hugh L. Carey, who won the Democratic nomination for governor over the choice of the old-line organization, is an odds-on favorite to defeat Gov. Malcolm Wilson. Wilson inherited the office when Nelson Rockefeller resigned in his fourth term. Having lived so long under the Rockefeller shadow, Wilson has a slightly bleached look, and his campaign is said to be lackluster.

With Carey, a Roman Catholic with 12 living children, ethnics comprising a sizeable proportion of the vote have one of their own at the top of the ticket. That veteran firehorse of politics and foreign policy, W. Averell Harriman, did a lot of the spade work to put Carey over in the primary against the organization candidate, Howard Samuels. For Harriman, this was a gratifying reversal of the back-of-the-hand treatment he received from McGovernites in 1972.

SO STRONG is the upsurge of euphoria that it laps over into the Senate race, where Jacob Javits had been considered a shoo-in for re-election to a fourth term. His Democratic opponent is Ramsey Clark, the controversial former U.S. attorney general who took up residence in the state to make the run. A barefoot candidate, Clark has limited contributions to $100.

At the urging of Sen. Claiborne Pell of Rhode Island, Javits visited Cuba. The first high officials of the United States Government to go there since Fidel Castro took over, they got short shrift from the bearded dictator. But at least Javits got on television and increasingly that is the name of the game — identity established on the tube.

This explains why fanciful crystal ball gazers are predicting a ticket for 1976 of John Glenn for president, Hugh Carey for vice president. Glenn is expected to win big for the Senate in Ohio over Cleveland's Mayor Ralph J. Perk.

If the ticket sounds like science fiction, anything is possible in the television era.

As the first astronaut, Glenn has instant identity. In his second run for the Senate, he has proved a vigorous and effective campaigner. And as a sure-fire serial, it can be billed as "Son of Ike."

WHILE ROCKEFELLER in his long spell in the governorship made enemies among conservatives, his departure left a large hole in the Republican organization. Of the thousands of letters coming into the Senate Rules Committee in opposition to his confirmation as vice president, a sizeable share are from the highly vocal Right to Life advocates denouncing him for his stand on abortion.

In a forthright message two years ago, Governor Rockefeller vetoed a bill passed by the Legislature repealing New York's liberal abortion law. Defending the right of a woman to make her own choice, he noted that the well-to-do could find ways to pay for an abortion regardless of the law. To close the clinics operating under the New York state law would condemn the underprivileged to unwanted children or to the hazards of an illegal abortion.

Carey has said that as a Catholic he is, of course, opposed to abortion. But he cited the Supreme Court ruling against state laws seeking to abolish or control the right of a woman to abortion as the law of the land.

IN A TIME of cynicism and indifference, identity is a problem for political candidates at every level. With Sen. Edward Kennedy having removed himself, it is particularly acute for Democratic presidential hopefuls, who in all probability can anticipate running against Gerald Ford as incumbent unlimited television identification.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, ahead in the field at present, claims name recognition of more than 50 per cent. The others trail far behind both Jackson and Alabama's Gov. George Wallace. Sen. Walter Mondale, one of the ablest and most personable of the potentials, has a 2 per cent recognition.

Jackson owes a lot of his margin to the fact that he made a pass at the presidency in 1972 and got some television coverage. What instant identity means, as in the example of John Glenn, is that the prime requisite of television, with its fantastic cost, can be circumvented.

Proposition 17 Would Benefit Few

In almost every California election, one ballot measure draws the major headlines, diverts attention from other proposals that may be more important, and becomes so emotion-packed that rational discussion of it is difficult.

Such is the case with Proposition 17 on the Nov. 5 ballot.

PROPOSITION 17 is an initiative measure, titled "Wild and Scenic Rivers Initiative." It would place two sections of the Stanislaus River, totaling 64 miles, under protection of the California Wild and Scenic Rivers System.

The effect would be to stop construction of the New Melones Dam, a major flood control-irrigation-electric power facility.

Friends of the River, an organization which gathered the signatures to put the initiative on the ballot, claims that the Stanislaus "is the most popular whitewater recreation river west of the Mississippi" and therefore should be kept in its natural "wild" state. The New Melones Dam, says the ballot argument by the proponents of Proposition 17, would leave the Stanislaus "only a memory."

WHAT ARE the facts?

Fact one is that the Stanislaus is not a wild river. There already are 11 dams on it. Moreover, the nine-mile white water stretch which Proposition 17 proponents want to save as a "natural" asset is in fact fed by a Pacific Gas and Electric Co. pipeline from one of those 11 dams.

The white water is indeed popular with raftsmen. The federal Land Management Bureau estimates that more than 22,000 people will take the raft run down it this year. This is 9,000 more than take the much longer trip by raft down the Colorado River above the Grand Canyon.

Completion of the New Melones Dam would create a 12,500-acre reservoir where the white water now exists.

THE OTHER section of the Stanislaus which Proposition 17 would place in the "wild rivers" cateogry is the 54 miles from Goodwin Dam (one of those 11 existing dams) to its confluence with the San Joaquin River. This is not the scenic part of the stream — nor, of course, its wild part.

The lower river now becomes a mere trickle four months out of the year. Sometimes it dries up completely.

Basically, then, Proposition 17 would protect nine miles of existing (though largely artificially created) white water. And it would protect lower stretches of the river which now carry too little water for either irrigation or fishing. To do both, it would prevent construction of the New Melones Dam.

CONSTRUCTION of the dam was approved by Congress in 1944. It was not started, however, largely because of arguments over whether the dam proposed was large enough to do the job needed.

Then Friends of the River was organized to put over the ballot measure, to do by legislation what could not be done by court action.

WHILE 22,000 may make the raft run this summer, many more thousands could fish the stream and reservoir and enjoy boating on the manmade lake.

The water impounded by the dam would be of major benefit to California's Central Valley, the state's "bread basket." The dam would permit even discharge of water to prevent those dry summer months on the lower stretch of the Stanislaus, benefitting fisherman and boaters along with the farmers.

Signers of the ballot argument against Proposition 17 represent the Stanislaus River Flood Control Association, South Delta Water Agency, and Associated Sportsmen of California. The California Wildlife Federation has gone on record against the proposition. The State Department of Fish and Game supports the dam project as beneficial to fishermen both on the Stanislaus and in the San Joaquin River Delta. Also opposing the proposition is the California Federation of Labor, AFL-CIO.

Signing the ballot argument for the proposition were representatives of Friends of the River, Los Angeles County Energy Commission, and Calaveras County Chamber of Commerce. Also supporting the proposition are the Sierra Club and Planning and Conservation League.

Analysis of the proposal's effects leads to the conclusion that passage of Proposition 17 would benefit a relatively few rafting enthusiasts to the detriment of many, many thousands of agriculturists, boaters, campers, and lower valley residents — not to mention depriving the state of a pollution-free electrical energy source. I am in total accord with the statements made in the article in your paper with respect to the Simeons Weight-loss diet. What is disturbing is the statement that this diet is "proposed by Southern California Dr. Harold Harper." Obviously there may be confusion in the minds of some as to the identification of this individual in Southern California with myself. The Doctor Harper referred to is, I believe, Harold W. Harper, M.D., whose office is located in Los Angeles. I am a member of the faculty of the University of California at San Francisco and have for many years been active in teaching and in research in nutrition and can only hope that I will not be confused with an apparent namesake . . .

Moving Bon Air Road Called 'Last Straw'

I hope the voting public accepts recent misbehavior by the Marin General Hospital directors as the last straw. What with the threat of having to pay federal income tax surcharges, we taxpayers have to pony up $400,000 to move Bon Air Road. As a former Marin General Hospital employee, I know how incompetently these elderly directors operate. However, I would never have suspected that they would be brazen enough to sue the County of Marin to force the county to move that road. Those old folks did just that! That costly maneuver means that a hospital employee can go to his parked car in the future without crossing Bon Air Road. Wouldn't a stop light or a foot bridge have been sufficient?

Henry Has His Little Pout, Then Plays Superman Again

WASHINGTON — For several years now, Secy. of State Henry Kissinger has been portrayed in magazines and books as Superman. Whenever there was trouble in the world, Henry would dash into a phone booth near the White House, change into his blue bodystocking costume, and fly off to settle the matter.

It came as a shock the other day to hear Henry admit he was no longer Superman.

I WAS PASSING the phone booth and I saw Henry inside. "Good," I said to myself, "Henry's going to settle the oil crisis." I waited to see him fly out of the booth on his mission, but he just remained there.

"Henry," I finally said anxiously, "why haven't you changed into your costume?"

"I'm not going to be Superman anymore," Henry said. "I'm sick and tired of working miracles."

"But, Henry, if you won't be Superman, what will we all do?"

"That's not my problem. Being Superman means you have to travel a lot. I want to spend more time with Nancy."

"I CAN APPRECIATE that," I told him, "but you have an image to uphold. The media made you what you are today. You just can't go into a phone booth and say you're not coming out."

"Why should I come out?" Henry replied. "The House is picking on me. You know Supermen have feelings, too."

"You can't pay attention to criticism, Henry. If everyone loved you, you wouldn't be doing your job."

"Everyone used to love me," he said.

"YES, BUT THAT'S because they didn't like Nixon. You always looked so much better compared to him. Once he resigned, you were more or less on your own, and some people decided they loved you and some people decided they didn't."

"I think Superman should be loved by everybody," Henry said. "I don't mind criticism, if it's fair. What I don't like is unfair criticism."

"Nobody likes unfair criticism," I told him.

"I'm the first one to admit," he added, "that I'm not perfect. What I don't like is other people telling me I'm not perfect."

"Nobody likes to be told they're not perfect, Henry. The thing to do is to rise above it and prove they're wrong. Now get into that silly costume and fly off to the Middle East and straighten out our problems."

"I'm not going to do it unless I have assurance that people will stop picking on me."

"You have my word, Henry. I'll make sure that there is not one line in the newspapers questioning any of your past actions."

HENRY STARTED taking off his pants.

"Okay," he said, "I'll do it one more time. But if I hear any squawks from anybody about what I did, it's the last time I go into this phone booth.

I held his pants while he took off his shirt.

"I don't know if I ever told you this, Henry," I said, "but you have lovely legs."

"Don't try to change the subject," he said as he took off his shoes and socks. This is everybody's last chance. If they don't like what I'm doing, let them get another Superman."

"They'll like it, Henry," I assured him. "They'll like it."

And so last Tuesday, as people looked up into the sky, they saw a weird object. One person said, "It's a bird"; another person said, "It's a plane," and then everyone cried out at once, "NO, IT'S KISSINGER!" And we all slept better that night.

CAPITOL QUIPS

By PHIL DESSAUER

The Ford family has a new dog. Just one more mouth to feed — one more breakfast for the president to fix.

Don't be fooled by the name, folks. A golden retriever is a dog, not one of those economists tinkering with our money supply.

It's a corny thing to say, but the Russians were feeling their oats when they ordered our wheat — and it went against Gerald Ford's grain.

In order, the richest people in the Middle East are Arab sheiks, Arab oil experts, Arab bankers, and Arab Rockefellers.

Minority Vote Bloc Inhibit Making Of U.S. Foreign Policy

The recent vote in the United States Senate on cutting off American aid to Turkey is about as graphic an example as we have had in a long time of the special difficulty a government suffers under in Washington in making foreign policy. No other major country in the world labors under exactly this kind of difficulty.

There was every objective reason for the Senate not voting the way it did vote. And the reasonable leadership of both Republican and Democratic parties did its best to prevent the vote. Yet the Senate did vote by the lopsided score of 57 to 20 against Turkey — and against the wise council of the leadership.

CONSIDER FIRST the merits of the matter.

Turkey is vital to the survival of a western military position in the eastern Mediterranean. Without Turkey in the NATO alliance, there is no flank to NATO. Turkey is the front line of the West against the advance of Soviet influence into the eastern Mediterranean.

If Turkey defects to the Soviet side, Moscow gets free, gratis, for nothing, everything Moscow's czars and commissars have dreamed of getting on their southern flank for two centuries. Turkey is vital to the alliance.

Greece also is a highly desirable member of the alliance. Withdrawal of Greek units from the NATO military command is a definite and painful loss. But there is still a NATO flank in the eastern Mediterranean because Turkey is still in the alliance.

TURKEY HAS DONE in Cyprus things which injured the interests of Greek Cypriots and offended mainland Greeks. Washington would have much preferred if Turkey had not sent its troops into Cyprus. But there had been provocation.

It was not for Washington to pass judgment on the merits of the fighting in Cyprus, which was, in fact, triggered by the folly of the former regime in Greece when it engineered the overthrow of Archbishop Makarios.

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, majority leader of the Senate, did his best for Secy. of State Henry Kissinger in the debate preceding the vote by making the two most important points bearing on the matter.

The vote against Turkey will not get one single Turkish soldier out of Cyprus. On the contrary, it will only weaken Secretary Kissinger's position as a mediator.

So the Senate made it more difficult, not easier, for Dr. Kissinger to work out a solution of the Cyprus problem acceptable to the Greeks. His leverage on the Turks was undermined. The presumed intent of the senators was to help Greece. The effect is to injure Greece.

SO WHY WAS it done?

Obvious. There are many Greek votes in many congressional constituencies. The Turkish vote in American elections is as negligible as is the Egyptian or Lebanese vote.

So here is a foreign policy decision which injures the net interests of the United States in the Middle East, which burdens American foreign policy unnecessarily, and which fails of its actual purpose. Yet it happened inevitably because Congress inevitably responds to the emotions of organized and emotional minorities.

These minorities, consisting often of people two or three generations removed from their homelands and grossly out of touch with conditions back there, sometimes even dictate to the home government. The professional Irish of the United States are a case in point — still shouting for policies contrary to those of the government in Dublin.

Vociferous and organized minorities of course exist in other countries and sometimes influence foreign policy. But nowhere else are there so many vigorous ethnic minorities who so often get emotional about matters they really don't understand.

Democrats Recovering Euphoria After Temporary Setback

NEW YORK — The free-wheeling euphoria of the Democrats, set back by the Nixon resignation and the accession of Gerald Ford in the role of Mr. Clean, is rising again. It is manifest here, where Republicans have been dominant in state and national offices.

Rep. Hugh L. Carey, who won the Democratic nomination for governor over the choice of the old-line organization, is an odds-on favorite to defeat Gov. Malcolm Wilson. Wilson inherited the office when Nelson Rockefeller resigned in his fourth term. Having lived so long under the Rockefeller shadow, Wilson has a slightly bleached look, and his campaign is said to be lackluster.

With Carey, a Roman Catholic with 12 living children, ethnics comprising a sizeable proportion of the vote have one of their own at the top of the ticket. That veteran firehorse of politics and foreign policy, W. Averell Harriman, did a lot of the spade work to put Carey over in the primary against the organization candidate, Howard Samuels. For Harriman, this was a gratifying reversal of the back-of-the-hand treatment he received from McGovernites in 1972.

SO STRONG is the upsurge of euphoria that it laps over into the Senate race, where Jacob Javits had been considered a shoo-in for re-election to a fourth term. His Democratic opponent is Ramsey Clark, the controversial former U.S. attorney general who took up residence in the state to make the run. A barefoot candidate, Clark has limited contributions to $100.

At the urging of Sen. Claiborne Pell of Rhode Island, Javits visited Cuba. The first high officials of the United States Government to go there since Fidel Castro took over, they got short shrift from the bearded dictator. But at least Javits got on television and increasingly that is the name of the game — identity established on the tube.

This explains why fanciful crystal ball gazers are predicting a ticket for 1976 of John Glenn for president, Hugh Carey for vice president. Glenn is expected to win big for the Senate in Ohio over Cleveland's Mayor Ralph J. Perk.

If the ticket sounds like science fiction, anything is possible in the television era.

As the first astronaut, Glenn has instant identity. In his second run for the Senate, he has proved a vigorous and effective campaigner. And as a sure-fire serial, it can be billed as "Son of Ike."

WHILE ROCKEFELLER in his long spell in the governorship made enemies among conservatives, his departure left a large hole in the Republican organization. Of the thousands of letters coming into the Senate Rules Committee in opposition to his confirmation as vice president, a sizeable share are from the highly vocal Right to Life advocates denouncing him for his stand on abortion.

In a forthright message two years ago, Governor Rockefeller vetoed a bill passed by the Legislature repealing New York's liberal abortion law. Defending the right of a woman to make her own choice, he noted that the well-to-do could find ways to pay for an abortion regardless of the law. To close the clinics operating under the New York state law would condemn the underprivileged to unwanted children or to the hazards of an illegal abortion.

Carey has said that as a Catholic he is, of course, opposed to abortion. But he cited the Supreme Court ruling against state laws seeking to abolish or control the right of a woman to abortion as the law of the land.

IN A TIME of cynicism and indifference, identity is a problem for political candidates at every level. With Sen. Edward Kennedy having removed himself, it is particularly acute for Democratic presidential hopefuls, who in all probability can anticipate running against Gerald Ford as incumbent unlimited television identification.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, ahead in the field at present, claims name recognition of more than 50 per cent. The others trail far behind both Jackson and Alabama's Gov. George Wallace. Sen. Walter Mondale, one of the ablest and most personable of the potentials, has a 2 per cent recognition.

Jackson owes a lot of his margin to the fact that he made a pass at the presidency in 1972 and got some television coverage. What instant identity means, as in the example of John Glenn, is that the prime requisite of television, with its fantastic cost, can be circumvented.

RELIGION IN AMERICA

Church's Impact Hard To Gauge

By DAVID E. ANIERSON
UPI Religion Writer

A lot of debate goes on in denominational headquarters and in local congregations about the impact of church involvement in political and social questions.

But it seems quite clear that no one knows for sure how to measure the influence religious leaders or organizations might have in policy decisions various government officials or agencies make.

Two recent events are worthy of note is this regard, one of them suggesting churches may have influence, the other suggesting that influence is less than many think.

The first involves the issue of organizations and individuals working to make corporations more socially responsible.

In a survey conducted by the Opinion Research Corporation of Princeton, N.J., churches and various groups active in the corporate reform movement came out slightly more influential than either Senators Kennedy, Muskie and Humphrey and about as influential as the AFL/CIO.

On the other hand, Ralph Nader and his affiliated organizations were far and away considered the most influential, followed by environmental groups and Common Cause.

While one might conclude then, that church groups can marshal their forces to have some influence, the amnesty debate would appear to be an issue where the church's impact seems to have been negligible.

Before President Ford announced his earned re-entry and limited clemency program for draft resisters and military deserters of the Vietnam era, most major churches and agencies were on record for a universal and unconditional amnesty.

Churchman after churchman appeared before the House Judiciary subcommittee holding hearings on the amnesty question in March of this year, and nearly all of them argued that in moral terms, only a universal and unconditional amnesty would meet the demands of justice.

When President Ford announced his intention to consider some effort at national reconcilliation with Vietnam war opponents, thereby renewing the national debate over the question of amnesty, several prominent churchmen suggested that religious opinion, as well as the ideas of the Justice and Defense Departments should be included in the date Aofr used to come to his conclusion.

There is no indication that Ford listened to the religious leaders.

Indeed, for religious leaders, Ford's earned reentry program probably did more to end his honeymoon than did his pardon of former President Nixon.

Dr. David W. Preus, President of the gnerally non-political, middle-of-the-road American Lutheran Church, in one of his first political comments, expressed "disappointment" in the Ford program.

He said, for example, there should be "no implication of disloyalty" because some chose to refuse to participate in a war they felt was immoral.

"I still hope, however, that those who truly desire to return to full participation in our society can receive a more genuine welcome than is demonstrated in this program," Preus added.

Like the unions, like Common Cause or the Ralph Nader organizations, the churches, if they seek to be effective on the national level of politics, have to marshal more than spokesman.

Ordination Of 11 Women Triggers An Argument

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A theological argument cutting across denominational lines has developed over whether 11 women ordained last summer as priests of the Episcopal church were validly invested with that office.

Most of the church's House of Bishops have said "no." But the theological rationale on which they acted is now challenged by the scholar on whose work their decision was mainly based. He's a Roman Catholic.

The Rev. Frans J. van Beeck, noted theologian at the Jesuits' Boston College, says that although the ordinations were irregular so far as church discipline goes, "they were true ordinations."

"There is a good case for considering them not only true, but also de facto valid . . . that is, recognized by the church," he says, adding they are "at any rate implicitly valid and recognizable."

What gave drama to Father van Beeck's intervention is that his writings on the issue had been cited by Episcopal Bishop Arthur A. Vogel of Kansas City in an analysis guiding Episcopal bishops in acting on the matter.

Bishop Vogel, of the church's theological commission, concluded in the advisory, in which Father van Beeck was cited as an authority for the position, that the women had not undergone ordination, but "only service, only a rite."

Father van Beeck, terming himself a reluctant witness because of hesitancy as "an outsider to engage in armchair quarterbacking," says he did so as an ecumenical duty and that Bishop Vogel had misinterpreted him.

On another point, he challenges the finding of the Episcopal bishops that the ordinations were invalid because the bishops performing them defied communal processes of the church.

This "reasoning comes dangerously close to making the bishop a mere delegate of the community," Father van Beeck says. He says it also fails to recognize church "conflict and division" — as exists among Episcopalians on the issue.

The position "goes against the tradition" not only of the Anglican communion of which the Episcopal Church is a part, but against that of Roman Catholicism and Eastern Orthodoxy, Father van Beeck says.

Substitute Speaker To Address Board

Ed Smith, a member of the Unity in Marin Church board, will conduct the 11 a.m. service tomorrow at church headquarters at 24 H Street, San Rafael. The subject of the service will be "God provides."

Child care will be provided. The dinner is free for parishioners, but reservations must be made by Oct. 20.

Each Wednesday this fall, St. Paul's is holding the "Wednesday Thing," which includes games for children at 3:40 p.m., junior choir rehearsal, 4:30 p.m.; a meal at 5:45 p.m.; Holy Eucharist, 6:30 p.m.; followed by folk group rehearsal, senior high group and adult inquirers-confirmation class in the evening.

Dymally Detects 'Sharp Odor Of Ripoff' In Growing Number Of Religious Cults

By SHEILA MARSEE
Copley News Service

SACRAMENTO — "In some, I detect the sharp odor of the ripoff."

When state Sen. Mervyn Dymally, D-Los Angeles, made that remark, he was referring to the growing number of religious cult groups and allegations that some of those groups in California "are using religion as a facade behind which to carry on illegal activities."

Following a recent committee hearing, Dymally turned to an aide and said, "I'm shocked by what I have heard here today."

What the senator heard was testimony from dozens of witnesses — mostly parents — about religious cults and their influence over some of California's youth.

No legislation has been formulated as an outcome of the hearing, but following that hearing by Dymally's Senate Select Committee on Children and Youth, a flood of letters, telegrams and telephone calls has inundated his legislative offices here.

"It is a larger problem than I realized," Dymally said in an interview.

"I fear that things are going on in a few of these groups that would not be tolerated if they were going on in groups that didn't have religious overtones."

Dymally said he was received "scores" of letters from distraught parents "and it is a saddening experience to read their accounts of their young people lost to these cult groups."

The committee received testimony during its hearing in late August which included:

A brother's account of how his sister has been "turned against her parents and been taught that God is fear and hate."

A mother who was beaten by members of one of the cults when she tried to extricate her daughter from the organization.

A young woman, the daughter of a religious cult leader, who said her parents are making "a raving fortune" of the cult business.

Dymally, who stressed the fact that his subcommittee is not an investigative subcommittee, said that he will "probably turn the materials we have gathered over to the Senate Rules Committee for further hearings, or to appropriate law enforcement agencies."

Beans Sent To Honduras

Two full freight cars of split beans — more than 100 tons — have been sent to Honduran victims of Hurricane Fifi from the Church World Service.

The shipment will provide approximately one million high protein meals for refugees, according to the service.

Other medical and food supplies were also sent, a spokesman said.

RELIGION IN AMERICA

Church's Impact Hard To Gauge

By DAVID E. ANIERSON
UPI Religion Writer

A lot of debate goes on in denominational headquarters and in local congregations about the impact of church involvement in political and social questions.

But it seems quite clear that no one knows for sure how to measure the influence religious leaders or organizations might have in policy decisions various government officials or agencies make.

Two recent events are worthy of note is this regard, one of them suggesting churches may have influence, the other suggesting that influence is less than many think.

The first involves the issue of organizations and individuals working to make corporations more socially responsible.

In a survey conducted by the Opinion Research Corporation of Princeton, N.J., churches and various groups active in the corporate reform movement came out slightly more influential than either Senators Kennedy, Muskie and Humphrey and about as influential as the AFL/CIO.

On the other hand, Ralph Nader and his affiliated organizations were far and away considered the most influential, followed by environmental groups and Common Cause.

While one might conclude then, that church groups can marshal their forces to have some influence, the amnesty debate would appear to be an issue where the church's impact seems to have been negligible.

Before President Ford announced his earned re-entry and limited clemency program for draft resisters and military deserters of the Vietnam era, most major churches and agencies were on record for a universal and unconditional amnesty.

Churchman after churchman appeared before the House Judiciary subcommittee holding hearings on the amnesty question in March of this year, and nearly all of them argued that in moral terms, only a universal and unconditional amnesty would meet the demands of justice.

When President Ford announced his intention to consider some effort at national reconcilliation with Vietnam war opponents, thereby renewing the national debate over the question of amnesty, several prominent churchmen suggested that religious opinion, as well as the ideas of the Justice and Defense Departments should be included in the date Aofr used to come to his conclusion.

There is no indication that Ford listened to the religious leaders.

Indeed, for religious leaders, Ford's earned reentry program probably did more to end his honeymoon than did his pardon of former President Nixon.

Dr. David W. Preus, President of the gnerally non-political, middle-of-the-road American Lutheran Church, in one of his first political comments, expressed "disappointment" in the Ford program.

He said, for example, there should be "no implication of disloyalty" because some chose to refuse to participate in a war they felt was immoral.

"I still hope, however, that those who truly desire to return to full participation in our society can receive a more genuine welcome than is demonstrated in this program," Preus added.

Like the unions, like Common Cause or the Ralph Nader organizations, the churches, if they seek to be effective on the national level of politics, have to marshal more than spokesman.

Ordination Of 11 Women Triggers An Argument

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A theological argument cutting across denominational lines has developed over whether 11 women ordained last summer as priests of the Episcopal church were validly invested with that office.

Most of the church's House of Bishops have said "no." But the theological rationale on which they acted is now challenged by the scholar on whose work their decision was mainly based. He's a Roman Catholic.

The Rev. Frans J. van Beeck, noted theologian at the Jesuits' Boston College, says that although the ordinations were irregular so far as church discipline goes, "they were true ordinations."

"There is a good case for considering them not only true, but also de facto valid . . . that is, recognized by the church," he says, adding they are "at any rate implicitly valid and recognizable."

What gave drama to Father van Beeck's intervention is that his writings on the issue had been cited by Episcopal Bishop Arthur A. Vogel of Kansas City in an analysis guiding Episcopal bishops in acting on the matter.

Bishop Vogel, of the church's theological commission, concluded in the advisory, in which Father van Beeck was cited as an authority for the position, that the women had not undergone ordination, but "only service, only a rite."

Father van Beeck, terming himself a reluctant witness because of hesitancy as "an outsider to engage in armchair quarterbacking," says he did so as an ecumenical duty and that Bishop Vogel had misinterpreted him.

On another point, he challenges the finding of the Episcopal bishops that the ordinations were invalid because the bishops performing them defied communal processes of the church.

This "reasoning comes dangerously close to making the bishop a mere delegate of the community," Father van Beeck says. He says it also fails to recognize church "conflict and division" — as exists among Episcopalians on the issue.

The position "goes against the tradition" not only of the Anglican communion of which the Episcopal Church is a part, but against that of Roman Catholicism and Eastern Orthodoxy, Father van Beeck says.

Substitute Speaker To Address Board

Ed Smith, a member of the Unity in Marin Church board, will conduct the 11 a.m. service tomorrow at church headquarters at 24 H Street, San Rafael. The subject of the service will be "God provides."

Rev. Candida Wright, minister of Unity in Marin, is out of town at a retreat.

By SHEILA MARSEE
Copley News Service

SACRAMENTO — "In some, I detect the sharp odor of the ripoff."

When state Sen. Mervyn Dymally, D-Los Angeles, made that remark, he was referring to the growing number of religious cult groups and allegations that some of those groups in California "are using religion as a facade behind which to carry on illegal activities."

Following a recent committee hearing, Dymally turned to an aide and said, "I'm shocked by what I have heard here today."

What the senator heard was testimony from dozens of witnesses — mostly parents — about religious cults and their influence over some of California's youth.

No legislation has been formulated as an outcome of the hearing, but following that hearing by Dymally's Senate Select Committee on Children and Youth, a flood of letters, telegrams and telephone calls has inundated his legislative offices here.

"It is a larger problem than I realized," Dymally said in an interview.

"I fear that things are going on in a few of these groups that would not be tolerated if they were going on in groups that didn't have religious overtones."

Dymally said he was received "scores" of letters from distraught parents "and it is a saddening experience to read their accounts of their young people lost to these cult groups."

The committee received testimony during its hearing in late August which included:

A brother's account of how his sister has been "turned against her parents and been taught that God is fear and hate."

A mother who was beaten by members of one of the cults when she tried to extricate her daughter from the organization.

A young woman, the daughter of a religious cult leader, who said her parents are making "a raving fortune" of the cult business.

Dymally, who stressed the fact that his subcommittee is not an investigative subcommittee, said that he will "probably turn the materials we have gathered over to the Senate Rules Committee for further hearings, or to appropriate law enforcement agencies."

Beans Sent To Honduras

Two full freight cars of split beans — more than 100 tons — have been sent to Honduran victims of Hurricane Fifi from the Church World Service.

The shipment will provide approximately one million high protein meals for refugees, according to the service.

Other medical and food supplies were also sent, a spokesman said.

Police Acts Defended By Chief Kelly

Charges that the San Rafael Police Department used excessive force to break up a teenage beer party in Terra Linda have been dismissed as "generally unfounded" by Police Chief Lawrence R. Kelly.

Kelly's conclusion is contained in a letter to the Marin County Human Rights Commission and is based on a departmental investigation into allegations made by a number of the involved youths.

The commission received the letter and investigative report Thursday and set a special session for Oct. 22 to discuss the report.

The issue stems from last month's commission meeting during which a number of the youthful party-goers complained that police officers raided the party on Skyview Drive in August without cause and brutally treated a number of youngsters.

They charged that the officers blocked exits from the Williams home, systematically pushed girls down a flight of stairs, used Mace liberally, pulled a pistol inside the home, used a shotgun in a threatening manner and refused to identify themselves.

Kelly responded that officers were called by two neighbors complaining of drag racing, youths urinating on lawns and generally disturbing the neighborhood.

He said the two officers were met with abusive language when they asked that the party end and that one youth who answered the door took a punch at one of the officers.

A fight ensued with the youth escaping, the chief continued, adding that officer Walter Kosta admitted drawing his revolver during the struggle because he thought that youth had a weapon.

Kosta, the chief said, put away his gun and took out his can of Mace when he saw the youth was unarmed. At this point, the chief said his investigation showed, the two officers were pelted with beer bottles. They retreated and called for assistance from fellow officers.

Minutes later, with support, the officers returned to the house and entered.

Kelly's letter details a series of offenses his men maintain the youths committed leading up to and including the brawl which followed.

The offenses range from assault with a deadly weapon (a beer bottle) to disturbing the peace.

While several youths were arrested at the time, none has been formally charged with a crime by the district attorney.

Kelly said his officers were acting within the law in entering the home and cited a penal code section allowing officers to break down a door to make an arrest.

Today is Saturday, Oct. 12, the 285th day of 1974 with 80 to follow. This is Columbus Day.

The moon is approaching its new phase. The morning stars are Venus and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Libra.

Elmer Sperry, American inventor and electrical engineer, was born Oct. 12, 1860.

On this day in history:

In 1492, Christopher Columbus discovered the new world known as "America." The first landing is believed to have been made in the Bahamas, southeast of what now is Florida.

In 1960, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev removed one of his shoes and pounded on his desk with it during a speech before the United Nations. General Assembly President Frederick Boland lost his Irish temper and split his gavel trying to restore order.

In 1971, President Nixon announced plans for a summit meeting with Soviet leaders in May. Also that day, former Secretary of State Dean Acheson died.

In 1973, President Nixon nominated House Minority Leader Gerald Ford for the vice presidency to replace Spiro Agnew who resigned two days earlier.

A thought for the day: The Roman poet Virgil said, "A fickle and changeful thing is woman ever."

Police Acts Defended By Chief Kelly

Charges that the San Rafael Police Department used excessive force to break up a teenage beer party in Terra Linda have been dismissed as "generally unfounded" by Police Chief Lawrence R. Kelly.

Kelly's conclusion is contained in a letter to the Marin County Human Rights Commission and is based on a departmental investigation into allegations made by a number of the involved youths.

The commission received the letter and investigative report Thursday and set a special session for Oct. 22 to discuss the report.

The issue stems from last month's commission meeting during which a number of the youthful party-goers complained that police officers raided the party on Skyview Drive in August without cause and brutally treated a number of youngsters.

They charged that the officers blocked exits from the Williams home, systematically pushed girls down a flight of stairs, used Mace liberally, pulled a pistol inside the home, used a shotgun in a threatening manner and refused to identify themselves.

Kelly responded that officers were called by two neighbors complaining of drag racing, youths urinating on lawns and generally disturbing the neighborhood.

He said the two officers were met with abusive language when they asked that the party end and that one youth who answered the door took a punch at one of the officers.

A fight ensued with the youth escaping, the chief continued, adding that officer Walter Kosta admitted drawing his revolver during the struggle because he thought that youth had a weapon.

Kosta, the chief said, put away his gun and took out his can of Mace when he saw the youth was unarmed. At this point, the chief said his investigation showed, the two officers were pelted with beer bottles. They retreated and called for assistance from fellow officers.

Minutes later, with support, the officers returned to the house and entered.

Kelly's letter details a series of offenses his men maintain the youths committed leading up to and including the brawl which followed.

The offenses range from assault with a deadly weapon (a beer bottle) to disturbing the peace.

While several youths were arrested at the time, none has been formally charged with a crime by the district attorney.

Kelly said his officers were acting within the law in entering the home and cited a penal code section allowing officers to break down a door to make an arrest.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Oct. 12, the 285th day of 1974 with 80 to follow. This is Columbus Day.

The moon is approaching its new phase. The morning stars are Venus and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Libra.

Elmer Sperry, American inventor and electrical engineer, was born Oct. 12, 1860.

On this day in history:

In 1492, Christopher Columbus discovered the new world known as "America." The first landing is believed to have been made in the Bahamas, southeast of what now is Florida.

In 1960, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev removed one of his shoes and pounded on his desk with it during a speech before the United Nations. General Assembly President Frederick Boland lost his Irish temper and split his gavel trying to restore order.

In 1971, President Nixon announced plans for a summit meeting with Soviet leaders in May. Also that day, former Secretary of State Dean Acheson died.

In 1973, President Nixon nominated House Minority Leader Gerald Ford for the vice presidency to replace Spiro Agnew who resigned two days earlier.

A thought for the day: The Roman poet Virgil said, "A fickle and changeful thing is woman ever."

West leads the eight of hearts, and East takes the queen and ace. East then leads a third heart, and you hold your breath until West follows suit.

What are you going to do to avoid the loss of two club tricks? The first step is to lead a low club from dummy. Right away! Quick! And be sure to look innocent.

STRIP FOR ACTION

East plays his low club, and you win with the ace. The fish is now on the hook.

Take two top spades and two top diamonds. Then lead a low club and hold your breath again.

East must win with his king of clubs and must return a red card. This permits you to discard the last club from your hand while dummy ruffs.

Very lucky, of course, that East had only two cards in each black suit. True, but at least you gave yourself the best chance to take advantage of the luck.

There would be a different story to tell if you began by taking the top spades and the top diamonds. East would see what was coming and he would play his king of clubs on the first round of that suit. He would save his low club to get out.

Attorney Says Agencies Filing Unnecessary Suits

Directors of both Marin County's housing authority and redevelopment agency are "overzealously spending a fortune" to litigate matters that should be resolved outside the courts, it was charged yesterday. (Related story on page 1.)

Douglas H. Bosco, director of the human relations department, wrote county supervisors that the two agencies have hired a "bevy of lawyers" who are propsoering through this diversion of housing and redevelopment funds.

Bosco, a member of the state bar himself, said he was concerned with a growing tendency by some to use the courts as a means of usurping the political process in reaching a decision.

He suggested the county counsel's office be assigned to handle the two agencies' legal matters since that office is "not dependent on protracted legal proceedings for income" like private attorneys.

Bosco also proposed that supervisors replace directors if they are unable to resolve their differences without running to court.

"If public officials are so impotent in dealing with the constituencies that they must pay lawyers and others to ask judges to solve their problems, I feel these officials should be replaced and replaced again until the public is served by those who can make fair and equitable decisions on their own," he wrote.

The rights director cited two recent court cases involving the two agencies and said the "antics (of the directors) have cost the taxpayers thousands of dollars and have diverted money that is badly needed for providing housing."

He noted that last May, Chairman Collie Gaines of the redevelopment agency authorized a suit against the housing authority without approval from her board.

"The sole purpose of this lawsuit, in my opinion, was to preserve the job of Wllace K. Shepherd as executive director of both agencies," he said.

The redevelopment agency board subsequently ratified her action but "I was able to ascertain that most members knew little or nothing about the nature of the suit and seemed to be perplexed why one public agency should be suing another."

He continued: "While I have respect for Mr. Shepherd and have always been impartial as to his ability to perform his job, this lawsuit was foolish and frivilous by any standard and represented a 'last ditch' maneuver to force the housing authority to retain him against its wishes."

(That suit, now awaiting a trial date, involves a contention by the redevelopment board that the housing board acted improperly in dumping a joint policy statement that Shepherd served at the pleasure of the two boards.)

So far, Bosco said, the suit has cost the redevelopment agency $2,000 and the housing authority $650 in legal fees and "it is only a matter of conjecture as to when this or other suits may reappear to soak the taxpayers even more money."

The right director also cited a recent federal court suit by Marin City residents, represented by Legal Aid, against the housing authority related to the public housing improvement project.

Despite offers of an early settlement by Legal Aid the housing authority ran up legal bills of more than $23,500 before accepting Legal Aid's original offer, Bosco said.

"In my opinion, these boards have abdicated their responsibility to the public by overzealously spending a fortune to send their laywers scurrying to the courthouse rather than committing the same time and money toward improved relations with their constituencies, he concluded.

Concert Series Tickets Available

Residents wishing to attend Dominican College's 1974-75 chamber music concert series may join the school's Music Associates for a $12 fee, a spokesman said yesterday.

The fee admits two persons to four concerts. Donation of $25 will admit two to the concerts as well as boosting the school Music Associates Youth Scholarship Fund.

Performances scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in Angelico Hall are The Primavera Trio, Dec. 1; Will Sudmeier, David Krehbiel, Edward Haug and Roslyn Frantz, Jan. 19; George Sakellariou, Feb. 23, and Neal LaMonaco and Marilyn Thompson, April 13.

More membership information is available from the college.

After-School Recreation Slated

The Larkspur Park and Recreation Commission has set an after-school recreation program to be held at Henry C. Hall and Larkpur-Corte Madera schools, beginning next week.

Sheldon Zatkin, parks and recreation director, said that the program, to be from 3:30 to 5 p.m. will probably be under way by Wednesday. He said that it would be held Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at Larkspur-Corte Madera School and Tuesdays and Thursdays at Henry C. Hall School through the school year, if successful.

ART REVIEW

Young Bay Area Photographers Exploring Surreal Fantasy

By ADA GARFINKEL

Two young Bay Area photographers, Wanda Hammerbeck and Gail Skoff, explore the realms of surreal fantasy and nostalgic romanticism via game and role-playing and introspective reverie, in an exhibit at the Lamkin Camerawork Gallery in Fairfax.

Miss Skoff, a graduate of the San Francisco Art Institute, who was selected to show in the recent San Francisco "Introductions '74" series, invests both black and white and hand-tinted color shots with vicarious flashbacks in time.

The former, shot amidst the formal gardens and weathered ornamental architecture of older mansions in the Berkeley hills, serve as a suitable staging for the nymph-like "Spirit," "Erica Spinning" and her own waif-like self-portrait.

Miss Skoff's friends figure largely in her work. She poses them in exotic clothing and theatrical environments in a fin-de-siecle and art-deco mileu which creates an ambivalence of time. The photos could have been taken 40 years ago; actually, they were shot within the past three years.

"Suzanne" in flowing satin peignoir and long cigarette holder; "Barbara" as the tragic Ophelia; "Dassie," the gay, top-hatted equestrienne in a botanical conservatory; the chiffon-decked "Golden Nude," and nude, chalk-faced "Dimitrius in the waterfall" are potent examples.

"Paris Wedding," "Picnic at Versailles," and "Letsey and the Boys" (shot in Paris in the fall of 1972) are more natural, with sensitivity and humour emerging out of the situation, rather than imposed upon it.

Wanda Hammerbeck's photos are all within tonal grays. Their preoccupation with visualizing interchanging of sexes, with gun-play, and with mytho-poetic symbolism undoubtedly stems from Miss Hammerbeck's work for her degree in psychology from the University of North Carolina.

Her intriguing dualities in several scenes shot at Dry Lake in Death Valley show a nude young woman and man standing on a vast expanse of parched earth. Each takes a turn at holding a small mirror in front of him in which is reflected the genitals or breasts of the partner. There is an aura of timelessness and innocence which adds to the bizarre quality of the scene.

A gun is the foil in another repertoire a deux, this time in a possible love-hate ambivalance. Again the mirror reflects the partner's image — the cocked gun at his chest, and the startled expression of her upflung hands. Elsewhere, on the expansive sand dunes of Oregon, each partner is photographed in a back view with the gun lying casually at an innocuous distance, raising the question: "What's it all about?"

Huge synthetic flies and a variety of lizards (also synthetic) convey primal relationships as they seem to glide over a young woman's nude figure. Her companion, concealed by an aquatic mask crouches over her in a quasicrab-like position in these psycho-drama scenes.

These are probing investigations with out-of-the-ordinary visual enactments.

This exhibit will continue through October and may be seen from noon to 6 p.m. Friday through Monday, and to 9 p.m. on Thursday. Lamkin Camerawork Gallery is in the Fair-Anselmo Center, in suite two.

This Pig Is A Cola Nut

BEARDSTOWN, Ill. (UPI) — When it comes to cola, Pinky simply makes a pig of herself, though if offered other soft drinks, she's likely to snort and waddle away.

Mrs. Eleanor Hendricks of nearby Pleasant View adopted Pinky when Pinky was born nearly two years ago.

Since then, Pinky has been bottle fed, corn fed, hand fed and table fed and has grown into a 463-pound sow, the prize pet of the Hendricks household.

But Pinky has a drinking problem. She's hooked on cola, and it takes an 8-pack a week to support her habit.

Mrs. Hendricks says Pinky also is particular — so particular she refuses "uncola" soft drinks.

ART REVIEW

Young Bay Area Photographers Exploring Surreal Fantasy

By ADA GARFINKEL

Two young Bay Area photographers, Wanda Hammerbeck and Gail Skoff, explore the realms of surreal fantasy and nostalgic romanticism via game and role-playing and introspective reverie, in an exhibit at the Lamkin Camerawork Gallery in Fairfax.

Miss Skoff, a graduate of the San Francisco Art Institute, who was selected to show in the recent San Francisco "Introductions '74" series, invests both black and white and hand-tinted color shots with vicarious flashbacks in time.

The former, shot amidst the formal gardens and weathered ornamental architecture of older mansions in the Berkeley hills, serve as a suitable staging for the nymph-like "Spirit," "Erica Spinning" and her own waif-like self-portrait.

Miss Skoff's friends figure largely in her work. She poses them in exotic clothing and theatrical environments in a fin-de-siecle and art-deco mileu which creates an ambivalence of time. The photos could have been taken 40 years ago; actually, they were shot within the past three years.

"Suzanne" in flowing satin peignoir and long cigarette holder; "Barbara" as the tragic Ophelia; "Dassie," the gay, top-hatted equestrienne in a botanical conservatory; the chiffon-decked "Golden Nude," and nude, chalk-faced "Dimitrius in the waterfall" are potent examples.

"Paris Wedding," "Picnic at Versailles," and "Letsey and the Boys" (shot in Paris in the fall of 1972) are more natural, with sensitivity and humour emerging out of the situation, rather than imposed upon it.

Wanda Hammerbeck's photos are all within tonal grays. Their preoccupation with visualizing interchanging of sexes, with gun-play, and with mytho-poetic symbolism undoubtedly stems from Miss Hammerbeck's work for her degree in psychology from the University of North Carolina.

Her intriguing dualities in several scenes shot at Dry Lake in Death Valley show a nude young woman and man standing on a vast expanse of parched earth. Each takes a turn at holding a small mirror in front of him in which is reflected the genitals or breasts of the partner. There is an aura of timelessness and innocence which adds to the bizarre quality of the scene.

A gun is the foil in another repertoire a deux, this time in a possible love-hate ambivalance. Again the mirror reflects the partner's image — the cocked gun at his chest, and the startled expression of her upflung hands. Elsewhere, on the expansive sand dunes of Oregon, each partner is photographed in a back view with the gun lying casually at an innocuous distance, raising the question: "What's it all about?"

Huge synthetic flies and a variety of lizards (also synthetic) convey primal relationships as they seem to glide over a young woman's nude figure. Her companion, concealed by an aquatic mask crouches over her in a quasicrab-like position in these psycho-drama scenes.

These are probing investigations with out-of-the-ordinary visual enactments.

This exhibit will continue through October and may be seen from noon to 6 p.m. Friday through Monday, and to 9 p.m. on Thursday. Lamkin Camerawork Gallery is in the Fair-Anselmo Center, in suite two.

Town Meeting

The Corte Madera Town Council will meet at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in town hall to discuss the land use element of the town general plan, according to Town Mgr. Ronald E. Bartels.

This Pig Is A Cola Nut

BEARDSTOWN, Ill. (UPI) — When it comes to cola, Pinky simply makes a pig of herself, though if offered other soft drinks, she's likely to snort and waddle away.

Mrs. Eleanor Hendricks of nearby Pleasant View adopted Pinky when Pinky was born nearly two years ago.

Since then, Pinky has been bottle fed, corn fed, hand fed and table fed and has grown into a 463-pound sow, the prize pet of the Hendricks household.

But Pinky has a drinking problem. She's hooked on cola, and it takes an 8-pack a week to support her habit.

Mrs. Hendricks says Pinky also is particular — so particular she refuses "uncola" soft drinks.

Attorney Says Agencies Filing Unnecessary Suits

Directors of both Marin County's housing authority and redevelopment agency are "overzealously spending a fortune" to litigate matters that should be resolved outside the courts, it was charged yesterday. (Related story on page 1.)

Douglas H. Bosco, director of the human relations department, wrote county supervisors that the two agencies have hired a "bevy of lawyers" who are propsoering through this diversion of housing and redevelopment funds.

Bosco, a member of the state bar himself, said he was concerned with a growing tendency by some to use the courts as a means of usurping the political process in reaching a decision.

He suggested the county counsel's office be assigned to handle the two agencies' legal matters since that office is "not dependent on protracted legal proceedings for income" like private attorneys.

Bosco also proposed that supervisors replace directors if they are unable to resolve their differences without running to court.

"If public officials are so impotent in dealing with the constituencies that they must pay lawyers and others to ask judges to solve their problems, I feel these officials should be replaced and replaced again until the public is served by those who can make fair and equitable decisions on their own," he wrote.

The rights director cited two recent court cases involving the two agencies and said the "antics (of the directors) have cost the taxpayers thousands of dollars and have diverted money that is badly needed for providing housing."

He noted that last May, Chairman Collie Gaines of the redevelopment agency authorized a suit against the housing authority without approval from her board.

"The sole purpose of this lawsuit, in my opinion, was to preserve the job of Wllace K. Shepherd as executive director of both agencies," he said.

The redevelopment agency board subsequently ratified her action but "I was able to ascertain that most members knew little or nothing about the nature of the suit and seemed to be perplexed why one public agency should be suing another."

He continued: "While I have respect for Mr. Shepherd and have always been impartial as to his ability to perform his job, this lawsuit was foolish and frivilous by any standard and represented a 'last ditch' maneuver to force the housing authority to retain him against its wishes."

(That suit, now awaiting a trial date, involves a contention by the redevelopment board that the housing board acted improperly in dumping a joint policy statement that Sherpherd served at the pleasure of the two boards.)

So far, Bosco said, the suit has cost the redevelopment agency $2,000 and the housing authority $650 in legal fees and "it is only a matter of conjecture as to when this or other suits may reappear to soak the taxpayers even more money."

The right director also cited a recent federal court suit by Marin City residents, represented by Legal Aid, against the housing authority related to the public housing improvement project.

Despite offers of an early settlement by Legal Aid the housing authority ran up legal bills of more than $23,500 before accepting Legal Aid's original offer, Bosco said.

"In my opinion, these boards have abdicated their responsibility to the public by overzealously spending a fortune to send their laywers scurrying to the courthouse rather than committing the same time and money toward improved relations with their constituencies, he concluded.

After-School Recreation Slated

The Larkspur Park and Recreation Commission has set an after-school recreation program to be held at Henry C. Hall and Larkpur-Corte Madera schools, beginning next week.

Sheldon Zatkin, parks and recreation director, said that the program, to be from 3:30 to 5 p.m. will probably be under way by Wednesday. He said that it would be held Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at Larkspur-Corte Madera School and Tuesdays and Thursdays at Henry C. Hall School through the school year, if successful.

Concert Series Tickets Available

Residents wishing to attend Dominican College's 1974-75 chamber music concert series may join the school's Music Associates for a $12 fee, a spokesman said yesterday.

The fee admits two persons to four concerts. Donation of $25 will admit two to the concerts as well as boosting the school Music Associates Youth Scholarship Fund.

Performances scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in Angelico Hall are The Primavera Trio, Dec. 1; Will Sudmeier, David Krehbiel, Edward Haug and Roslyn Frantz, Jan. 19; George Sakellariou, Feb. 23, and Neal LaMonaco and Marilyn Thompson, April 13.

Cotati Formulates Citizen's Code

A new procedure for processing complaints from citizens has been formulated by the Cotati Police advisory committee.

The long-dormant advisory group was reactivated two weeks ago after several residents told the city council a member of the police force had brutalized several other residents.

Under an earlier complaint procedure, the committee insisted on complaints from the aggrieved parties themselves.

But the committee this week changed its policy so that anyone can file a complaint within 30 days of the incident in question.

The committee, under its new procedure, will appoint members who will investigate incidents and then report back to the other members.

At the point, a hearing is to be scheduled and held in the presence of the officer accused of wrong-doing.

Afterward the committee is to meet in closed session to determine the validity of the accusation.

Finally, if the committee believes it is warranted, the committee recommends action to the city council.

In this week's meeting the committee decided it still lacked evidence of misconduct by city officers. A similar decision was reached in a Sept. 24 session.

3 Debates Slated By Marin Unit

Three debates on the pros and cons of the 17 state issues on the November ballot will be held by the League of Women Voters of Southern Marin.

They will be at 49 Keats Drive, Mill Valley, 9:45 a.m., Oct. 23; at 35 Reed Ranch Road, Tiburon, 9:45 a.m., on Oct. 24, and at the Mill Valley Outdoor Art Club, East Blithedale and Throckmorton Avenues, 7:45 p.m., Oct. 24.

According to Maggi Nicholson of the league, panel members for the discussions will be league members Esther Eiler of Mill Valley, Muriel Elliot of Mill Valley, Robert Jeffrey of Tiburon, Barbara Rogers of Tiburon, Jany Rice of Mill Valley, Alison Ruedy of Mill Valley and Sandy Smith of Sausalito.

Summary arguments on the issues prepared by the state league will be given out. There will be a question and answer session with the audience.

The evening session on Oct. 24 will be cosponsored by the outdoor art club.

Police Seeking Shorthand Notes Of Water Suit

I-J Special Report

EL CERRITO — Police in this East Bay community said yesterday they have no clue in the disappearance of shorthand notes of testimony in a Marin developer's suit challenging the county's water moratorium.

The notes were stolen from the car of court stenographer Annemarie Olding Sunday night when she made a stop while enroute to another stenographer's house to confer on the case.

If the notes are not recovered, said Douglas P. Ferguson, attorney for the Marin Municipal Water District, the three-day trial may have to be repeated.

(Such notes are the personal property of the court stenographers and customarily are taken home by them for dictation and transcription because court schedules do not permit the work to be done during the day.)

Mrs. Olding said she was planning to dictate the notes — verbatin accounts of all testimony in the trial — when the theft occurred.

Because of delays in completion of a formal judgment from Judge E. Warren McGuire and in filing of appeal papers, a trial transcript was not ordered from Mrs. Olding until September, she said, though the trial took place in February.

The case, in which the McCarthy Co. of San Rafael won a ruling that the water moratorium is illegal, was appealed by the water district to the state court of appeals.

Without a trial transcript, no appeal can be heard, said Ferguson.

You can save enough money at this adult community to retire on.

If the cost of living is putting a dent in your retirement plans, relax. There are still a few great home bargains, if you know where to look. Temelec Greens is one of them.

It's near Sonoma, just 40 miles north of the Golden Gate Bridge. And it has just about everything you could want in a home and in a place to live.

The 2-bedroom, 2-bath villa homes are built in the Spanish tradition, with tile roofs and private garden courtyards. The kitchens have built-in appliances and crafted hard-wood cabinets. The spacious living rooms come with custom masonry fireplaces. The master bedroom suites have elegant dressing areas. There's wall-to-wall carpeting, and sliding glass doors to the patios. Every home has a separate garage. And the Homeowners Association takes care of the landscaping and maintenance of the grounds.

At our price of $29,950 to $32,950, the homes would be great bargains anywhere. But when you consider what comes with them, you'll want to come see everything for yourself.

Because when you move into Temelec Greens, an entire, historic estate is yours to enjoy. And unlike some other adult communities that charge you stiff monthly fees for clubhouse facilities, here it's all covered by the Homeowners Association fee of $30 a month.

There's a swimming pool, a picnic place, colorful formal gardens, fountains, lily ponds and old stone gazebos. Inside Temelec Hall (built in 1858), you can play billiards, browse through the library, meet friends for bridge or attend a social gathering. And only five minutes up the road, you can tee off at the Sonoma National Golf Course.

So if you or your spouse are over 45 (and your children living with you are over 18), take a drive to our part of the Wine Country and stroll through our model homes. Then visit Temelec Hall.

You'll find that the good old days of reasonable prices, fine workmanship, clear air and secure surroundings are not very far away after all.

Take the El Verano exit (Arnold Drive) off Highway 121 near Sonoma, and look for our signs.

Mrs. Olding said she was planning to dictate the notes — verbatin accounts of all testimony in the trial — when the theft occurred.

Because of delays in completion of a formal judgment from Judge E. Warren McGuire and in filing of appeal papers, a trial transcript was not ordered from Mrs. Olding until September, she said, though the trial took place in February.

The case, in which the McCarthy Co. of San Rafael won a ruling that the water moratorium is illegal, was appealed by the water district to the state court of appeals.

Without a trial transcript, no appeal can be heard, said Ferguson.

You can save enough money at this adult community to retire on.

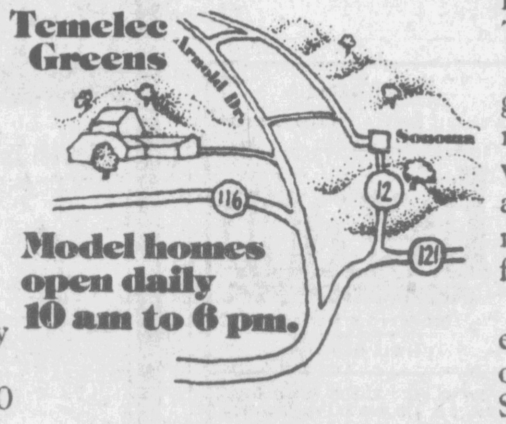
If the cost of living is putting a dent in your retirement plans, relax. There are still a few great home bargains, if you know where to look. Temelec Greens is one of them.

It's near Sonoma, just 40 miles north of the Golden Gate Bridge. And it has just about everything you could want in a home and in a place to live.

The 2-bedroom, 2-bath villa homes are built in the Spanish tradition, with tile roofs and private garden courtyards. The kitchens have built-in appliances and crafted hard-wood cabinets. The spacious living rooms come with custom masonry fireplaces. The master bedroom suites have elegant dressing areas. There's wall-to-wall carpeting, and sliding glass doors to the patios. Every home has a separate garage. And the Homeowners Association takes care of the landscaping and maintenance of the grounds.

At our price of $29,950 to $32,950, the homes would be great bargains anywhere. But when you consider what comes with them, you'll want to come see everything for yourself.

Because when you move into Temelec Greens, an entire, historic estate is yours to enjoy. And unlike some other adult communities that charge you stiff monthly fees for clubhouse facilities, here it's all covered by the Homeowners Association fee of $30 a month.



Model homes open daily 10 am to 6 pm.

There's a swimming pool, a picnic place, colorful formal gardens, fountains, lily ponds and old stone gazebos. Inside Temelec Hall (built in 1858), you can play billiards, browse through the library, meet friends for bridge or attend a social gathering. And only five minutes up the road, you can tee off at the Sonoma National Golf Course.

So if you or your spouse are over 45 (and your children living with you are over 18), take a drive to our part of the Wine Country and stroll through our model homes. Then visit Temelec Hall.

You'll find that the good old days of reasonable prices, fine workmanship, clear air and secure surroundings are not very far away after all.

Take the El Verano exit (Arnold Drive) off Highway 121 near Sonoma, and look for our signs.

Temelec Greens:
2-bedroom homes from $29,950.

GORDONS RENOVATE OLD HOMES

By DON KEOWN

"We like the old Victorian and brown-shingle houses, and we just hate to see them torn down and lost," says Mrs. Richard Gordon.

Thus she explains what has become virtually a second profession for her husband — the purchase, restoration and re-sale of old houses and apartment complexes that have fallen into disrepair.

Virginia Gordon fully shares her husband's interest in these often-historic places, and his enthusiasm for saving them from the wrecker.

AND THE practice has proven to be not only esthetically satisfying, but also financially rewarding.

Restored to an immaculate condition that it probably did not even know in its younger years, the mansion at 248 Laurel Place is now on the market.

And restorer Gordon expects the handsome place to bring a price of $129,950.

This from a house that until Gordon acquired it earlier this year, seemed doomed to demolition.

Richard Gordon's interest in old homes has been lifelong.

Born in Los Angeles, he came to Marin County as a first grader, and to a San Rafael that was still enriched by many handsome old mansion homes of the early pioneers — structures that in many cases have since been lost.

AS AN adult, a career as a carpenter heightened his appreciation of these finely-constructed showplaces.

Nine years ago, he entered the general contracting and structural pest control field.

And as owner of Hinkley & Gordon, licensed both for contracting and termite control, he found himself face-to-face with one of the facts of life of his business: Winters were just not as busy as other seasons.

And thus there was the problem of how to keep the employees on his payroll occupied during the colder, wetter months, when there were lulls in the demand for Hinkley & Gordon's services.

Eight years ago, with Virginia's help, he hit upon a solution. Why not acquire old homes and buildings in a state of disrepair, use his own skills and the manpower of Hinkley & Gordon employees during the slack winter period, and fix them up for re-sale?

THEY TRIED out their idea first on a modest scale on a Spanish style house in Ross.

Following restoration, they rented the house for a year, then sold it at a profit that made their efforts and investment well worthwhile.

That success led to other similar ventures.

One such project was the restoration of a Victorian house in San Rafael that is now the Gordon family home.

Three older and rundown apartment complexes were acquired and rehabilitated into attractive properties. One has been sold. The Gordons still own the other two and benefit as landlords.

But the Laurel Place mansion is for the Gordons the most satisfying example to date of their hobby-occupation.

Along with the exceptional quality of its materials and the spaciousness and stateliness of its design, the big house has an interesting history.

AS RESEARCHED by Gordon and by Betty Blumenfeld of Fox & Carskadon, Realtors, San Rafael, who is handling the showing and sale of the property, the recorded history of the land begins in 1873 when it is listed on a map dated Oct. 14 of that year in the recorder's office as one of the parcels making up the exten-

Marin County Honor Farm: A Feeling Of Openness

By DOROTHY KELLY

Stan Mitchell had been cooling out in the Marin City County Jail for several months. One long day stretched into another with nothing to do but talk to his cell mates, play cards and eat.

His total environment consisted of a barred cell shared with five other men, five metal tables and stools bolted to the floor, and an open toilet and washbowl.

Ennui was interrupted only by the nerve-jangling slams of giant steel doors separating one cell block from another and the constant rattle of keys used to open them.

STAN HAD been determined eligible for transfer to the Marin County Honor Farm, and he was ready for almost any alternative the day the deputy sheriff came to unlock his cell and lead him down the long concrete hall that connected the cell blocks. One door after another clanked behind the two men until they finally arrived at the booking desk.

Overhead swung greedy eyes of a closed circuit television camera, one of many in the building that transferred all activities of the jailed prisoners to a bank of T.V. screens on the wall opposite the desk.

Stan was given back belongings that had been confiscated upon entering and informed that he could take his own clothes to the Honor Farm and any other personal articles including radios, books, pictures and his guitar.

HE WAS driven out to the hills of Terra Linda where the Honor Farm is by a member of its staff. The place was nothing fancy, just a cluster of pale green concrete block buildings, but the best thing about it to Stan was a feeling of openness. There was only a five foot cyclone fence around the area, left over from the days when it served as a military base, and no bars on the windows. Here there were no prisoners, only residents.

At this booking desk nothing was taken away from Stan. He was issued linens, given special duties and assigned one of the seventy bunks in the barracks. It was pointed out to him that the gate was always open, but to escape usually meant a year back in the county jail.

The Honor Farm was not like any type of correction Stan had experienced before. Its staff is aware that lack of meaningful job opportunities is a major cause of our rising crime rate and they encourage the resident to become a member of the work furlough program; to continue working or find employment within his own community while serving his sentence. The men are also encouraged to go to school to improve vocational skills, and for those who want it, there is an educational program allowing them to attend the College of Marin for credit.

VISITING sessions at the farm are much longer and more frequent than at the county jail. Residents are free to visit with their families in the dining room or on the lawn and sometimes during these hours they have picnics and hold their own rock concerts.

Group therapy meets several times a week led by staff and trained volunteers, a yoga class is held every Saturday, and there is an art class. One of the most interesting programs is a videotape workshop organized by Judy Lynn, a volunteer.

In the workshop, residents learn to operate video equipment, use it in therapy groups and make their own tapes. Underway now is a thirty minute tape on TASC, a program for drug addicts. So far, most of the VTR equipment has been borrowed, but it is hoped that the class will have funds for its own training, repair, maintenance and operation facility.

NONE OF the activities or workshops is compulsory, but Town Hall is. Staff and residents meet twice each month and the program is turned over to the men who are encouraged to express any complaints they may have. There is an on-going resident committee that meets weekly to discuss them and make recommendations to the staff.

One of the complaints most often mentioned by the residents is the lack of conjugal visits with their wives. Another is jurisdictional discrimination against offenders who cannot afford to hire their own attorneys. In such cases, the accused is assigned an attorney by the Public Defenders Office, but the office is too overworked to adequately help them.

They resent the fact that people with money committing similar offenses usually do not serve time. The men also feel that they are being punished for doing things that a large segment of the free population does with regularity; smoking marijuana, being intoxicated and incurring parking fines.

ALL OF THE residents have been convicted of misdemeanors or felonies and are serving sentences for from forty-five days to one year, and fall into one of four categories:

1. Men with jobs at the time of sentencing who are automatically placed on a work furlough program by a Probation Officer specializing in approving work-school releases.

2. Those who are allowed to serve time only on week ends so that they will not sive holdings of pioneer William T. Coleman.

The parcel then measured 288 feet by 519 feet, extending from what is today Laurel to Mission Avenue, then called Sixth Street.

Sometime after that 1873 date the first unit of the house still standing at what is now 248 Laurel Place was built.

Gordon says he has been unable to fix the date or the original occupants, although one former resident described it as "the Cheda place."

Coleman built his own house on the lower southwest corner lot fronting on Sixth Street or Mission Avenue, and it, too, still exists.

The years have reduced the 1873 parcel to approximate dimensions of 70 by 210 feet, shown in the assessor's Book 11 on Page 17 as Parcel Number 11-173-34.

THE YEARS in between have seen a series of changes in the ownership.

On June 1, 1884, as shown in Book Q, Page 370, the parcel, then measuring 288 feet by 340 feet, was deeded to Carrie M. P. Coleman. The northern portion of the property apparently was sold to a James S. Porteous of San Francisco who reconveyed that land to Oberend G. Rose on Jan. 28, 1884, for $2,000 (Book Z, Page 448). On Nov. 13 of that same year, Rose passed the property on to Cornelius A. Hoyt from New York (Book I, Page 318).

> "We are looking specifically for another old apartment building to which we can bring new life," Gordon says. "But we are also on the watch for another house — a Victorian or a brown-shingle."

After Hoyt's death the property was sold at auction on Oct. 23, 1895 to Dr. Samuel M. Augustine for $1,693.65.

There are photographs in the Marin County Historical Society Museum in San Rafael's Boyd Park that show Dr. Augustine as an associate member of the county's medical association.

Dr. Augustine proceeded to have the original house already located there raised to become the upper floor of the building. Under it he had constructed an area that provided a living room, a dining room, a kitchen and a library.

It was this addition that lifted the home to the status of mansion and one of the town's showplaces.

DR. AUGUSTINE retained ownership of the property until Oct. 3, 1924, and during the 29 years he was the owner he acquired additional property from Eliza and Vincent Neal on Sept. 9, 1906, and sold one lot on Dec. 9, 1907, to E. F. Broman.

At that time an easement eight-feet wide was provided to give access between Laurel Place and Mission Avenue, an easement that still exists today.

In 1924 Dr. Augustine sold the property to Hazel M. and James F. Peattie, a transaction recorded in Book 56, Page 119. The Peatties borrowed $5,280 from William P. Murray and M. J. Pedrotti to make their purchase.

The land and home passed from the Peatties to May S. Armando on Nov. 18, 1927, (Book 133, Page 395 and 396), for the sum of $1,927. And from the Armandos it passed on May 29, 1928, into the hands of Harriet R. and Maj. George H. White for $4,500.

The Whites used the big house not only as a residence, but also as a school for boys for a number of years.

THE WHITES lost their house in a Depression year foreclosure proceeding to American Trust Co. on Feb. 7, 1933 (Book 259, Page 95).

On Dec. 5, 1935, Queenie M. and James W. Haynes became the new owners (Book 243, Page 355). Haynes was a teacher at San Rafael High School. He and his wife sold two lots, one on the west side of the property to Robert M. Coman on May 17, 1949, the other on the southeast section of the parcel to Carl D. Yeakey on May 17, 1949.

An additional lot beyond the now existing property line was given by the Hayneses to their son who later sold it.

On Nov. 7, 1956, the Haynes reconveyed title to the remaining bulk of the one-time Coleman parcel to Alice B. and Vernon Heir.

An apartment unit beneath the main house had been added in 1949, making of the brown-shingle place a three-story structure.

But the years had taken their toll of the old house and it had fallen into serious disrepair.

GORDON says he was attracted to the house by the potential he saw in it. And he and his wife determined to act after he was told by city officials that the deteriorating structure was scheduled for demolition.

The transaction was completed March 22, 1974.

The house contains 4,629 square feet of floor space, plus the 700-square-foot one-bedroom apartment, and two sweeping verandas of 1,060 square feet.

The mansion contains 13 rooms, including five bedrooms, a solarium, a large formal living room, a breakfast room, a library, formal dining room, informal dining area, laundry room, one and a half baths, storage room and basement.

In the living room, dining room and library built by Dr. Augustine nearly 80 years ago, the Gordons preserved the fine old white cedar and redwood paneling.

THE DINING ROOM and living room each have their own brick fireplace, and there is a third fireplace in the home.

An unusual feature are the four pink Venetian marble wash basins in three upstairs bedrooms and the bath.

Sliding pocket doors permit a complete separation of key rooms.

The major "updating" accomplished by the Gordons came in the kitchen where not only electrical appliances, but new hardwood cabinets of New England design were installed.

Another major modernization was the installation of three new forced air furnaces.

The electrical system was revamped to meet modern standards.

But throughout the project the Gordons carefully avoided anything they felt clashed with the spirit and history of the mansion. The paint for both the interior and exterior was chosen to fit the original colors and style of the building. Mrs. Gordon selected wallpaper for the bedrooms that also harmonized with the history of the place and the period for which it speaks so eloquently.

It is, say the Gordons, the epitome of the type of buildings they had in mind when they decided to begin their "operation rescue" for Marin showplaces threatened by time or progress. And they have more in mind.

GORDON, whose company has done such renovations as the much praised Lark Creek Inn in its Victorian mansion in Larkspur, says he and his wife are looking closely now for something that will keep them and their co-workers occupied this winter.

"We are looking specifically for another old apartment building to which we can bring new life," he says. "But we are also on the watch for another house — a Victorian or a brown-shingle."

And particularly the Gordons have in mind some fine old place, or places, over which is hovering the dooming shadow of the wrecker's iron ball.

A RED BRICK FIREPLACE and original white cedar paneling bring a warmth to the large living room, 36 by 26, which is enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gordon, who have plunged into the hobby-occupation of restoring fine old homes.

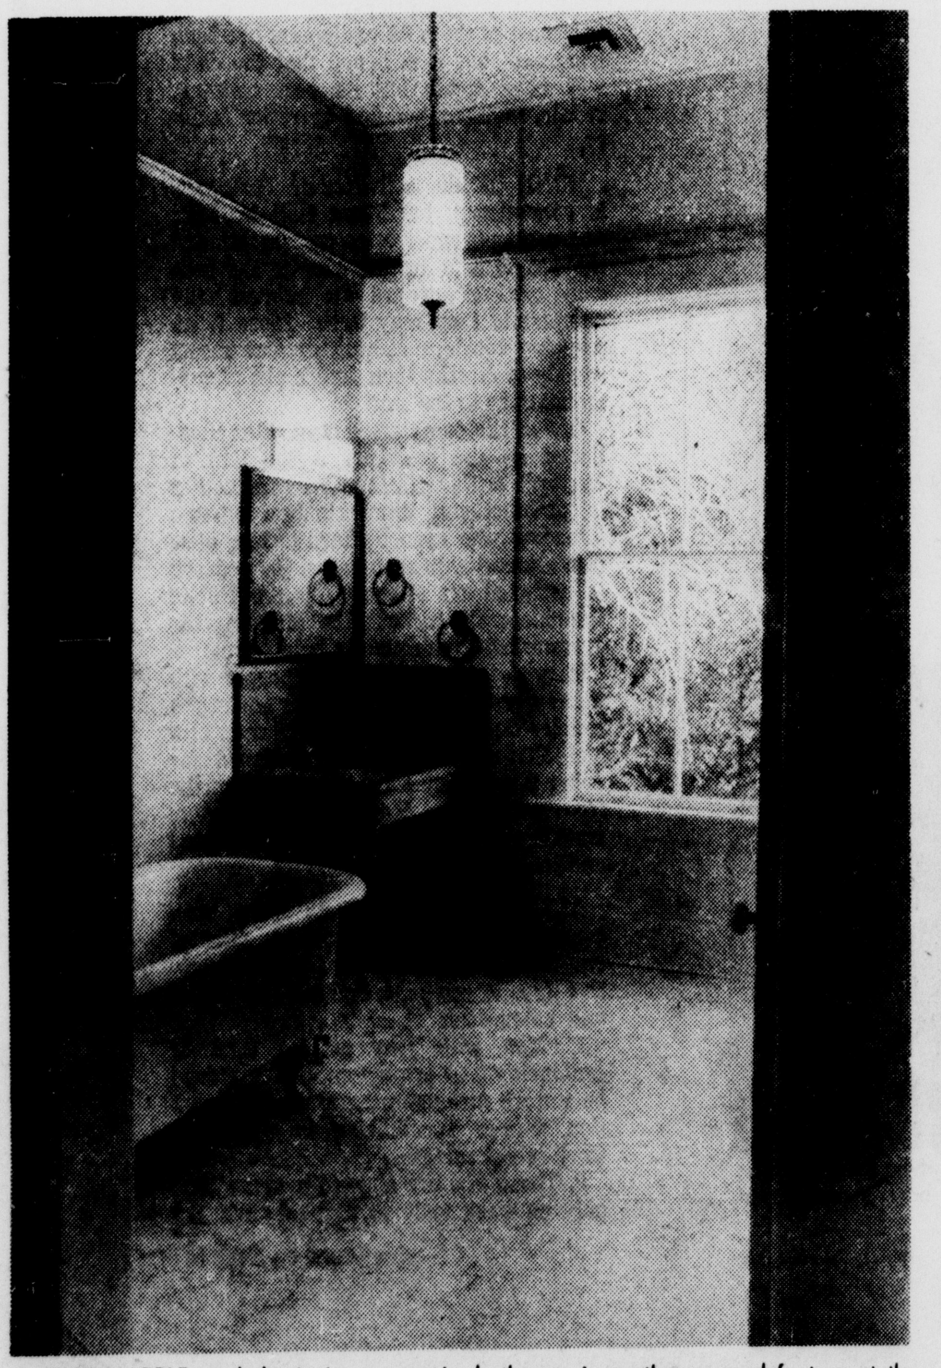
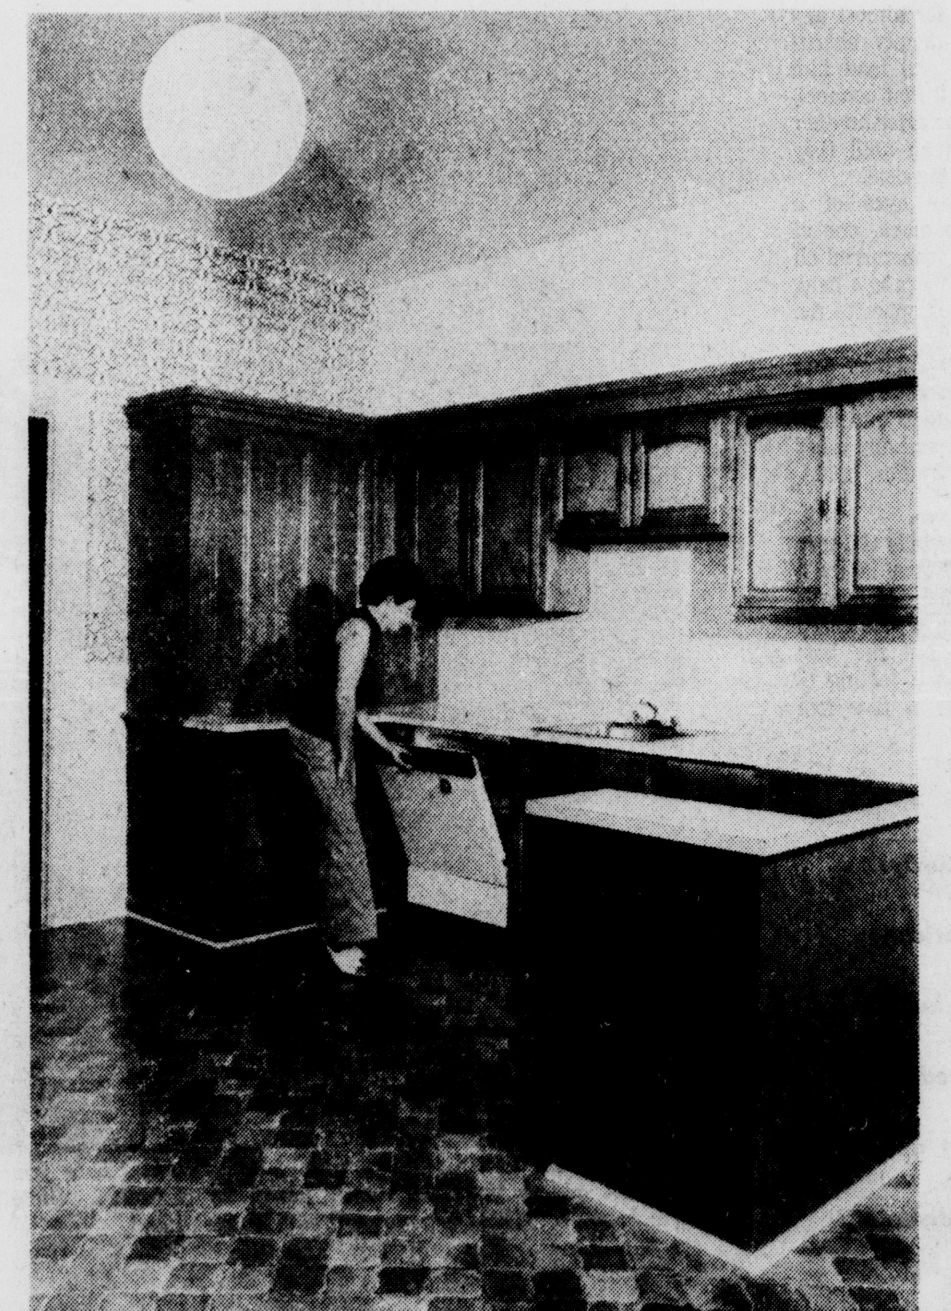
THE FRONT PORCH with both upper and lower verandas is enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. Gordon and Betty Blumenfeld of Fox and Carskadon, real estate brokers. The two sweeping verandas cover a total of 1,060 square feet.

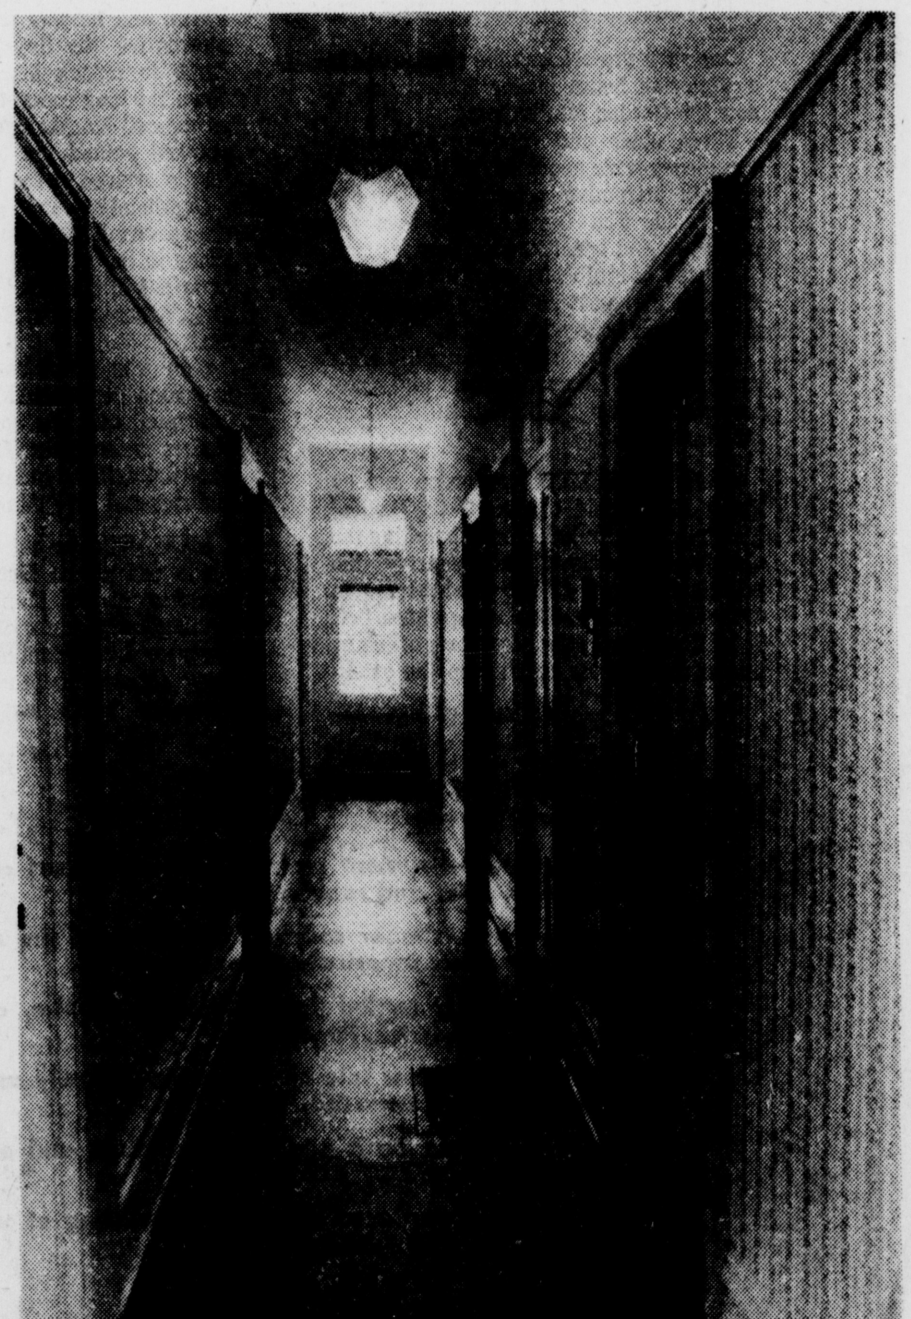
A STAIRWAY TO THE LIBRARY is a prime example of the craftmanship that went into the making of homes in Marin's early days. The library which has fine old paneling can be shut off by sliding doors to provide quiet.



A PINK MARBLE wash basin in an upstairs bathroom is another unusual feature at the Laurel Place mansion, which has a total of four pink marble basins, including three in upstairs bedrooms.



MODERNIZATION was accomplished with the installation of electrical appliances in the kitchen and new hardwood cabinets of New England design. Examining the kitchen is Betty Blumenfeld of Fox and Carskadon, realtors, who is handling the showing and sale of the property.



THE SIZE OF THE HOME is exemplified in this view down the long hallway and the doorway at the end probably originally was the front doorway.

There are photographs in the Marin County Historical Society Museum in San Rafael's Boyd Park that show Dr. Augustine as an associate member of the county's medical association.

Dr. Augustine proceeded to have the original house already located there raised to become the upper floor of the building. Under it he had constructed an area that provided a living room, a dining room, a kitchen and a library.

It was this addition that lifted the home to the status of mansion and one of the town's showplaces.

DR. AUGUSTINE retained ownership of the property until Oct. 3, 1924, and during the 29 years he was the owner he acquired additional property from Eliza and Vincent Neal on Sept. 9, 1906, and sold one lot on Dec. 9, 1907, to E. F. Broman.

At that time an easement eight-feet wide was provided to give access between Laurel Place and Mission Avenue, an easement that still exists today.

In 1924 Dr. Augustine sold the property to Hazel M. and James F. Peattie, a transaction recorded in Book 56, Page 119. The Peatties borrowed $5,280 from William P. Murray and M. J. Pedrotti to make their purchase.

The land and home passed from the Peatties to May S. Armando on Nov. 18, 1927, (Book 133, Page 395 and 396), for the sum of $1,927. And from the Armandos it passed on May 29, 1928, into the hands of Harriet R. and Maj. George H. White for $4,500.

The Whites used the big house not only as a residence, but also as a school for boys for a number of years.

THE WHITES lost their house in a Depression year foreclosure proceeding to American Trust Co. on Feb. 7, 1933 (Book 259, Page 95).

On Dec. 5, 1935, Queenie M. and James force, to the task of restoring the original charm of the old home, while adding modern conveniences, particularly in the antiquated kitchen.

The house contains 4,629 square feet of floor space, plus the 700-square-foot one-bedroom apartment, and two sweeping verandas of 1,060 square feet.

The mansion contains 13 rooms, including five bedrooms, a solarium, a large formal living room, a breakfast room, a library, formal dining room, informal dining area, laundry room, one and a half baths, storage room and basement.

In the living room, dining room and library built by Dr. Augustine nearly 80 years ago, the Gordons preserved the fine old white cedar and redwood paneling.

THE DINING ROOM and living room each have their own brick fireplace, and there is a third fireplace in the home.

An unusual feature are the four pink Venetian marble wash basins in three upstairs bedrooms and the bath.

Sliding pocket doors permit a complete separation of key rooms.

The major "updating" accomplished by the Gordons came in the kitchen where not only electrical appliances, but new hardwood cabinets of New England design were installed.

Another major modernization was the installation of three new forced air furnaces.

The electrical system was revamped to meet modern standards.

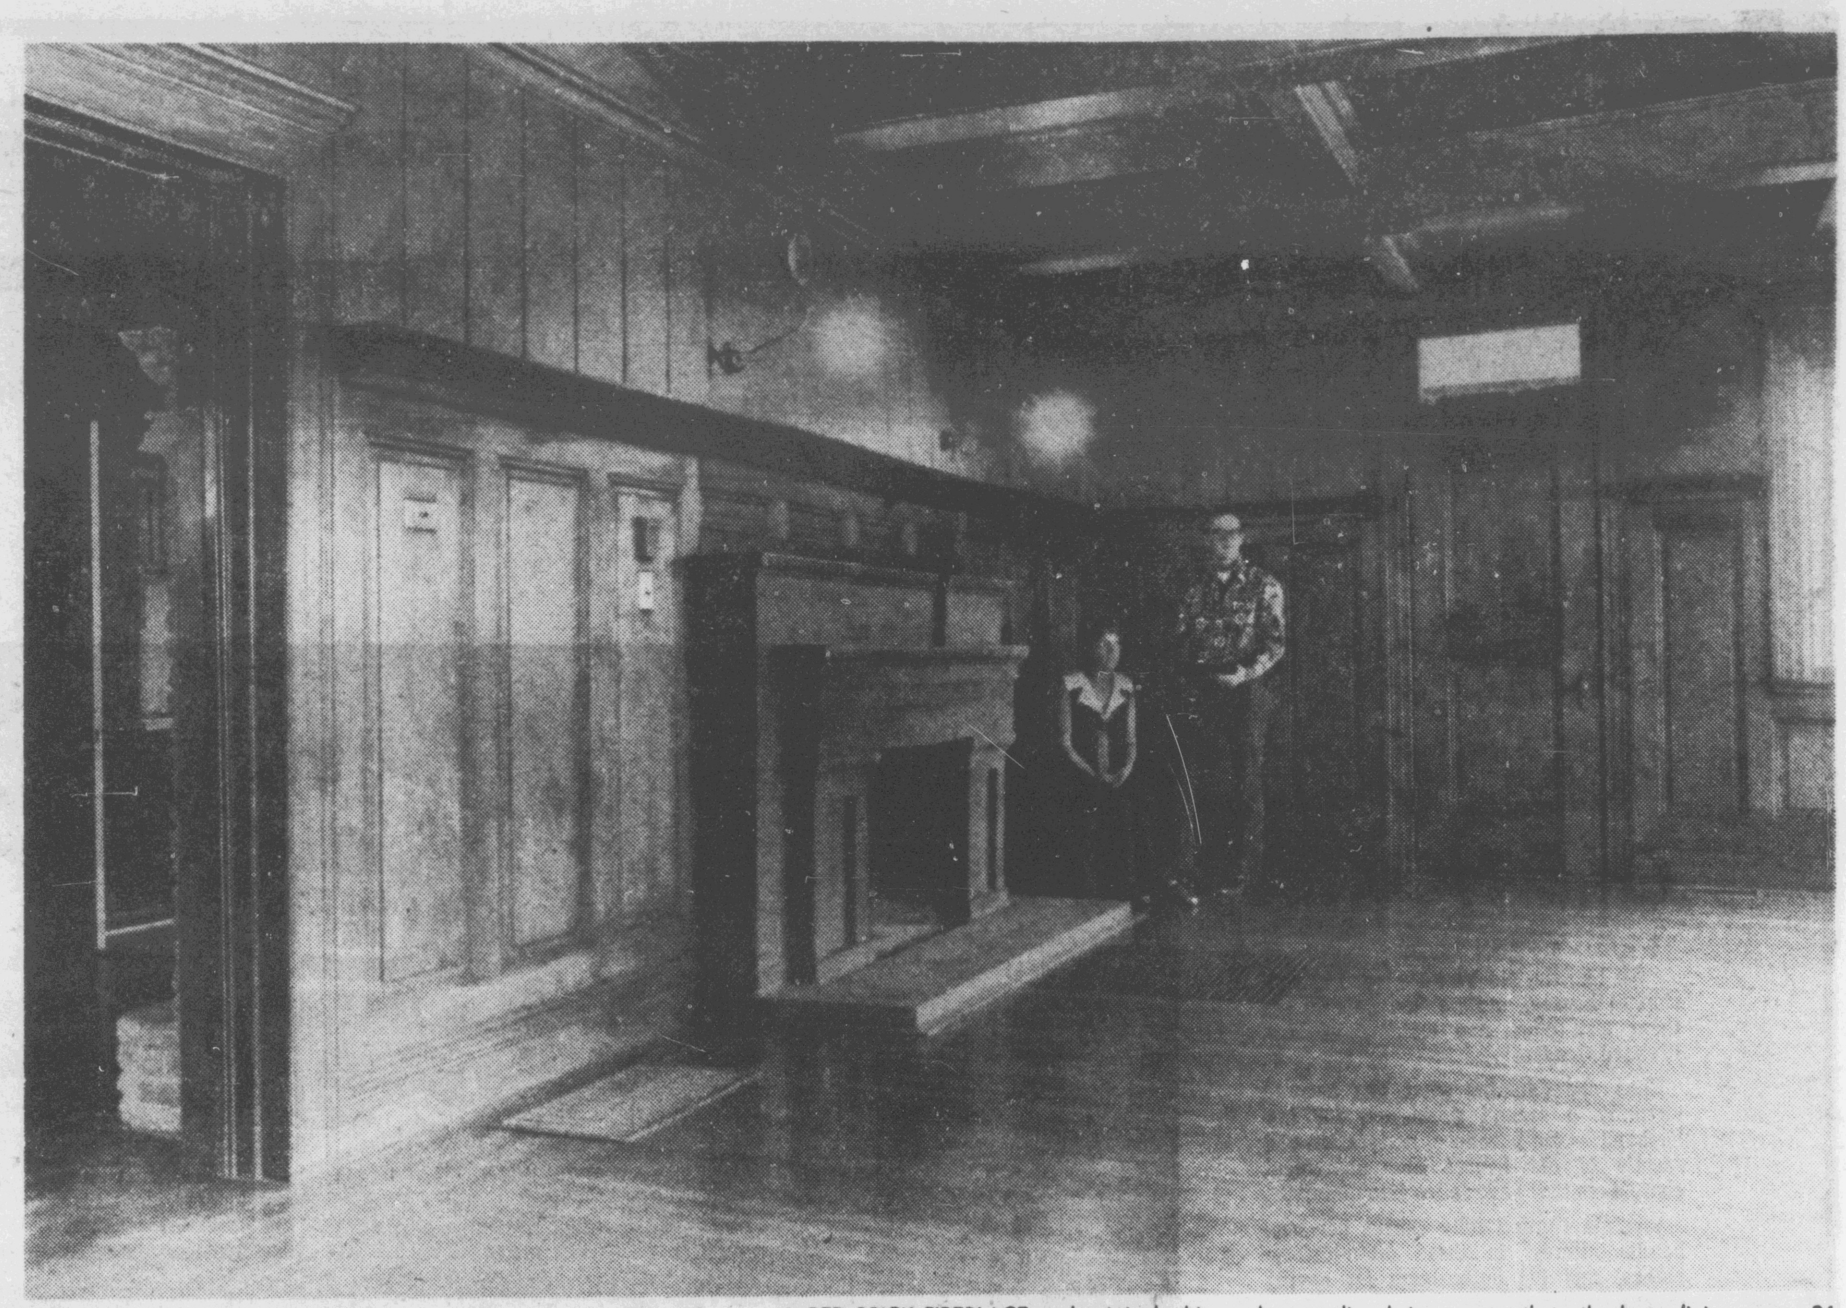
But throughout the project the Gordons carefully avoided anything they felt clashed with the spirit and history of the mansion. The paint for both the interior and exterior was chosen to fit the original colors and style of the building. Mrs. Gordon selected wallpaper for the bedrooms that also harmonized with the history of the place and the period for which it speaks so eloquently.

It is, say the Gordons, the epitome of the type of buildings they had in mind when they decided to begin their "operation rescue" for Marin showplaces threatened by time or progress. And they have more in mind.

GORDON, whose company has done such renovations as the much praised Lark Creek Inn in its Victorian mansion in Larkspur, says he and his wife are looking closely now for something that will keep them and their co-workers occupied this winter.

"We are looking specifically for another old apartment building to which we can bring new life," he says. "But we are also on the watch for another house — a Victorian or a brown-shingle."

And particularly the Gordons have in mind some fine old place, or places, over which is hovering the dooming shadow of the wrecker's iron ball.



A RED BRICK FIREPLACE and original white cedar paneling bring a warmth to the large living room, 36 by 26, which is enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gordon, who have plunged into the hobby-occupation of restoring fine old homes.

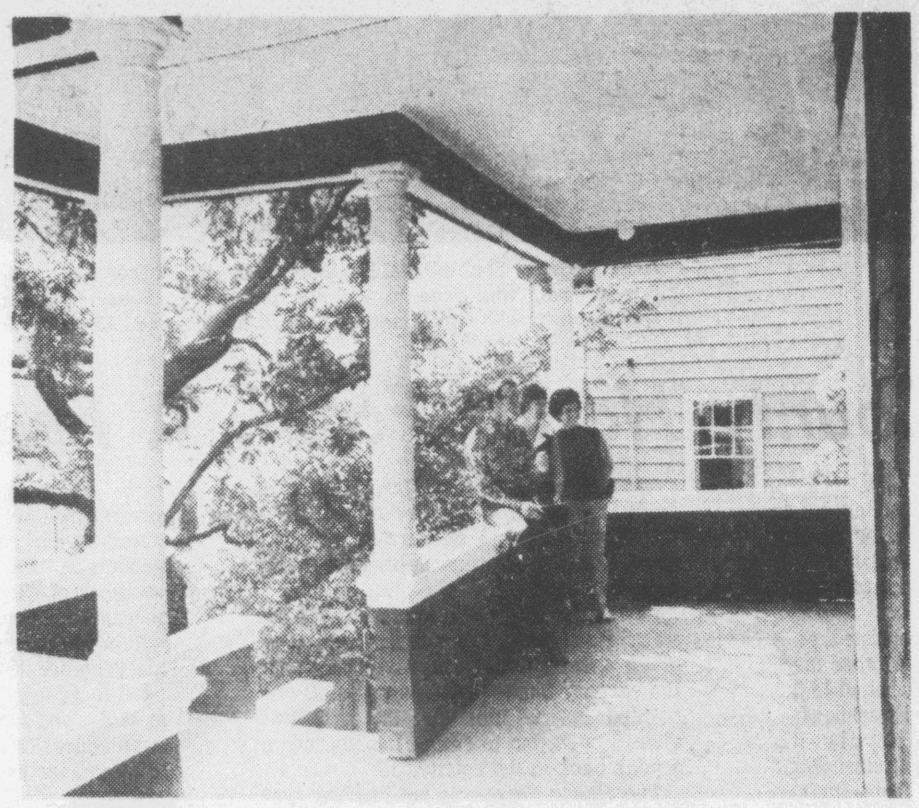
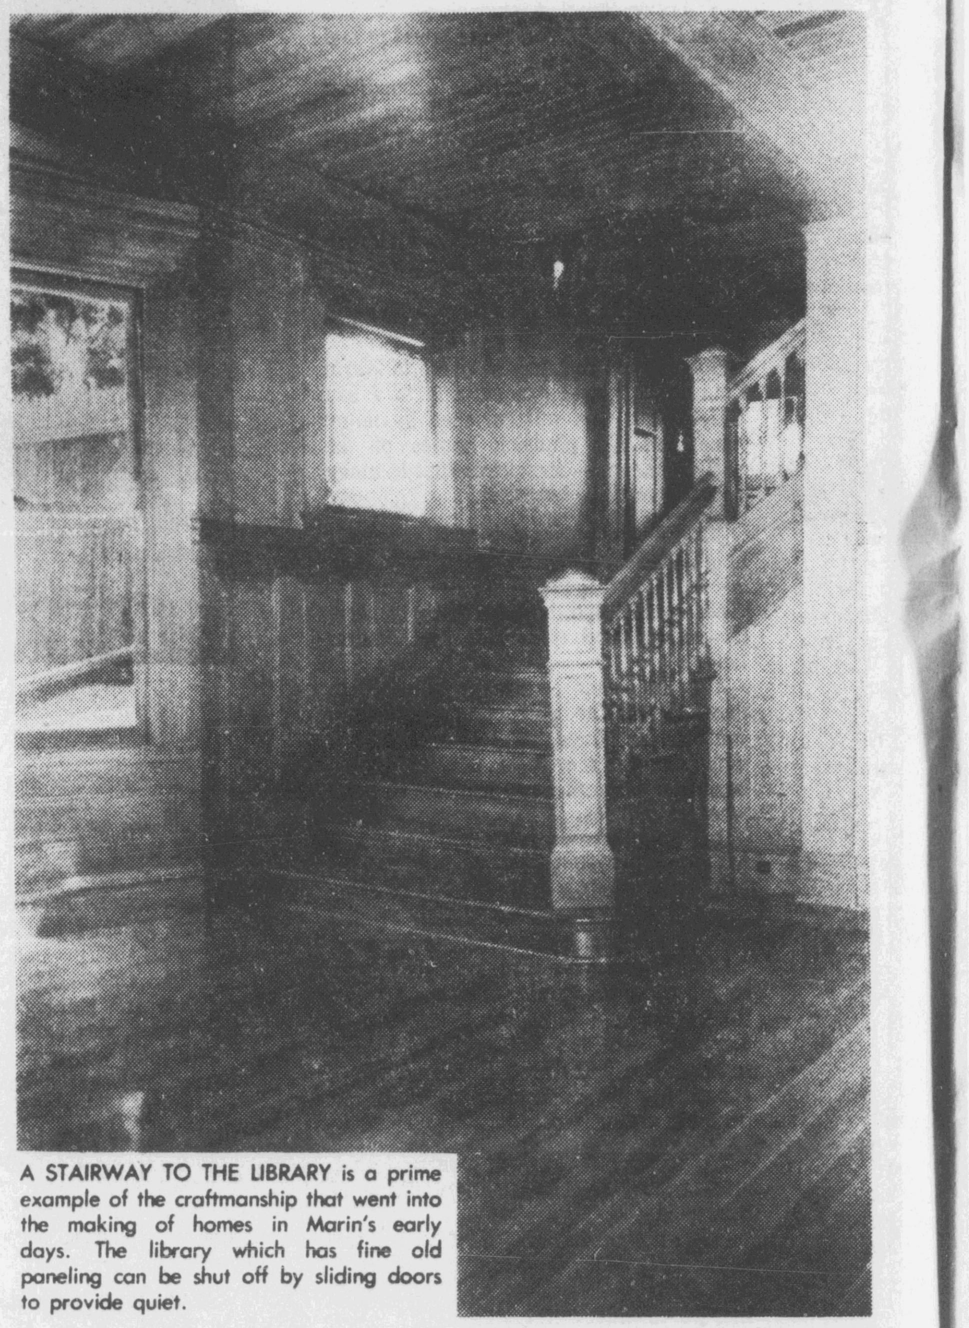
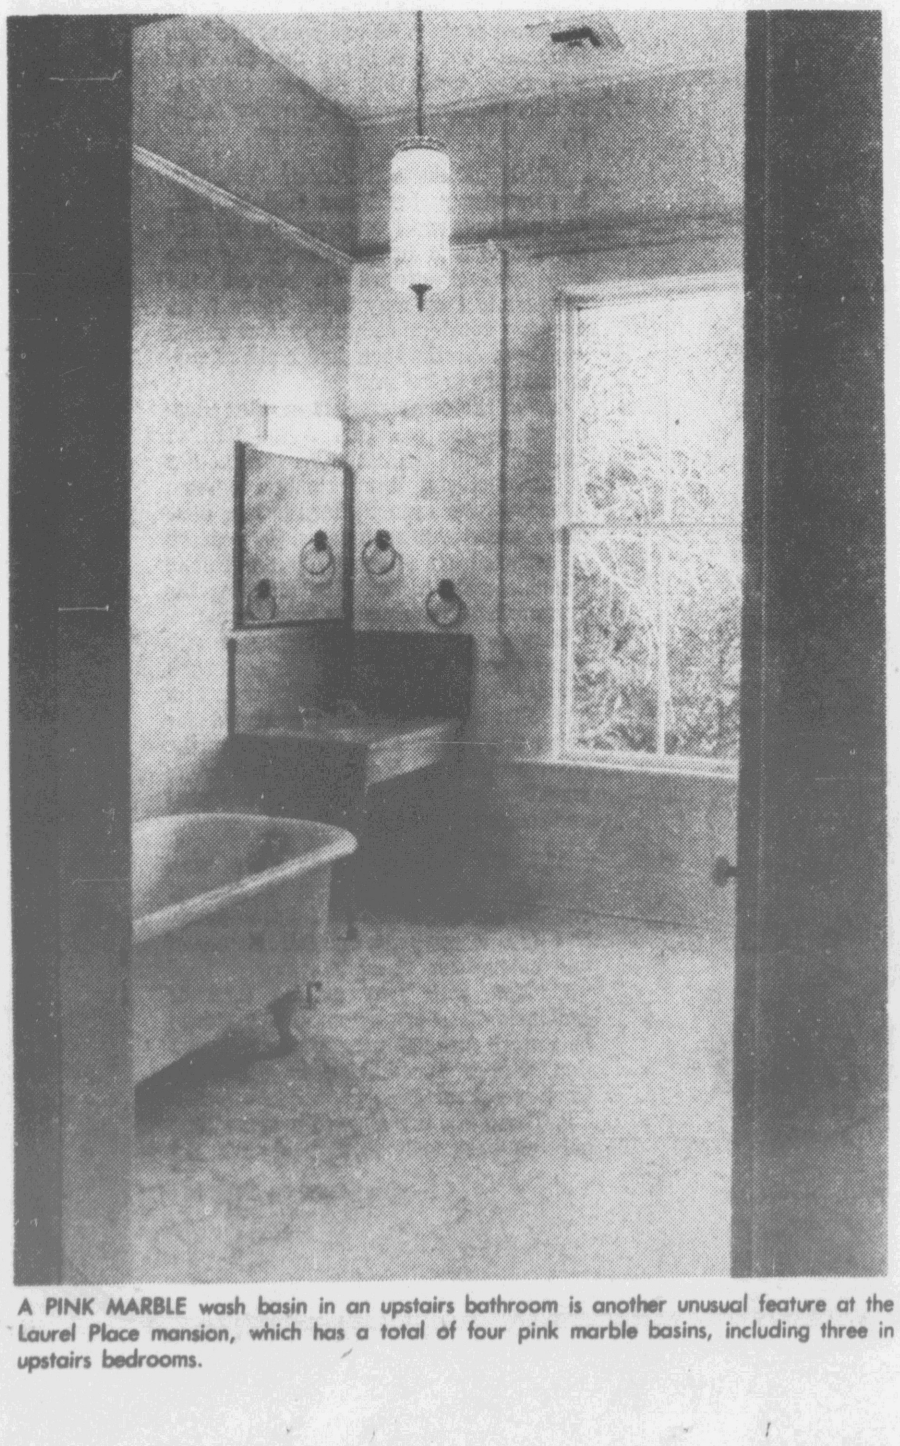
MARIN LIVING



THE FRONT PORCH with both upper and lower verandas is enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. Gordon and Betty Blumenfeld of Fox and Carskadon, real estate brokers. The two sweeping verandas cover a total of 1,060 square feet.

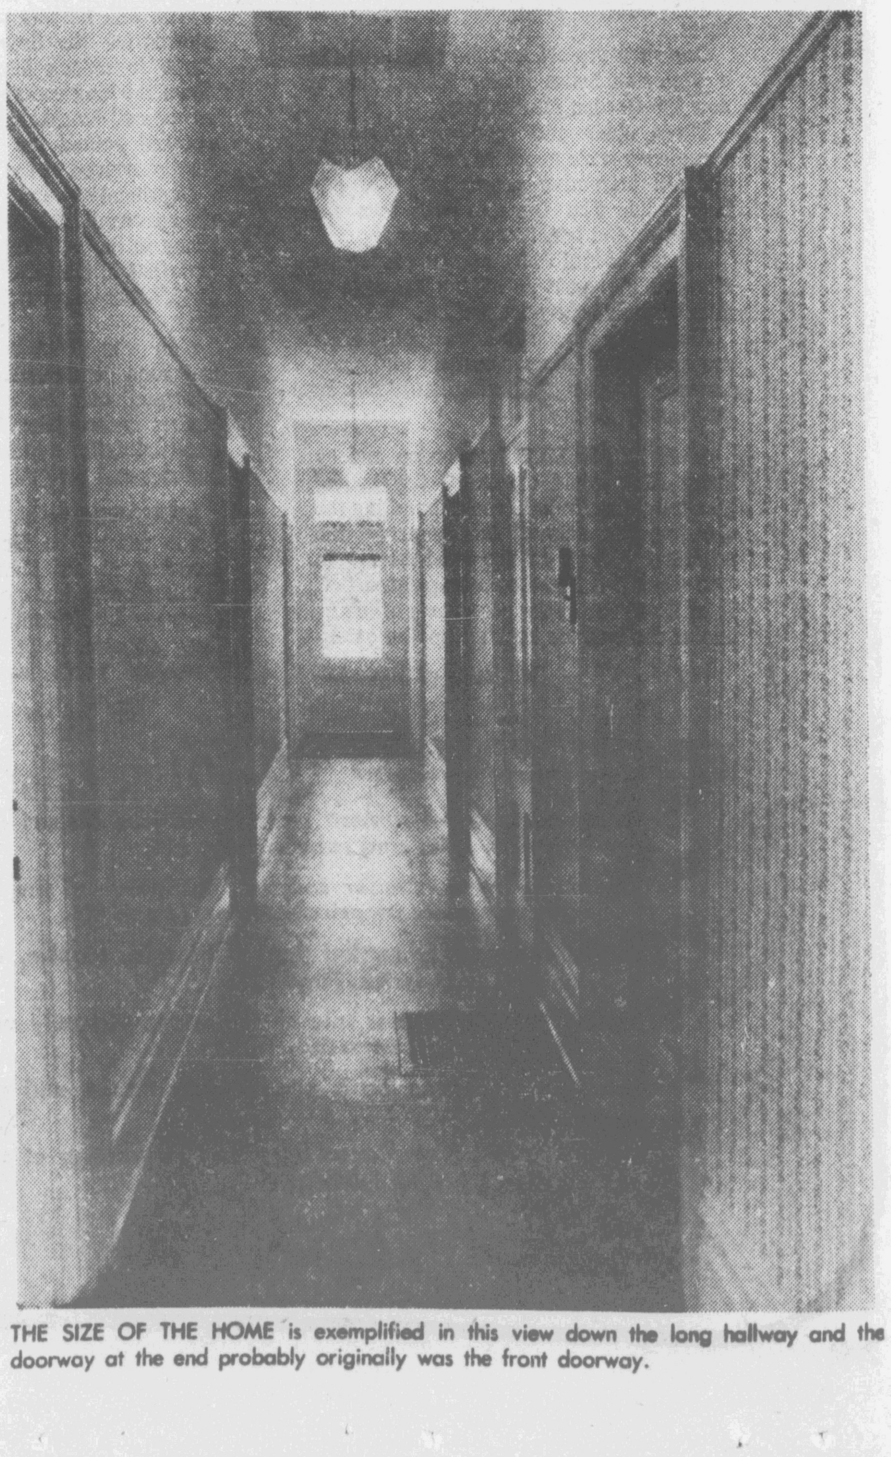


A STAIRWAY TO THE LIBRARY is a prime example of the craftmanship that went into the making of homes in Marin's early days. The library which has fine old paneling can be shut off by sliding doors to provide quiet.



A PINK MARBLE wash basin in an upstairs bathroom is another unusual feature at the Laurel Place mansion, which has a total of four pink marble basins, including three in upstairs bedrooms.

MODERNIZATION was accomplished with the installation of electrical appliances in the kitchen and new hardwood cabinets of New England design. Examining the kitchen is Betty Blumenfeld of Fox and Carskadon, realtors, who is handling the showing and sale of the property.



THE SIZE OF THE HOME is exemplified in this view down the long hallway and the doorway at the end probably originally was the front doorway.

Educational Programs, Family Visits At Farm

have to leave their families and jobs.

3. Men who are part of a federally funded program who are without jobs and therefore ineligible for work furlough. They may be selected to receive educational and vocational training and counseling by a special three-person team of counselors.

4. Trustees: Those who choose to work in the Honor Farm kitchen or on grounds maintenance and thereby receive five days off their sentence for each thirty days worked.

There is a staff of thirteen at the Honor Farm. They are chosen for role models as well as for their ability to enforce rules. Dual roles can cause conflict because it is difficult to be both a confidant and disciplinarian but that is considered preferable to having both guards and counselors as in the case of conventional prison systems.

Out of the thirteen, nine are Marin County Department Corrections Staff and three, Federal Project Staff members. There are three ex-offenders, two of whom are former heroin addicts.

DIRECTOR AND life force of the institution is Ralph Merola, a straightforward, articulate man who wears a conservative Poncho Villa mustache and drives a Honda 550 to work every morning. He is a sociologist and prior to the Honor Farm, served with the California Youth Authorities and the Los Angeles and Marin County Probation Departments.

Merola isn't known for diplomacy at board meetings and refuses to play politics with county officials. He walks a tightrope between giving his men as much freedom as is practical and struggling to satisfy "law and order" advocates that he is not running a loose operation. It is a lonely job and one without much appreciation from either side.

When I was in his office he was on the phone objecting to his immediate superior about a new rule requiring handcuffs to be worn by any resident being returned to the county jail due to misconduct. "We've never had a problem, and I see no reason for such an unnecessary and degrading precaution," he was saying.

"These are not dangerous men out here", he explained to me. "Most of them have committed property and drug offenses, and about 40 per cent have juvenile records. We try to keep them out of prison by offering new, more constructive behavior patterns. The alternate to this is spending time in a prison where the inmate has no opportunity to change and no constructive means of releasing anger and tension that build up in such circumstances. He is made to feel that society has locked him up and thrown away the key."

WORKING CLOSELY with Merola is Leon Le Gant, Senior Coorective Worker and an experienced drug treatment counselor. Mr. Le Gant points out that only 30 per cent of the county jail inmates are employed when convicted, and therefore eligible for work furlough. The Honor Farm finds work for the other 70 per cent that would otherwise be sitting in cells doing "dead time" and re-enforcing negative social attitudes.

Lorraine Box is one of the three women on the staff. She is black, tall and svelte and was once a high fashion model. She tests residents in order to analyze their abilities and shortcomings and counsels them to determine what educational curriculum to pursue. Sometimes they need special tutoring before entering college and she arranges this. Lorraine was anxious to impress the fact that there is no similar community correction facility in the county for women.

The Honor Farm has been open not quite a year. Inspiration for such an institution was formed in the Kelgord Report commissioned by Governor Reagan. The report denounced the conventional (and unsuccessful) type of prison, recommendedthat the Adult Authority be abolished, and criticized the State Department of Corrections. This displeased the Governor and he sought to stifle its findings. In spite of his efforts, it was read by the Committee for Prison, Humanity and Justice, 1414 Fourth Street, San Rafael, a non-rpofit organization that strives to inform the public of existing prison conditions and seeks to offer alternatives to our present penal system.

"These are not dangerous men out here," Merola explained. "Most of them have committed property and drug offenses and about 40 per cent have juvenile records. We try to keep them out of prison by offering new, more constructive behavior patterns."

RELAXING ON THE GROUNDS of the Marin County Honor Farm, Stan Mitchell, now a Petaluma musician, and his wife, Karen, enjoy the system at the farm which has longer and more frequent visiting hours than at the Marin County Jail and permits residents to visit with families in the dining room.

MARIN LIVING

As a result of pressure from the C.P.H.J., a Task Force was assigned to study the Keldgord Report and January 1974, the Marin County Honor Farm became a reality. Today it operates under the jusirdiction of the Probation Department.

THE HONOR FARM is offering opportunities that some of the men have never had before. It gives them a sense of responsibility and self respect in a learning, positive atmosphere. There is hope for change, but more funds and community involvement are needed. At this point, job opportunities are one of the Farm's greatest needs and there are more men looking for work than there are jobs available for someone serving time.

Almost as important to the men as jobs is the knowledge that people on the outside care and have not forgotten them. So far, volunteers have been few, but Ms. Lynn already sees the need for a community board of directors to co-ordinate them with the staff and residents. Interested persons can contact Lorraine Box at the Honor Farm.

Stan Mitchell is now living in Petaluma with his wife and children where he is busy fulfilling engagements with his own band.

ENTERING THE HONOR FARM with Leon Le Grant, senior corrective worker, was the start of a change for Stan Mitchell from his life in Marin County Jail cell where inactivity was deadening to a place where he lived as a "resident" rather than "prisoner."

"He (Merola) walks a tightrope between giving his men as much freedom as is practical and struggling to satisfy 'law and order' advocates that he is not running a loose operation."

VISITING BY TELEPHONE through a glass partition at the Marin County Jail stands in stark contrast to the open, more satisfying visiting periods at the Marin County Honor Farm.

Renaissance Sounds Ringing In Sausalito

By LARRY C. BAKER

Hurdy-gurdies, lutes, psaltries and rebecs in various stages of completion line the walls of the Lyn Elder Workshop in the Industrial Center Annex in Sausalito's Gate Five.

These Renaissance musical instruments are made and sold by Elder and two apprentices, Mark Holsman of San Francisco and Herb Hendrickson of Sausalito.

ELDER, a Mill Valley resident since 1959, was introduced to instrument making when he was drafted into the Army. He was stationed in Atlanta, GA, where a violin maker took him on as an apprentice. He also learned the art of making renaissance instruments there.

After being discharged from the Army, he moved back to Marin County and opened his own shop, first in Mill Valley, then moving to Sausalito in 1973.

"The competition in this field is limited, even though there are a number of good lute makers in the world," Elder said. "The competition is more quality oriented than quantity."

Elder said his instruments are purchased by both private players and college music departments. "Most of our individual customers are historical musicians," he said.

THERE IS a great body of renaissance and baroque music available, especially for the lute, according to Elder. There is also a revival of interest in music from this period.

"The 15-strong lute will probably be our main instrument for sale, once we are established as lute makers and build a reputation for quality instruments," he said.

"The lute held the place during the renaissance of the piano today," Elder said. "It was the principal instrument for composers and accompanists. Any group of historical musicians must include a lute player (lutanist).

The lute is made with various numbers of strings, but Elder makes primarily 15-stringed models. The sound board has a hole in the center which is covered by a carving known as a lute rose.

THE LUTE ROSES are carved directly from the sound board. Elder uses designs which are copies of the roses used on authentic pieces. The most famous rose is from a design by Leonardo DaVinci.

The hurdy-gurdy, also known as a "wheel fiddle," is a three-stringed instrument having two drone strings and a melody string. The strings vibrate with the turning of a crank on one end of the instrument and the melody is created by playing a small keyboard.

The psaltry is a small harp with sixteen strings and the rebec is a small three-string fiddle. Elder makes all of these instruments in the shop.

Most of the instruments are made from a variety of woods, using spruce for the sound board and good hardwoods for the back. Walnut, maple and rosewood are favorites among the hardwoods. The fingerboards are made of ebony and the peg box is usually of maple or a hardwood to match the back.

The instruments are trimmed in rosewood and the pegs and veneer are boxwood.

The plans and specifications for the instruments made in the Workshop are the result of a European tour. Elder visited museums throughout Europe taking photographs and measurements of authentic Renaissance instruments to give his work additional authenticity.

Elder not only makes the instruments, he also plays them.

HE IS presently a member of San Francisco Pro-Musica, a serious professional group of five instrumentalists and three singers.

This group plans an Alaskan tour in November and appears often on campuses throughout the Bay Area. They are also joined by a corps of dancers from the East Bay for the Renaissance Faire held annually in Northern Marin.

Elder is also the principal string instrumentalist in Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary's Renaissance Consort, a new group being brought together by Dr. John Johnson, the director of the Seminary's music program.

The Consort will include Max Lyall, concert harpsichordist and new assistant professor of church music at the Seminary, and several instrumentalists and singers.

Elder also teaches guitar and plays guitar and recorder with a folk singing group.

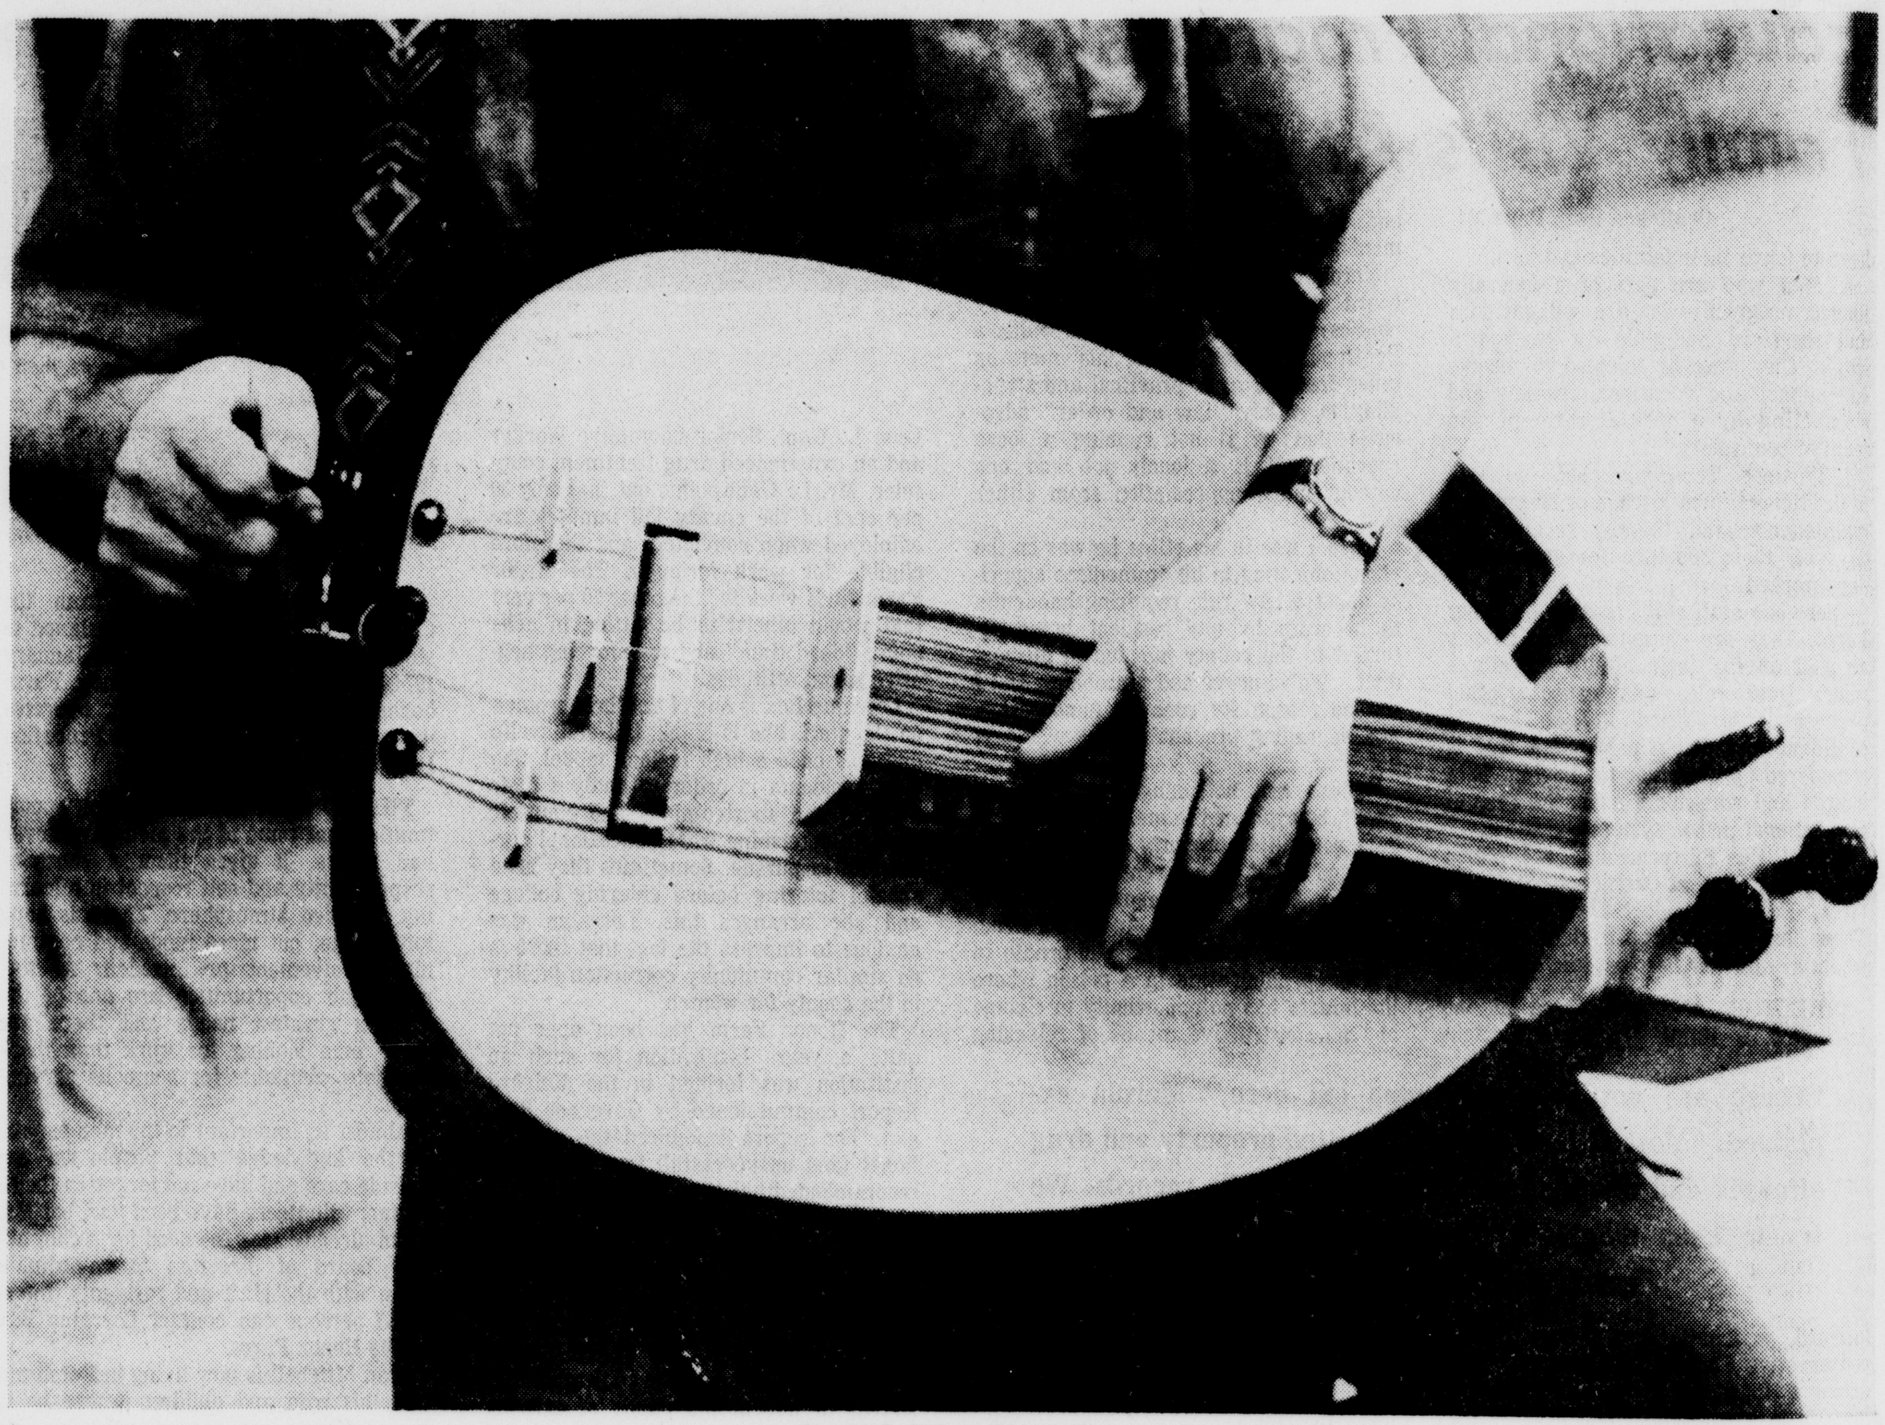
THE MOST FAMOUS lute rose, as shown, above, was designed by Leonardo DaVinci. Sausalito instrument maker Lynn Elder uses designs fashioned on authentic pieces, with the carving in the center of the sound board.



PLAYING THE HURDY-GURDY provides additional enjoyment for Lyn Elder of Mill Valley, who makes renaissance instruments at his Sausalito workshop. The three-stringed instrument is played by turning a crank with one hand and a keyboard with the other.

CONCENTRATION IS THE KEYWORD as renaissance instrument maker Lynn Elder makes tuning pegs for lutes, which were the principal instruments for composers and accompanists during the renaissance.

IN SEARCH OF THE AMERICAN DREAM: Settling In America

Editor's Note: This is the third of 18 articles exploring the theme, In Search of the American Dream. This article discusses the settling of America and the surprises encountered by colonists. The series is designed as a study course, with or without college credit. And the other 15 articles or lectures will follow each week in the I-J's Marin Living section.)

By WINTHROP D. JORDAN
Distributed by Copley News Service

When Englishmen first began to scent opportunity in America, they were told two contradictory "facts" about the new land. They were told, on the one hand, that it was a "desert," a "waste firmament." They were told, at the same time, that "savages" lived there.

For Englishmen and Anglo-Americans both statements remained correct for centuries: America was both empty (an opportunity) and filled (with problems).

AMERICA'S apparent emptiness can be explained by considering English perspectives at that time. The native Indians were not numerous by European standards, especially not in comparison to the enormous expanse of territory they lived in. What we would call a relatively low density of population, Englishmen were then perfectly justified in perceiving as "few." More importantly, Englishmen thought the Indians had no "settled habitations."

> "What we now know to have been eastern woodland Indian cultures which rested on a combination of agriculture and hunting were perceived by Englishmen as a thoroughly uncouth (i.e., un-English) sort of people who neither occupied the land (properly) nor would stay put."

What we now know to have been eastern woodland Indian cultures which rested on a combination of agriculture and hunting were perceived by Englishmen as a thoroughly uncouth (i.e., un-English) sort of people who neither occupied the land (properly) nor would stay put.

Initially, therefore, Englishmen had no notion of exterminating the native peoples, nor even of sweeping them aside; even though people already lived in America, Englishmen thought, such an immense land had plenty of room for more.

THE WARPED perception that caused the English to see Indians as unsettled wanderers was in large measure a function of how they saw society at home.

The severe, almost catastrophic dislocations which accompanied the English Reformation and Henry VIII's fluctuating tempers had resulted in large numbers of displaced persons.

Thrown off the land onto English countryside and villages, they became the "wandering beggars" to whom Hakluyt, the "trumpet" of American colonization, had referred in his "Discourse Concerning Western Planting." Social dislocation and what we would call "underemployment problems" persuaded many Englishmen that England was overpopulated in general and especially overpopulated by "undesirables."

Given the assumptions of the day, America was seen not as a dumping ground for these undesirables (as Australia was to seem much later) but as an empty and fertile ground for the settlement, employment, and hence moral and social reformation of the offscourings of English society.

AT THE same time, as the Protestant Reformation took increasing hold on English society, certain religious fringe groups came to think of America as a refuge from a mounting threat of persecution. They were not immune, any more than Englishmen generally, to the scent of opportunity which by the early 1600s was so very much in the air.

The various streams of attraction to America and propulsion from England were thoroughly mixed.

In retrospect, the early "great migration" (1620-1650) of the English to America is particularly striking in terms of the number and variety of people and motivations involved. Relative to the population of Europe, probably more persons left Europe for the New World during those decades than at any time before or since.

The English went principally to three areas: the eastern Caribbean (Barbados and the few small Leeward Islands), the Chesapeake Bay (Virginia and Maryland), and eastern New England (the Massachusetts Bay and the Plymouth Colony).

SOME WENT against their will, especially the Scots and Irish, victim-prisoners of the English Civil Wars, who migrated to the West Indies. Many went for better fortunes and better times: such people probably predominated in the Chesapeake area and were certainly prevalent everywhere else.

Some went in the hope of fulfilling the faith we describe as religious, and while it would be right to ascribe "religion" as the predominating motive of those who came to New England, it would be radically incorrect to assign thereby a lack of otherworldly faith to those not fortunate enough to have joined God's special project there.

However sure various breeds of Englishmen were about God's intentions, the various English communities in America turned out to be different sorts of places. In the islands, sugar and the slave labor it seemed to require took over almost totally.

> "The Pilgrims in Plymouth and the Puritans in Massachusetts have long attracted attention because they were so articulate about their own goals."

THE CHESAPEAKE settlements, with a diffuse population, spilled all over the eastern, watered portions of the area. After almost being wiped out by the native inhabitants, the colonists eventually succeeded in establishing a populous but sparsely settled community in Virginia, devoid of real villages and devoted mainly to staple agriculture. (They hunted but mainly they farmed; ironically they went, unintentionally, part way toward reproducing the Indian woodland cultures their forebears had disliked.)

Only in New England (and this development was to persist for a very long time) did the English manage to reproduce in the New World what they thought valuable, as a social mode, in the Old.

The Pilgrims in Plymouth and the Puritans in Massachusetts have long attracted attention because they were so articulate about their own goals.

THOUGH THE Puritans were a much larger, wealthier, and better educated group, they shared with the Pilgrims a powerful sense of mission. In England, their own low-church, modified-Calvinist Protestantism seemed to be on the defensive against the forces of the Crown, the closely allied Church of England, and, not least, the numerous legions of ungodliness.

Determined that their "true religion" and the Lord's will should prevail in the wilderness, they set about to establish "Bible Commonwealths" where families, society, the polity, and the churches would all be harmoniously ordered according to God's Word.

All this required inner discipline and inevitably (given their view of the essential nature of man) outer discipline as well. They sternly punished lying, drunkenness, fornication and all the myriad other sins to which men and women, and even children, seemed so wickedly inclined.

WINTHROP D. JORDAN
Professor of history

THEY ENFORCED orthodoxy and discipline in the churches; they harried out religious dissenters and went so far as to hang two Quakers. The Puritans were indeed pious, intolerant moralists, but they were not prudes. They punished sexual offenses but they were not in the least surprised by them. They wore colorful clothing, suitable, of course, to their social stations.

When Harvard College thought it necessary to limit drinking at commencement, the authorities restricted degree-takers to three gallons of wine per man.

> "When Harvard College thought it necessary to limit drinking at commencement, the authorities restricted degree-takers to three gallons of wine per man."

Whether the Puritans succeeded or failed in their mission is a matter of definition and they were themselves ambivalent on the matter. Even as they railed at the prevalence of wickedness among them and at the decline of true piety, they remained acutely conscious that their society and churches were superior to England's.

WHILE THEY were keenly aware of men's tendency to disperse to new, empty lands, they prided themselves on their regulated pattern of settlement, ordered town by ordered town. They were, indeed, the most realist of utopians. They expected to establish a New Israel in the wilderness, and they demanded godly thoughts and behavior of its members; at the same time they knew that Adam's fall from grace meant that men were inherently and perversely wicked.

People who demand perfection yet do not expect to achieve it are inevitably condemned to ambivalence about the results.

There were other such experiments in America, but with major differences. The most notable and undeniably successful was Pennsylvania. There William Penn and his fellow Quakers (whom the Puritans hated, partly because they had so much in common) deliberately founded a colony that would welcome all varieties of Protestants.

THE IDEA was a relatively new one, but it led quite directly, as things turned out, to populousness and prosperity even beyond the dreams of the founders. It led also to an even greater novelty-ethnic diversity, a development of such critical importance in all the colonies that it deserves separate attention in another lecture.

MARIN POET'S CORNER

GOLD THIEF

O clumsy bee! with miser's heavy load.
You robbed a squash flower close beside the road.
And unashamed, your pollen fashioned crest
Is no more burdened than your swollen breast
As you fly onward to your sweet abode.
With dreams of well filled hives a pleasant goad.
The time and distance never discommode.
With diligence your life is doubly blest,
O clumsy bee!

Your buzzing industry becomes your code
And summer claims a honeyed episode;
A fruitful harvest yield is half unguessed
While triumph rules with artful trait confessed
In liquid gold concocted a la mode,
O clumsy bee!

CORTE MADERA MYRTLE ALICE McCARCY

LONELY COYOTE

Through the hush of a desert night desert night
Came a mournful, eerie cry —
A lonely coyote baying his woes
To a frosty, moonlit sky.

"Oh, Little One, are you lost from home,
Were full of the moon that hung above
your kin?
Do you weep for the friends you used to I sing to my friend
up there, in the sky;
For the warmth of your mother's den?"

In the stillness, he turned and looked at me
And grinned, and his yellow eyes
Were full of the moon that hung above
In the wintry, midnight skies.

"Oh, foolish one, I do not weep!
What you heard was a lovely tune —
I sing to my friend up there, in the sky;
I sing to the Man in the Moon!"

IN SEARCH OF THE AMERICAN DREAM: Settling In America

Editor's Note: This is the third of 18 articles exploring the theme, In Search of the American Dream. This article discusses the settling of America and the surprises encountered by colonists. The series is designed as a study course, with or without college credit. And the other 15 articles or lectures will follow each week in the I-J's Marin Living section.)

By WINTHROP D. JORDAN
Distributed by Copley News Service

When Englishmen first began to scent opportunity in America, they were told two contradictory "facts" about the new land. They were told, on the one hand, that it was a "desert," a "waste firmament." They were told, at the same time, that "savages" lived there.

For Englishmen and Anglo-Americans both statements remained correct for centuries: America was both empty (an opportunity) and filled (with problems).

AMERICA'S apparent emptiness can be explained by considering English perspectives at that time. The native Indians were not numerous by European standards, especially not in comparison to the enormous expanse of territory they lived in. What we would call a relatively low density of population, Englishmen were then perfectly justified in perceiving as "few." More importantly, Englishmen thought the Indians had no "settled habitations."

"What we now know to have been eastern woodland Indian cultures which rested on a combination of agriculture and hunting were perceived by Englishmen as a thoroughly uncouth (i.e., un-English) sort of people who neither occupied the land (properly) nor would stay put."

What we now know to have been eastern woodland Indian cultures which rested on a combination of agriculture and hunting were perceived by Englishmen as a thoroughly uncouth (i.e., un-English) sort of people who neither occupied the land (properly) nor would stay put.

Initially, therefore, Englishmen had no notion of exterminating the native peoples, nor even of sweeping them aside; even though people already lived in America, Englishmen thought, such an immense land had plenty of room for more.

THE WARPED perception that caused the English to see Indians as unsettled wanderers was in large measure a function of how they saw society at home.

The severe, almost catastrophic dislocations which accompanied the English Reformation and Henry VIII's fluctuating tempers had resulted in large numbers of displaced persons.

Thrown off the land onto English countryside and villages, they became the "wandering beggars" to whom Hakluyt, the "trumpet" of American colonization, had referred in his "Discourse Concerning Western Planting." Social dislocation and what we would call "underemployment problems" persuaded many Englishmen that England was overpopulated in general and especially overpopulated by "undesirables."

Given the assumptions of the day, America was seen not as a dumping ground for these undesirables (as Australia was to seem much later) but as an empty and fertile ground for the settlement, employment, and hence moral and social reformation of the offscourings of English society.

AT THE same time, as the Protestant Reformation took increasing hold on English society, certain religious fringe groups came to think of America as a refuge from a mounting threat of persecution. They were not immune, any more than Englishmen generally, to the scent of opportunity which by the early 1600s was so very much in the air.

The various streams of attraction to America and propulsion from England were thoroughly mixed.

In retrospect, the early "great migration" (1620-1650) of the English to America is particularly striking in terms of the number and variety of people and motivations involved. Relative to the population of Europe, probably more persons left Europe for the New World during those decades than at any time before or since.

The English went principally to three areas: the eastern Caribbean (Barbados and the few small Leeward Islands), the Chesapeake Bay (Virginia and Maryland), and eastern New England (the Massachusetts Bay and the Plymouth Colony).

MARIN POET'S CORNER

GOLD THIEF

O clumsy bee! with miser's heavy load.
You robbed a squash flower close beside the road.
And unashamed, your pollen fashioned crest
Is no more burdened than your swollen breast
As you fly onward to your sweet abode.
With dreams of well filled hives a pleasant goad.
The time and distance never discommode.
With diligence your life is doubly blest,
O clumsy bee!

Your buzzing industry becomes your code
And summer claims a honeyed episode;
A fruitful harvest yield is half unguessed
While triumph rules with artful trait confessed
In liquid gold concocted a la mode,
O clumsy bee!

CORTE MADERA
MYRTLE ALICE McCARCY

LONELY COYOTE

Through the hush of a desert night desert night
Came a mournful, eerie cry —
A lonely coyote baying his woes
To a frosty, moonlit sky.

"Oh, Little One, are you lost from home,
Were full of the moon that hung above
your kin?
Do you weep for the friends you used to I sing to my friend
up there, in the sky;
For the warmth of your mother's den?"

In the stillness, he turned and looked at me
And grinned, and his yellow eyes
Were full of the moon that hung above
In the wintry, midnight skies.

"Oh, foolish one, I do not weep!
What you heard was a lovely tune —
I sing to my friend up there, in the sky;
I sing to the Man in the Moon!"

Tale Of Espionage Gory

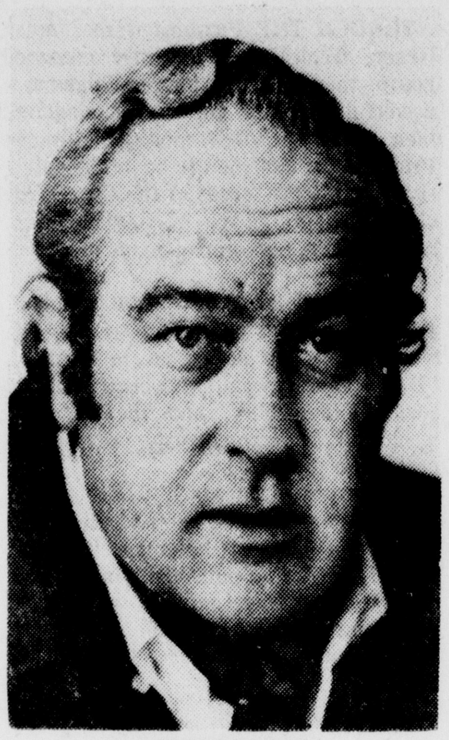
THE RHINEMANN EXCHANGE by Robert Ludlum; Dial, 460 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Well before its appearane in print, Robert Ludlum's "The Rhinemann Exchange" was assured of a secure nook in the best-seller lists by three factors:

1. Its selection for distribution by the Literary Guild.
2. The success of Ludlum's earlier thrillers, "The Matlock Paper" and "The Scarlatti Inheritance."
3. The seemingly insatiable public appetite for spy fiction, particularly when it comes from an author well-known in the genre, and/or when the book is sufficiently thick to separate it from the general run of suspense novels.

"The Rhinemann Exchange" is not really undeserving of the success it is already enjoying. In fact, at least for this reader, it is markedly superior to "The Matlock Paper" that first made Ludlum a name writer.

The time is World War II. An American agent-assassin operating independently in Spain is suddenly withdrawn from there for a new assignment in Buenos Aires. In Argentina, David Spaulding finds he has been drafted as a cog in a ruthless, cynical and ambitious international machine that is trying to pull off a trade between the two warring sides. It is a deal that can further or save the careers of both its U.S. and German exponents. But it is also a deal that can be hideously costly in terms of human lives.



ROBERT LUDLUM
Master of intrigue

Not surprisingly, both sides are willing to pull out all the stops to protect themselves, even if it means the murder of other men, including Spaulding. And there are interested third parties with a stake.

To Ludlum's credit, he does not engage in the cryptic, elliptic narrative style now practiced to excess by some of the best known writers of spy thrillers. His plot, while complicated, is spelled out for the reader all the way, and does not require him to fill in gaps or to make surmises.

But this reader questions what seems to be an excess of sadism and gory detail in Ludlum's story. Perhaps a certain amount of this can be excused and attributed to the cause of realism, but Ludlum seems to lay it on much too thick, leaving his reader bathed in torn flesh and splattered blood.

As to whether one prefers the more cerebral approach of a Le Carre or Deighton, or the hellbent action of Ludlum's novels, that is probably a matter of personal preference.

Apparently both sides have their supporters in goodly numbers, as espionage continues to market well upon the literary marts.

Hollywood Story Lags With B Movie Touch

It's the film industry vs. artistic integrity in Fitzroy Davis' novel of Hollywood in the late 1940s, "Through the Doors of Brass." Though author Davis worked in Hollywood as a screenwriter during the '40s, he has not been able to get much life into his novel. The story is hackneyed, the characters one-dimension, and the writing limp.

There are two main narratives.

The first concerns an aging actress who has bucked the system and hasn't been able to get a job for two years. The second deals with a frustrated director who wants to do a film of artistic merit. Not only are the plot lines weak, but the development of them gets lost among sub-plots and minor characters.

In the cast of minor characters are such recognizable creations as: the helpful friend, the homosexual teen-age idol, the aspiring starlet, the inebriated gossip columnist, the understanding agent, the hen-pecked studio head, and on and on.

Davis' means of character development consists of contrived conversations and full-sentence, uninterrupted thoughts. And each of the characters are presented in the same manner, so that even though we see more of some than of others, none really stands out as being particularly essential to the book.

The novel has no center. The elements of character and plot hold together only through repetition. And the Hollywood setting is no more than a painted backdrop.

Still, in spite of all this, there is something appealing about "Through the Doors of Brass." Reading it is rather like watching an old "B" movie, one that manages, in spite of all, to be somehow entertaining.

Did South Join Union Or Union Join South?

THE AMERICANIZATION OF DIXIE by John Egerton; Harper's Magazine Press, 218 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

Has the South "joined the Union" after its long intransigence, as the title of "The Americanization of Dixie" suggests? Or has the Union joined the South, as suggested by its alternate title, "The Southernization of America?"

Both, suggests author John Egerton, a Georgia-born reporter who has written for Southern Educational Reporting Service and the Race Relations Information Center. The New South has adopted much that is typical of the rest of the nation; but the rest of the nation seems to have adopted attitudes typical of the Old South.

This series of essays in book form suggests that the latter is typical of the rest of the nation; but the rest of the nation seems to have adopted attitudes typical of the Old South.

This series of essays in book form suggests that the latter is typified by Nixon's "southern strategy," by the powerful vote-getting appeal of George Wallace in northern industrial states, and by the rise of anti-busing sentiment among northern parents of school children. And the former may be typified by urban sprawl around southern cities, by Disney World, and by Holiday Inn signs where Spanish moss used to drape cypress limbs.

"So much has changed, and for the better," muses Egerton. "And so much hasn't, and probably won't. And a lot has changed for the worse. We're losing what's worth keeping, and spreading what we ought to lose . . ."

The New South, to this southern author, is not familiar. But for that matter, neither is the New West.

Advertising Business Basis Of Entertaining, Deft Novel

The advertising business is Rosemary's baby, and this new novel, "The Rosemary Touch" tells how she leaves a big New York agency and starts her own. Author Lois Wyse, herself an experienced creative director, spins a good story which will remind many of the rise of Mary Wells.

In the generic vein of "Hotel" and "Airport," "The Rosemary Touch" tells the reader what advertising agencies are like, a background familiar to this reviewer. While honestly describing the elephantine strainings that bring forth so many mousy commercial messages, the author has the integrity to point out not only the correctives to ineffective and nauseating advertising, but also the formidable obstacles to improvement.

Lois Wyse's writing is crisp and incisive. Her characterizations are excellent, even when handling stock (though universal) figures like the conniving, cloying assistant to the boss. Whether detailing the symbiotic relationship in an advertising agency between the creative people and the up front new business salesman, or day to day operations, the action and interest keep cresting. Unexpected turns of plot in believable context are deftly handled, as if Alistair MacLean had turned his typewriter toward one of these executive shark tanks.

"The Rosemary Touch" is highly recommended. It is a spry, entertaining tale in its own right, and all the better because it skips the foolish cliches and whining paranoia of most advertising novels.

High Rise Fire Makes Hair Raise

THE GLASS INFERNO by Thomas N. Scortia and Frank M. Robinson: Doubleday, 435 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

The horror of a fire raging through a high rise building is recounted in nerve wracking sequence, virtually flame by flame.

The story has been sold to a movie studio because of its dramatic and scenic value, but one hopes it can gain equal attention for its safety ideas.

Tribes Hard To Chronicle

"Sioux Trail" is a compilation of the known histories of 56 Siouan Indian tribes in North America, from the first chronicles mentioning them until their disappearance.

Many of these tribes were little more than families or family groups. Also, even such a thorough student as John Upton Trrell cannot always be sure whether two different names apply to the same tribe. So in many cases, the chronicle is short, sketchy, and admittedly incomplete and subject to guesswork.

Terrell, however, has done a painstaking research job. His little volume should be of inestimable value to students of the American Indian seeking to identify tribes and groupings. And since various Siouan tribes, during the course of their known history, ranged over much of the United States, the study provides clues for researchers in most regions.

A Guide For Listening To Music

By WILBUR G. LANDREY

The best way for the layman to learn about the music he enjoys is to listen to it with an intelligent guide explaining something of what the composer intended and how his music fits into the overall musical tradition.

Vanguard-Bach Guild is trying to make the whole thing more systematic and coherent with a "Historical Anthology of Music" on records at budget prices.

The first 11 have just been released.

MARTIN BERNSTEIN, professor emeritus of music, Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, New York University, has performed the difficult task of classifying the anthology by period and category.

The program notes are better than most-knowledgeable and relevant without being overly dull and stuffy. The packaging is attractive.

Most of all, the performances are generally excellent. A real bargain. The first to be issued are:

Purcell's Ode for St. Cecilia's Day performed by the Ambrosian Singers and the Kalmar Chamber Orchestra (HM 33).

Bach's Four Concerti for Organ played by Anton Heiller (HM 35 SD). Anton Heiller (HM 35 SD).

Vivaldi's L'Estero Armonico, the 12 concerti grossi complete on three records played by the Chamber Orchestra of the Vienna State Opera (HM 37-38-39 SD).

Rameau's Pieces de Clavecin en Concert played by Gustav Leonhardt Nicolaus Harnoncourt and Lars Fryden (HM 36).

The Virtuoso Oboe, concertos by Mozart, Handel and Albinoni played by Andre Lardrot (HM 40 SD).

Haydn's quartets Opus 71, played by The Griller String Quartet (HM 41 SD).

Haydn's quartets Opus 74 also played by the Griller (HM 42 SD).

Boccherini's Quintet No. 2 for Guitar and Strings in C Major and String Quintet in E Major (HM 43 SD).

THERE ARE FADS and movements in classical music just as in anything else and they influence and are influenced by the releases of classical records.

Mahler was rescued from near oblivion this way, and in the past year, there has been a lot of Chopin and Rachmaninoff around.

Vivaldi has been very fashionable for several years, and for some reason there has been a spate of records over the past few months. Here is a partial listing of the recent Vivaldi offerings from my pile of review records.

The four concertos for two orchestras played by the soloist group of Milan and Brussels conducted by Angelo Ephrikian (Das Alte Werke Sawt 9600A) — This import is one of the more interesting since it is the only recording of these concertos in the current catalogue.

The Four Seasons played by Yoshio Uano and the NHK String Ensemble (Odyssey Y32884) — These first four concertos of Vivaldi's Opus 8 are the most frequently performed and recorded of all Baroque masterpieces. An excellent sound and performance from Japan.

Zuckerman Plays and Conducts Vivaldi Concerts — Opus 8 in all contained 12 concertos and the last eight are seldom recorded. Having done the Four Seasons sometime ago, the young Israeli violinist-conductor continues with the other eight on two separate records. (Columbia M 32693 and M 32840).

NOTES OF A BROWSING BOOKMAN

Can anyone else lighten your burden in that time of wrenching grief that comes after you have lost a loved one?

Writer Isabella Taves believes she can.

Miss Taves, known for her earlier book, "Women Alone," and for her syndicated column, offers her common sense counsel in "Love Must Not Be Wasted," published by Thomas Y. Crowell at $6.95.

She advises the bereaved reader to face his or her pain steadily and patiently, not denying the fact of death, and yet continuing to savor life. "Love should not be wasted," she entitles one key chapter. And she advises: "I still believe that finding a new romance, becoming richly involved with another person, is the most wonderful thing that can happen. But marriage without love isn't marriage; it's a cage . . . Life is too short to waste on anything that is less than exciting, challenging, rewarding."

Her book deals with a painful subject, but does so with a kind of practicality that is also tempered with compassion.

Stevie Wonder Ends First Phase of Career

By ROBIN WELLES

Stevie Wonder's new LP on Motown's Tamla label, "Fulfillingness' First Finale," has been described as the closing chapter of the first phase of Stevie's musical career.

And what a career it has been! Stevie is living proof of the old proverb — when one door closes another opens. He has been unable to see from birth but it seems inaccurate to call him blind — he has such musical insights and "Innervisions" that he must have perceptions denied to most of us.

STEVIE broke into the music business when he was only 10. His singing, harmonica and piano playing and his virtuoso performance on the drums quickly enlisted an army of fans for Little Stevie Wonder, as he called himself then.

Today, having survived a near-fatal car crash, his talent has matured and his is a story of success on many levels. He has had a consistent flow of hit records with 14 going over the million-dollar mark and three becoming platinum records — sales over one million units.

And to top all that, he was awarded five Grammies this year. He is acknowledged to be one of the most important song writers in today's music scene by experts in this country and abroad, and has gone into producing. "Stevie Wonder Presents Syreeta" is an example of his diversified musical talents.

If "Fulfillingness' First Finale" is the closing chapter in Book One of Wonder's development, it is an exciting way to call a time out. There isn't a mediocre cut on the album. Among the best of the Wonder tunes is "Boogie on Reggae Woman," whose infectious rhythms make it a sure bet to hit the top of the singles chart. And you'll be happy to know Stevie's funky harp playing hasn't lost a beat since his "Fingertips" days. "You Haven't Done Nothin'," a great tune with the Jackson 5 backing Stevie on the vocals, has overtones of "Superstition" — what nicer thing can you say of a tune? "Too Shy to Say" is a showcase for Stevie's keyboard wizardry.

"Heaven Is 10 Zillion Light Years Away" is another great cut and the words must express Wonder's philosophy but one line has to be wrong — "Why must my color black make me a lesser man?" For Wonder has transcended color, blindness and trauma — and everyone hopes that he picks upon Phase Two of his career soon.

Sleuths & Suspense

GOOD-BYE TO BUDAPEST by Jeannette Eyerly; Lippincott, 157 pages, $5.50. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

A major offense of this suspense novel is the insufficient notice that it is intended for the young adult (meaning early teens) audience, and particularly for girls.

Once one gets into the novel, it becomes apparent that it is not adult reading fare, but by then the unwary might well have invested her $5.50.

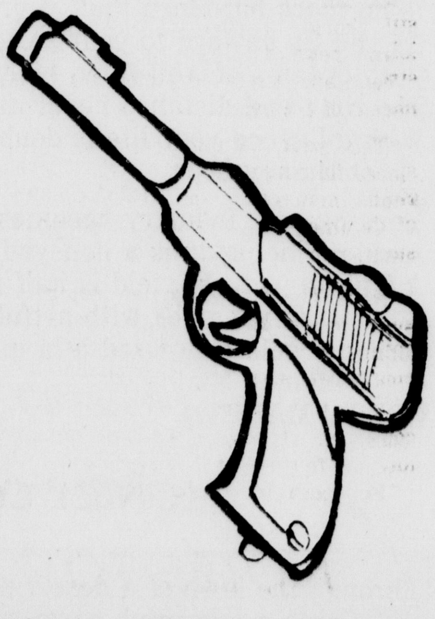
Young Megan is summoned, somewhat mysteriously, to join her American scientist father behind the Iron Curtain in Budapest where he is attending a conference. Once there, Megan learns that her father is being pressured by the Communists for information that he holds in his head. Then her parent vanishes, and Megan finds herself alone in a strange city, her only ally a mysterious young man whose own behavior is somewhat erratic.

For the young readers for which the novel is intended, the book should hold considerable appeal and excitement, although the more "sophisticated" among them may find characters and situations superficial.

APPLEBY'S OTHER STORY by Michael Innes; Dodd, Mead & Co., 192 pages, $4.95; reviewed by Mary Leydecker.

Michael Innes is really an English professor named J. I. M. Stewart, and while his clever mysteries do not take erudition very seriously, classical and literary allusions abound.

It's all fun, though, and the latest book, whose title is still a mystery at the end of story, is as entertaining as the others in the series.



Set in a favorite scene of English mystery writers — the big country house filled with an assorted cast of characters — the tale includes all the proper elements.

There are the perfect butler (and his stupid wife), an eminent surgeon, a capable male secretary, a ne'er-do-well son who's been in Argentina, a shady lady and another one that's too good to be believed. Then there is the master of the house — recently dead in a rather unpleasant manner — and his wife, who like her late spouse, spends lots of time in bedroom fun and games.

There are also some very valuable paintings (a Goya for starters) and an unethical art dealer.

Star of the show, though, is Sir John Appleby ("that greatest of detectives") who quotes poetry while sleuthing. Even if the ending is more than usually incredible, it's all fun.

Also, even such a thorough student as John Upton Trrell cannot always be sure whether two different names apply to the same tribe. So in many cases, the chronicle is short, sketchy, and admittedly incomplete and subject to guesswork.

Terrell, however, has done a painstaking research job. His little volume should be of inestimable value to students of the American Indian seeking to identify tribes and groupings. And since various Siouan tribes, during the course of their known history, ranged over much of the United States, the study provides clues for researchers in most regions.

High Finance, And The Mafia

THE $ILVER BEAR$ by Paul E. Erdman; Charles Scribner's Sons, 260 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Walt Weyman.

This is a most entertaining novel, readable and keeps one's interest high at all times, as its timely plot in international finance and current economic crises unfolds. One of America's bolder Mafia families takes unto itself a bank, a Swiss bank. The resultant whirlpool in the international monetary sea and the hectic commodity market tests the family's mettle. Their ultimate contest with one of the giants in the realm of supermoney will keep you on edge till the conclusion.

A Guide For Listening To Music

By WILBUR G. LANDREY

The best way for the layman to learn about the music he enjoys is to listen to it with an intelligent guide explaining something of what the composer intended and how his music fits into the overall musical tradition.

Vanguard-Bach Guild is trying to make the whole thing more systematic and coherent with a "Historical Anthology of Music" on records at budget prices.

The first 11 have just been released.

MARTIN BERNSTEIN, professor emeritus of music, Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, New York University, has performed the difficult task of classifying the anthology by period and category.

The program notes are better than most-knowledgeable and relevant without being overly dull and stuffy. The packaging is attractive.

Most of all, the performances are generally excellent. A real bargain. The first to be issued are:

Purcell's Ode for St. Cecilia's Day performed by the Ambrosian Singers and the Kalmar Chamber Orchestra (HM 33).

Bach's Four Concerti for Organ played by Anton Heiller (HM 35 SD). Anton Heiller (HM 35 SD).

Vivaldi's L'Estero Armonico, the 12 concerti grossi complete on three records played by the Chamber Orchestra of the Vienna State Opera (HM 37-38-39 SD).

Rameau's Pieces de Clavecin en Concert played by Gustav Leonhardt Nicolaus Harnoncourt and Lars Fryden (HM 36).

The Virtuoso Oboe, concertos by Mozart, Handel and Albinoni played by Andre Lardrot (HM 40 SD).

Haydn's quartets Opus 71, played by The Griller String Quartet (HM 41 SD).

Haydn's quartets Opus 74 also played by the Griller (HM 42 SD).

Boccherini's Quintet No. 2 for Guitar and Strings in C Major and String Quintet in E Major (HM 43 SD).

THERE ARE FADS and movements in classical music just as in anything else and they influence and are influenced by the releases of classical records.

Mahler was rescued from near oblivion this way, and in the past year, there has been a lot of Chopin and Rachmaninoff around.

Vivaldi has been very fashionable for several years, and for some reason there has been a spate of records over the past few months. Here is a partial listing of the recent Vivaldi offerings from my pile of review records.

The four concertos for two orchestras played by the soloist group of Milan and Brussels conducted by Angelo Ephrikian (Das Alte Werke Sawt 9600A) — This import is one of the more interesting since it is the only recording of these concertos in the current catalogue.

The Four Seasons played by Yoshio Uano and the NHK String Ensemble (Odyssey Y32884) — These first four concertos of Vivaldi's Opus 8 are the most frequently performed and recorded of all Baroque masterpieces. An excellent sound and performance from Japan.

Zuckerman Plays and Conducts Vivaldi Concerts — Opus 8 in all contained 12 concertos and the last eight are seldom recorded. Having done the Four Seasons sometime ago, the young Israeli violinist-conductor continues with the other eight on two separate records. (Columbia M 32693 and M 32840).

Stevie Wonder Ends First Phase of Career

By ROBIN WELLES

Stevie Wonder's new LP on Motown's Tamla label, "Fulfillingness' First Finale," has been described as the closing chapter of the first phase of Stevie's musical career.

And what a career it has been! Stevie is living proof of the old proverb — when one door closes another opens. He has been unable to see from birth but it seems inaccurate to call him blind — he has such musical insights and "Innervisions" that he must have perceptions denied to most of us.

STEVIE broke into the music business when he was only 10. His singing, harmonica and piano playing and his virtuoso performance on the drums quickly enlisted an army of fans for Little Stevie Wonder, as he called himself then.

Today, having survived a near-fatal car crash, his talent has matured and his is a story of success on many levels. He has had a consistent flow of hit records with 14 going over the million-dollar mark and three becoming platinum records — sales over one million units.

And to top all that, he was awarded five Grammies this year. He is acknowledged to be one of the most important song writers in today's music scene by experts in this country and abroad, and has gone into producing. "Stevie Wonder Presents Syreeta" is an example of his diversified musical talents.

If "Fulfillingness' First Finale" is the closing chapter in Book One of Wonder's development, it is an exciting way to call a time out. There isn't a mediocre cut on the album. Among the best of the Wonder tunes is "Boogie on Reggae Woman," whose infectious rhythms make it a sure bet to hit the top of the singles chart. And you'll be happy to know Stevie's funky harp playing hasn't lost a beat since his "Fingertips" days. "You Haven't Done Nothin'," a great tune with the Jackson 5 backing Stevie on the vocals, has overtones of "Superstition" — what nicer thing can you say of a tune? "Too Shy to Say" is a showcase for Stevie's keyboard wizardry.

"Heaven Is 10 Zillion Light Years Away" is another great cut and the words must express Wonder's philosophy but one line has to be wrong — "Why must my color black make me a lesser man?" For Wonder has transcended color, blindness and trauma — and everyone hopes that he pickes upon Phase Two of his career soon.

NOTES OF A BROWSING BOOKMAN

Can anyone else lighten your burden in that time of wrenching grief that comes after you have lost a loved one?

Writer Isabella Taves believes she can.

Miss Taves, known for her earlier book, "Women Alone," and for her syndicated column, offers her common sense counsel in "Love Must Not Be Wasted," published by Thomas Y. Crowell at $6.95.

She advises the bereaved reader to face his or her pain steadily and patiently, not denying the fact of death, and yet continuing to savor life. "Love should not be wasted," she entitles one key chapter. And she advises: "I still believe that finding a new romance, becoming richly involved with another person, is the most wonderful thing that can happen. But marriage without love isn't marriage; it's a cage . . . Life is too short to waste on anything that is less than exciting, challenging, rewarding."

Her book deals with a painful subject, but does so with a kind of practicality that is also tempered with compassion.

Sleuths & Suspense

GOOD-BYE TO BUDAPEST by Jeannette Eyerly; Lippincott, 157 pages, $5.50. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

A major offense of this suspense novel is the insufficient notice that it is intended for the young adult (meaning early teens) audience, and particularly for girls.

Once one gets into the novel, it becomes apparent that it is not adult reading fare, but by then the unwary might well have invested her $5.50.

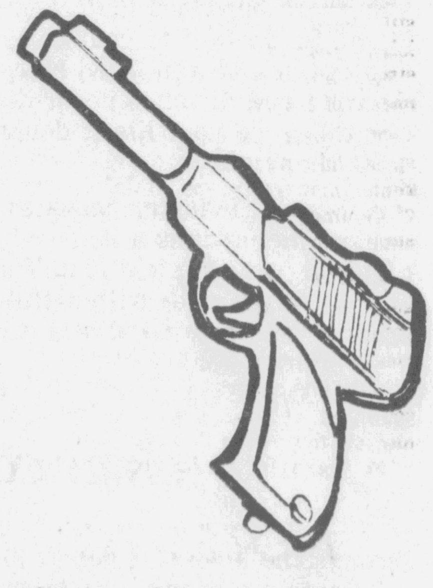
Young Megan is summoned, somewhat mysteriously, to join her American scientist father behind the Iron Curtain in Budapest where he is attending a conference. Once there, Megan learns that her father is being pressured by the Communists for information that he holds in his head. Then her parent vanishes, and Megan finds herself alone in a strange city, her only ally a mysterious young man whose own behavior is somewhat erratic.

For the young readers for which the novel is intended, the book should hold considerable appeal and excitement, although the more "sophisticated" among them may find characters and situations superficial.

APPLEBY'S OTHER STORY by Michael Innes; Dodd, Mead & Co., 192 pages, $4.95; reviewed by Mary Leydecker.

Michael Innes is really an English professor named J. I. M. Stewart, and while his clever mysteries do not take erudition very seriously, classical and literary allusions abound.

It's all fun, though, and the latest book, whose title is still a mystery at the end of story, is as entertaining as the others in the series.

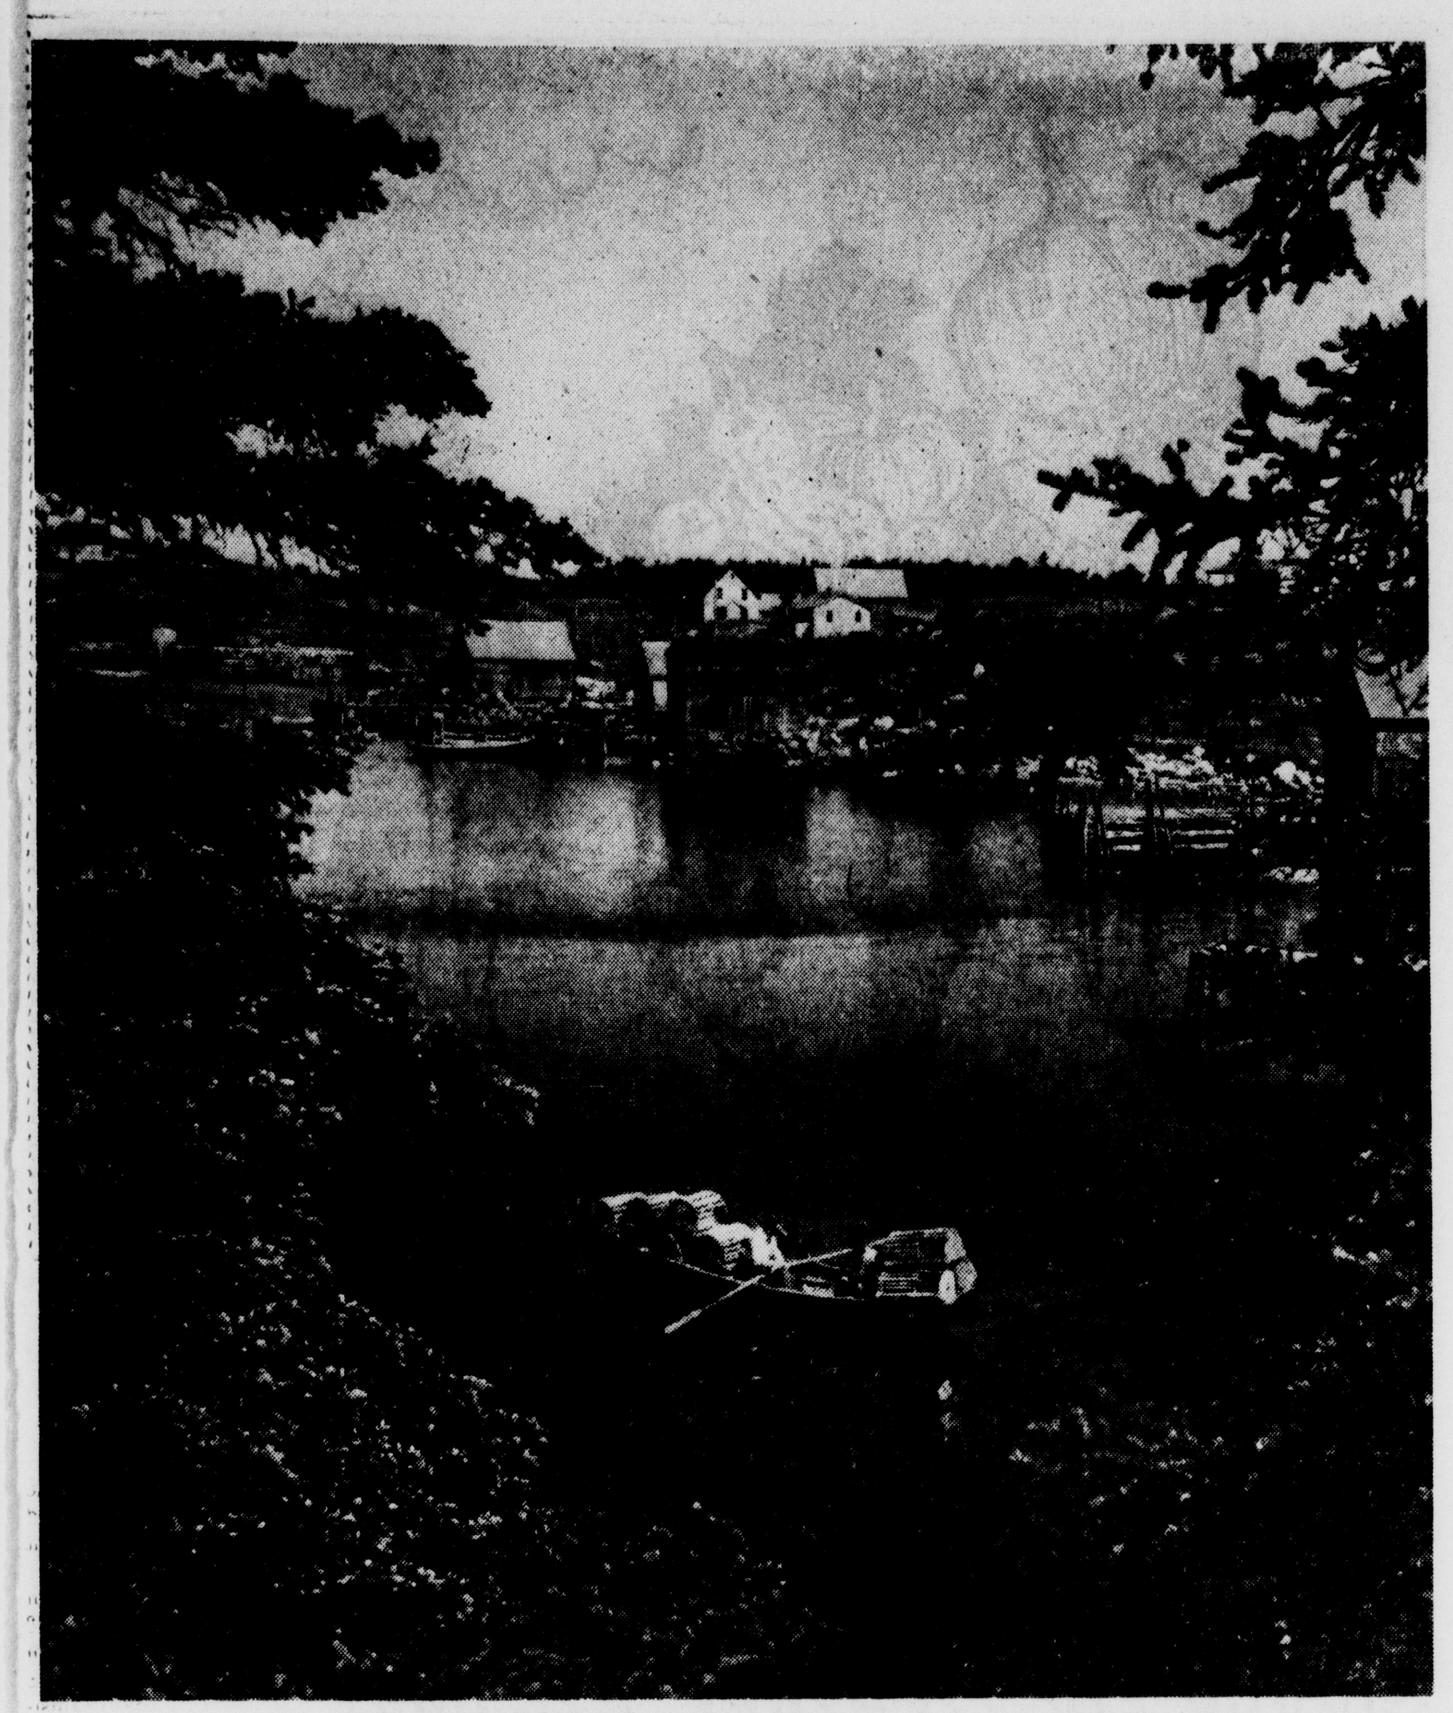


Set in a favorite scene of English mystery writers — the big country house filled with an assorted cast of characters — the tale includes all the proper elements.

There are the perfect butler (and his stupid wife), an eminent surgeon, a capable male secretary, a ne'er-do-well son who's been in Argentina, a shady lady and another one that's too good to be believed. Then there is the master of the house — recently dead in a rather unpleasant manner — and his wife, who like her late spouse, spends lots of time in bedroom fun and games.

There are also some very valuable paintings (a Goya for starters) and an unethical art dealer.

Star of the show, though, is Sir John Appleby ("that greatest of detectives") who quotes poetry while sleuthing. Even if the ending is more than usually incredible, it's all fun.



ONE OF THE REASONS why Nova Scotia attracts tourists is its quiet and picturesque coves such as Hackett's Cove on St. Margaret's Bay, a 30-minute drive from Halifax.

Maritime Provinces

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

Campers who are planning ahead for next year should consider a trip to the maritime provinces of Canada.

Both New Brunswick and Nova Scotia offer a seemingly unending show of scenic beauty, the people are friendly and the camping facilities leave almost nothing to be desired.

NOVA SCOTIA may be reached by ferry from the Maine cities of Portland and Bar Harbor and from St. John in New Brunswick. The ferry trip from Saint John to Digby, Nova Scotia, is the shortest and least expensive and is recommended to families with a tight budget.

Round trips by ferry can knock a big hole in the budget, so the most practical way to enjoy a camping tour of the provinces is to go overland in one direction and return by ferry on the way back.

Enter New Brunswick at Calais, Maine, and take Highway One to Saint John, an interesting city with a fine historical heritage which includes camping facilities at Rockwood Park.

Follow Highway One and Two to Moncton, and while there ride uphill with your engine in neutral on Magnetic Hill. The hill, reached by a dirt road, is a major tourist attraction. It is said to be an optical illusion, but the ride is an interesting experience.

FROM Moncton the camper can enter Nova Scotia at Tidnish and follow the Sunrise Trail which winds along the coast of the Northumberland Strait to New Glasgow and Antigonish. There are several good campgrounds along the Sunrise Trail. Antigonish is the gateway to Cape Breton, wehre the Cabot Trail gives the camper the most magnificent scenery in Nova Scotia.

If the weather is good, the camper may wish to linger a few days along the Cabot Trail. There are more than a dozen parks and campsites along the trail, which will give the visitor time to relax and enjoy the scenic beaches and panoramic overviews.

Those who have circled the Cabot Trail recommend a drive in a counter clockwise direction, entering at Baddeck. There are campsites in the vicinity, and if the weather is rainy, the camper can postpone the trip and go from Baddeck to Sydney and then to Louisbourg, where the massive Louis XV's fortress has been restored.

TRAVEL PAGE

There is an excellent campsite only a few miles from Baddeck along this route, which features a view of the Seal Island Bridge and a towering escarpment at the rear of the campground.

AFTER completing the tour of the Cabot Trail, the camper may return to Antigonish and take the Marine Trail to Halifax. At Antigonish, the Marine Trail is Highway Seven and it provides a view of rolling hills and lakes until it reaches Liscomb, where it meanders along the Atlantic Ocean to Halifax.

There are many photogenic coves along the way. Only a few campsites are on this route, but they are picturesque.

After visiting Halifax, the camper can follow scenic Highway Three to Yarmouth. One of the must stops along this route, if only for an inspection tour, is Craves Island Park, a provincial campground which presents to the viewer a fantastic overlook on the Atlantic Ocean. There are no electric hookups, flush toilets or showers but the scenery and serenity compensate for the inconveniences.

It is an ideal campground, one of the most beautiful in North America, for campers with self-sufficient recreational vehicles.

IF THE camper does not want to go to Yarmouth, he can cut across the province and drive through the Annapolis Valley to Digby, where the ferry ride to Saint John takes less than three hours.

Nova Scotia is worth a long trip. The province is protected by the Gulf Stream and the weather is mild.

Baja A Unique Trip

By RICK ORLOV

A visit to the peninsula which makes up Baja California, Mexico, is a unique experience.

Baja could never be called a pretty country. It is a vast land — forbidding and desolate.

It is sparsely populated with only about a million persons living in an area larger than Italy.

FOR THE tourist it does not have the large luxurious resorts of Mexico City or Acapulco. The only "real" tourist spots are at the southern tip around La Paz.

Most who visit Baja do so for the attractions it holds to campers and fishermen.

Yet, recently, more and more persons are learning about Baja and are coming to visit — especially with the completion of the transpeninsular highway.

The highway, known either as Carretera Numero Uno or the Benito Juarez Highway, runs more than 1,000 miles from Tijuana to Cabo San Lucas.

IT WAS completed in December, 1973, and opened up Baja to those who did not own the four-wheel-drive vehicle which was needed to cross the country.

And, to make it even easier for tourists, the Mexican national government has undertaken an ambitious effort to provide accommodations along the way.

Gasoline stations are interspersed about every 100 miles along the highway. In only one spot a person has to drive about 200 miles before being able to refuel.

In addition, a chain of hotels has been constructed along the highway by the government's Nacional Hotelera.

FIVE HOTELS from Ensenada to San Ignacio have been opened and several others are being planned.

La Pinta Hotel in Ensenada is the largest of the chain in Baja and the only one which is not new. It was purchased by Nacional Hotelera and refurnished.

All the other hotels — in San Quintin, Guerrero Negro, Santa Ines and San Ignacio — are new and look practically identical.

The largest of the four is in San Quintin, where there are 60 rooms. It opened in July and, as of mid-August, had not yet opened several planned shops in the hotel.

In each of the other hotels there are between 28 and 30 rooms.

THE ELPRESIDENTE Hotel in Guerrero Negro is attempting to make somewhat of a comeback following a rash of bad publicity after it first opened.

A government spokesman explained officials rushed to open the hotel before all cooking equipment was installed and all cooking was done on outdoor-type stoves. Also, work was still proceeding on the hotel when it was visited by a group of travel writers, who criticized the facilities.

Rates at all the hotels range from $22 to $28 a night.

Trailer parks are adjacent to each hotel to accommodate campers, and airplane landing strips are near each facility for private pilots.

In addition, the hotel chain has plans to start its own charter airline operation in the United States to bring visitors to the hotels.

A 17-PASSENGER Beechcraft 90 will be used for the charter operation, which will be called El Presidente to tie in with the name of most of the hotels in the chain.

Additional airplanes will be added as needed.

Cost of the charter is expected to be comparable to commercial airlines.

However, costs are expected to vary depending on whether a package tour is available and the number of persons on a flight.

Backpacking Gaining In Popularity As Activity For Whole Family

By DAVID JORDAN

Backpacking has enjoyed tremendous growth in popularity with the recent surge back to nature of millions of Americans.

It has evolved into an activity for the entire family, and backpackers have even acquired their own lingo, not to mention a mountain of equipment and supplies.

BACKPACKING can be a rewarding and enjoyable adventure or a traumatic disaster, depending upon the preparation. All beginners start out having to purchase the basics: boots, backpack and sleeping bag. These essentials should cost you no more than about $150.

Even if your budget is extra tight, this isn't the place to skimp. If money is the problem, wait for the late fall sales when many items are reduced for winter clearance.

Get boots that give you good ankle support, have lugged soles and are especially recommended for trail, not mountain climbing use. A good pair of boots will cost you about $25 to $35.

Always wear two pairs of socks, cotton next to the skin, then wool, for a comfortable fit. To avoid a great deal of discomfort, make sure your boots are well broken-in before you use them for a day on the trail.

RUCKSACKS and frameless day packs are all right for day hikes and light-load overnighters, but if you intend to do much backpacking, you'll need a pack-frame-bag combination. Most have a lightweight aluminum frame, a nylon bag with outside pockets and a padded wrist strap to transfer the load from your shoulders to your hips. You buy the frame to fit your frame. Day packs sell for about $15 and for a frame pack expect to pay anywhere from $30 to $60.

Buy a sleeping bag for the coldest climate and the highest altitude you expect to encounter. Usually this means a lightweight down model, but the new second generation polyesters are also worth looking into. Ask a salesperson to explain details of design, construction and loft before you buy. An average down bag will cost about $60 or $70.

UNLESS you intend to venture into mountain or backcountry areas where wind, rain or severe temperatures are common, you can probably get along with a simple polyethylene tarp or tube tent for shelter. If you do need a tent, always select as light a one as possible.

Backpacking combines nicely with river floating, wilderness portaging, or just plain on-water fishing, thanks to the new inflatable rafts that mount on backpacks.

A typical backpack boat weighs slightly over four pounds and has a carrying capacity of up to 200 pounds. Deflated, it fits in a lightweight nylon stuff bag and ties to a pack frame. Kits generally contain a foot pump, maintenance materials, and a packable paddle that comes apart. The prices range from about $20 to $30.

An enjoyable outing depends upon comfort. But comfort on the trail depends upon more than just a well-trodden path in attractive environs: it depends upon good quality equipment that fits you well.

Catalina Island Has Relaxed Fall Season

Most persons think of Catalina Island as strictly a summer vacation spot.

Not true!

The fall and early winter on the island still provide a pleasant and enjoyable island retreat, clear air, uncluttered streets, and a relaxed atmosphere reminiscent of the past.

"This year Catalina enjoyed a very successful summer," says Mrs. Marvelle Hobbs, manager of the Avalon Chamber of Commerce. "It was Catalina's best summer in the past 24 years.

"NOW THAT the summer months are gone, we still find that many visitors are coming to the island. What's the difference between summer and fall-winter?

"Very little as far as the island itself is concerned. Of course, we have less visitors, but there is no "off season."

"For example, every single one of the tours we have in the summer operate year round, except the flying fish tour. They, like the swallows at Capistrano, head south toward warmer waters in mid-September.

"But every other tour — including the three and three-quarter hour inland tour of the island — operate year-round. Of course, it is a reduced schedule, but every tour is available every day unless cancelled by bad weather.

"CATALINA now has the finest transportation system we've had in more than 20 years. For example, Long Beach-Catalina Cruises provides regularly-scheduled daily morning and afternoon departures all year long with their 700-passenger Long Beach King and 500-passenger Long Beach Prince, and they also have a Friday evening departure at 7 p.m.

They are the only boats with departures regularly scheduled morning and afternoon.

"Almost all of our motels and hotels remain open in fall and winter — with one or two exceptions," she adds. "Approximately 80 per cent of our businesses stay open year-round; almost all of the restaurants are open; a few gift shops close; the casino museum is open daily until Nov. 3, and weekends after that.

"The weather? In the fall, it is usually great! We don't really get any bad weather until well into the winter time — of course, soon as I say that, maybe we'll get an early winter, but normally it is very pleasant until around December."

Mrs. Hobbs looked out of her office on the Catalina pleasure pier, and noted a few couples strolling up Crescent Avenue. "That man is a business executive with offices on Wilshire Blvd., and look at his clothes — jeans and a sweat shirt. He stopped in to my office the other day during mid-week for some information, and said he used to go to Hawaii to really relax. Three years ago, he came to Cataline Island in October, and he hasn't been back to Hawaii since."

Nothing Bum About Boats

The fact that Bahamians call the glass-bottomed, sight-seeing craft so popular with Nassau and Paradise Island visitors, bumboats, does not imply any lack of safety. Both New Brunswick and Nova Scotia offer a seemingly unending show of scenic beauty, the people are friendly and the camping facilities leave almost nothing to be desired.

NOVA SCOTIA may be reached by ferry from the Maine cities of Portland and Bar Harbor and from St. John in New Brunswick. The ferry trip from Saint John to Digby, Nova Scotia, is the shortest and least expensive and is recommended to families with a tight budget.

Round trips by ferry can knock a big hole in the budget, so the most practical way to enjoy a camping tour of the provinces is to go overland in one direction and return by ferry on the way back.

Enter New Brunswick at Calais, Maine, and take Highway One to Saint John, an interesting city with a fine historical heritage which includes camping facilities at Rockwood Park.

Follow Highway One and Two to Moncton, and while there ride uphill with your engine in neutral on Magnetic Hill. The hill, reached by a dirt road, is a major tourist attraction. It is said to be an optical illusion, but the ride is an interesting experience.

FROM Moncton the camper can enter Nova Scotia at Tidnish and follow the Sunrise Trail which winds along the coast of the Northumberland Strait to New Glasgow and Antigonish. There are several good campgrounds along the Sunrise Trail. Antigonish is the gateway to Cape Breton, wehre the Cabot Trail gives the camper the most magnificent scenery in Nova Scotia.

If the weather is good, the camper may wish to linger a few days along the Cabot Trail. There are more than a dozen parks and campsites along the trail, which will give the visitor time to relax and enjoy the scenic beaches and panoramic overviews.

Those who have circled the Cabot Trail recommend a drive in a counter clockwise direction, entering at Baddeck. There are campsites in the vicinity, and if the weather is rainy, the camper can postpone the trip and go from Baddeck to Sydney and then to Louisbourg, where the massive Louis XV's fortress has been restored.

There is an excellent campsite only a few miles from Baddeck along this route, which features a view of the Seal Island Bridge and a towering escarpment at the rear of the campground.

AFTER completing the tour of the Cabot Trail, the camper may return to Antigonish and take the Marine Trail to Halifax. At Antigonish, the Marine Trail is Highway Seven and it provides a view of rolling hills and lakes until it reaches Liscomb, where it meanders along the Atlantic Ocean to Halifax.

There are many photogenic coves along the way. Only a few campsites are on this route, but they are picturesque.

After visiting Halifax, the camper can follow scenic Highway Three to Yarmouth. One of the must stops along this route, if only for an inspection tour, is Craves Island Park, a provincial campground which presents to the viewer a fantastic overlook on the Atlantic Ocean. There are no electric hookups, flush toilets or showers but the scenery and serenity compensate for the inconveniences.

It is an ideal campground, one of the most beautiful in North America, for campers with self-sufficient recreational vehicles.

IF THE camper does not want to go to Yarmouth, he can cut across the province and drive through the Annapolis Valley to Digby, where the ferry ride to Saint John takes less than three hours.

Nova Scotia is worth a long trip. The province is protected by the Gulf Stream and the weather is mild.

Catalina Island Has Relaxed Fall Season

Most persons think of Catalina Island as strictly a summer vacation spot.

Not true!

The fall and early winter on the island still provide a pleasant and enjoyable island retreat, clear air, uncluttered streets, and a relaxed atmosphere reminiscent of the past.

"This year Catalina enjoyed a very successful summer," says Mrs. Marvelle Hobbs, manager of the Avalon Chamber of Commerce. "It was Catalina's best summer in the past 24 years.

"NOW THAT the summer months are gone, we still find that many visitors are coming to the island. What's the difference between summer and fall-winter?

"Very little as far as the island itself is concerned. Of course, we have less visitors, but there is no "off season."

"For example, every single one of the tours we have in the summer operate year round, except the flying fish tour. They, like the swallows at Capistrano, head south toward warmer waters in mid-September.

"But every other tour — including the three and three-quarter hour inland tour of the island — operate year-round. Of course, it is a reduced schedule, but every tour is available every day unless cancelled by bad weather.

"CATALINA now has the finest transportation system we've had in more than 20 years. For example, Long Beach-Catalina Cruises provides regularly-scheduled daily morning and afternoon departures all year long with their 700-passenger Long Beach King and 500-passenger Long Beach Prince, and they also have a Friday evening departure at 7 p.m.

They are the only boats with departures regularly scheduled morning and afternoon.

"Almost all of our motels and hotels remain open in fall and winter — with one or two exceptions," she adds. "Approximately 80 per cent of our businesses stay open year-round; almost all of the restaurants are open; a few gift shops close; the casino museum is open daily until Nov. 3, and weekends after that.

"The weather? In the fall, it is usually great! We don't really get any bad weather until well into the winter time — of course, soon as I say that, maybe we'll get an early winter, but normally it is very pleasant until around December."

Mrs. Hobbs looked out of her office on the Catalina pleasure pier, and noted a few couples strolling up Crescent Avenue. "That man is a business executive with offices on Wilshire Blvd., and look at his clothes — jeans and a sweat shirt. He stopped in to my office the other day during mid-week for some information, and said he used to go to Hawaii to really relax. Three years ago, he came to Cataline Island in October, and he hasn't been back to Hawaii since."

Switch Annuals To Perennials

GARDEN PAGE

By EARL ARONSON

Before cool weather puts an end to your outdoor gardening you can prolong the life of some annuals, practically making them perennials.

To do this, carefully transplant your garden favorites into pots or boxes, take them indoors and place them under high-energy plant-growth lamps.

THEY will flourish indoors, as some of ours do, and be ready for replacement in the garden in the early spring after frost danger has passed. This means you'll have gained a few weeks in the growing cycle and will have flowers long before your neighbors.

There are a few ground rules, as it were, in moving plants indoors:

1. Sterilize the soil to avoid flying pests in the home. This may be done by baking the soil for an hour or so in a hot oven. A handful of peat moss tossed in later replaces organic matter in the soil that has been oxidized.

2. WHEN your plants are potted and under the lights, feed and water them a bit more than plants that depend on daylight. The reason for this is that special plant-growth lamps speed growth, and this means more food and water are consumed than if the plant were growing under standard energy sources.

3. The length of time the lights should be on depends on the plants you are raising. Plants that bloom in early spring or late fall are "short day" plants and will be satisfied with six to eight hours of light daily. Long-day plants — those that bloom in mid-summer — will need 12 to 16 hours of energy from your fluorescent lamp.

4. Be sure to take a good ball of earth with the roots in bringing your plants indoors. This will insure continued growth.

THERE are about 700 species of poisonous plants growing in the United States and Canada, many commonly found near homes, according to expert Dr. John Kingsbury.

Dr. Kingsbury estimates that 12,000 children consume innocent-looking poisonous plants annually, which often results in complications, sometimes in death.

Poisonous plants may grow anywhere, says Dr. Mitchell R. Zavon, president of the American Association of Poison Control Centers, who cautions:

"It is essential for children and adults to understand the dangers involved in eating plants, especially those they are not familiar with. All plants near the home and classroom should be identified in every way to make sure they are not poisonous.

IF there are poisonous plants growing where children may explore, it would be advisable to rid the area of such potential dangers. Controlled application of chemical herbicides will effectively minimize the danger of poisonous plants safely and efficiently."

Recommended: Identify each plant in and around the house; keep poisonous plants out of reach of children; do not use unknown plants as a source of food; destroy unwanted poisonous plants.

Symptoms of plant poisoning may occur as long as six to 15 hours after ingestion. If plant poisoning is suspected, do not rely on home remedies. Call a doctor immediately.

Tulip Tops List Of Easy-To-Grow

By BILL MEACHEM

Every winter I teach a course in gardening for adults in the local high school. Most of my students are new homeowners and invariably someone will ask me what is the easiest flower to grow.

Topping the list of easy-to-grow plants, I feel, is the tulip.

The tulip is grown from a bulb that must be planted in the fall. Most of the tulip bulbs that are sold are grown in Holland where the soil and climate are the best in the world for producing the bulbs.

A tulip bulb is really one of the wonders of nature. Inside the tulip bulb the tiny plant is already formed. If a bulb is sliced in half, tucked down in the middle you can even see the miniature flower.

MOST OF the bulb is made up of stored food which the tiny plant draws on for its growth. Actually, then, when you plant a tulip you are primarily just providing the proper growing conditions, you don't actually have to "grow" it as you would a marigold, tomato or petunia.

As all plants have their own "personalities," so does the tulip. One of the traits of the tulip is that it must have a cold period of several months before it will flower.

This is why the bulb must be planted in the fall so that it gets its cold period naturally over winter. (I have seen tulip bulbs offered for sale in spring. These are surely leftovers from fall and if they flower when planted in spring it would be a miracle. Don't waste your money by buying tulips in spring.

PLANTING is simple. Just dig a hole 6 inches deep, drop in the bulb — pointed end up — and cover with soil. Nature does the rest. One word of caution, though: if the weather is dry in the fall, water the tulips after planting. The bulb is a living thing and if it dries out it will not survive.

Tulips need no fertilizer. In fact, they resent a lot of fertilizer, especially animal manures. They don't need fertilizer because all the food necessary for their spring growth is already stored in the bulb. About the only thing necessary for tulip growth is a soil that drains well. This means that the day after a rain the ground should not be soggy wet. In a wet soil the tulip bulb may rot.

There are several thousand different tulips sold today. These varieties (or cultivars) fall into different classes. Each of the classes has a different blooming period and flower shape. The earliest blooming are the "species" which are among the first of all flowers to bloom in the spring.

Some of these have small flowers on short stems, but some — like Red Emperor — have tremendous flowers on rather tall stems.

THE TRADITIONAL tulip-shaped kinds include the Cottage, Mendel and the most spectacular of all, the Darwin. Most of these bloom in May, which is the traditional tulip month in the North.

But there are other tulips with distinctly different flower shapes. The doubles are a full flower and resemble the garden peony. Then there are those with long, thin petals and resemble the lily flower. These are called, naturally, lily-flowered tulips. Parrot tulips are most exotic. These flowers are streaked with green and have feathered edges. Indeed, they do resemble the coloring and plumage of a parrot.

Unlike many other flowers, tulips will do well in both sun and shade. In shady locations the flowers may appear a few days later, but they will last longer. Also, tulips can be left in the ground undisturbed where they will come up again the following spring.

One caution, though: if you leave them in the ground don't remove the foliage in spring until it has completely turned brown and died down. This assures you that a new bulb has formed.

In the South tulip planting should be delayed. Plant around Thanksgiving and select a shady, cool spot. Before planting store the bulbs in the refrigerator crisper. This helps you give them the cold treatment.

Plant Trees For Touch Of Autumn

There is a certain nostalgia that only autumn with its rustling breezes, balmy but crisp air and shorter days, brings. Nothing marks the transition to winter more than fall's brilliant colors.

For a touch of fall in your yard, the California Association of Nurserymen suggests planting at least two deciduous trees. There is a good selection of trees available now to "paint" your fall landscape.

THE GINKGO, or maidenhair tree is a living relic whose ancestors date back millions of years — to prehistoric times. Its fan-shaped leathery green spring leaves turn a lovely shade of buttery autumn yellow. If you decide to plant a ginkgo in your garden, be sure to plant a male tree. Female trees bear a fruit that has a very obnoxious odor.

American sweet gum (Liquidambar styraciflua) is another fall favorite. Growing to 60 ft. tall, its loose-open form displays an autumn color show of yellows and reds. Even in areas where fall is a warm extension of summer, the Sweet Gum will tint the town to tell of fall's arrival.

A favorite deciduous fruit tree among California's gardeners is the Japanese persimmon. After its yellow to burnt orangish red fall leaves drop, sweet scarlet fruits remain to be eaten and enjoyed. Planting the persimmon in a deep rich soil and fertilizing regularly will give you a good fruit crop in November. In spring the persimmon's dark green, leathery leaves appear.

The Chinese pistache (pistacia chinensis) is another colorful choice for fall. This tree, a native to China, grows to between 40 and 60 ft. and displays handsome rich orange and red fall colors. The pistache performs best where summers are long and hot.

THE GREEN THUMBERS AND THEIR PROBLEMS

BY JAMES J. MURPHY

Q. This spring our 2-year-old apricot tree produced about two dozen apricots that were dry inside. Now the last two months the leaves are drying out and falling, especially in the center branches. The ground around the tree seems to be solid. I water it every day, sometimes twice. How can I soften the ground?

A. When a tree is properly planted, the water penetrates the soil very easily. No tree should be watered daily or twice a day. Construct a basin and fill with water once a week during the warm months, less when the weather is cold. Use a soil conditioner to improve the porosity of hard soil. Excessive water spoils the fruit.

Q. We have seen our neighbors use a machine that shreds leaves and all sorts of garden debris. Is such a machine worth while?

A. The cost of prepared planter mixes is forcing gardeners to eliminate their use. Models of the machines for home use are now available and a good investment. A few large deciduous tree prunings in the fall will furnish enough material to mulch the garden for a year with very little effort.

Q. Can chlordane be sprayed on the soil to control ants and earwigs? Is it safe to use on all types of plants? How long should one application last?

A. Chlordane is very effective in controlling crawling insects and may be used in all parts of the garden. Read the label before using. After applying, observe the garden for signs of insect activity for repeat application.

Q. Our fruit trees produced very little fruit this past season. How can we improve the production for next year's crop? When should the tree be fed?

A. Weather plays a very important role in fruit production. Deciduous trees have required dormant periods. This varies with different species. Warm winters do not allow the rest needed for good fruit production. Feed the trees in March and September with a complete plant food.

Q. Our bird of paradise formed seed for the first time. Will these seeds grow and produce new plants? How should they be planted?

A. Use a small box and half planter mix and half coarse, clean sand. Sow the seed and cover with sand. Place in a warm location. The seed germinates very slowly. After the second leaf appears, pot in small pots until the root system is well established. Plant in a sunny location.

Mother Nature Takes Her Time

Did you ever wonder how long it would take nature to recycle some modern containers?

If you dropped a soft drink can in the woods where it would not be touched except by the air, rain, snow, natural mulch and sunlight, it would probably be completely degraded by the year 2473, according to Pennsylvania State University.

The steel or tin in the can would probably have returned to rusty dust by 2073, but not the aluminum components.

Dr. Edwin L. Owen, a metallurgist, also figures:

A conventional plastic wrapper similarly exposed would return to nature by about 2200; a glass bottle might disintegrate — or might not — by the year 1,001,972.

Decay rates vary considerably with local conditions; thus trash strewn in a tropical rain forest would break up faster since moisture and heat speed the recycling process.

THE WEEKLY CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week.

✓Tuberous begonias which are still in bloom should be fed with liquid fish. As these summer delights fade, replace them with cyclamen, which will provide winter color.

✓Bait for snails and slugs. The cooler weather stirs them to new activity in the garden.

✓Don't overlook ranunculus and anemones when shopping in nurseries for bulbs to brighten your garden next spring.

Harvesting Of Garden Brings A Supply For Freezing, Canning

By PETER TONGE

One morning recently as my family and I were about to take off for a five-day trip, I strolled around the garden in Weymouth, Mass., to see that everything was in good shape before I left.

It was, particularly the corn, and that dismayed me somewhat. You see it was all maturing at about the same time. Most of the ears were ready for picking and if left would be past their best by the time we returned.

THERE was nothing else we could do but harvest them then and there. A good many disappeared at the lunch table and my wife froze the rest. All this effort meant we left home close to two hours later than we intended. But with something like three dozen ears of corn in the freezer it was time well spent.

As people who go in for gardening soon learn, growing crops is one thing, seeing the produce doesn't go to waste is another. As my wife commented the other day: "The trouble with us is that we have too much food."

What she meant of course was that the garden was producing a good deal more than we could consume on a day-to-day basis. Thank goodness then for the freezer, the art of canning, and the rediscovery of some old-time methods of winter storage. They help to spread the summer surpluses through the leaner months of winter.

Certain surveys suggest that buying a freezer is a questionable investment; that unless you are very wise in your food purchases you may not end up stretching the food dollar at all. That simply doesn't apply to the home gardener.

SOME FRIENDS of ours who moved out of state a few months ago sold us their chest-type freezer for a song. But even if we had bought it brand new it would have been worthwhile.

Right now it is loaded with zucchini, cabbage, beans (green and wax), peaches, corn of course, and other garden goodies.

What little space currently remains is rapidly being filled up with tomatoes.

"I suppose," someone said to me the other day, "that you have tomatoes running out of your ears right now." We have, but fortunately my wife has picked up a few freezing tricks that help a lot.

WE ALWAYS include plum tomatoes in our garden plans. They are heavy yielders and you can't beat them for cooking. We store more of these than any others.

In freezing them my wife simply cuts them in half and places them on a cookie sheet for freezing. Once frozen they are thrown into a plastic bag, like so many clunking pieces of marble.

This way the tomatoes don't freeze together in one solid mass and can be removed, a few at a time, as the need arises. You can do the same thing with big eating tomatoes by cutting them into thick slices.

The other day we boiled up a whole batch of tomatoes until they began to thicken somewhat. Then we put them through a Foley food mill to remove the skins and most of the seeds. The resultant puree was frozen into cubes in a standard ice tray and then stored in plastic bags.

Right now we're contemplating canning. With an all but full freezer what else can we do? It takes a little effort but, says a friend accomplished in the art, "any shelf will do for storage."

TO THIS end we are reading up on the subject, indeed on all phases of preservation. A good book we have got hold of is "stocking Up" (Rodale Press) by the staff of Organic Gardening and Farming magazine. One storage idea I particularly like is a storage area made out of hay bales.

Ohio gardener John Krill makes a hollow square or rectangle with one layer of hay bales. The produce — potatoes, onions, cabbage, peas, apples, pears etc. — are then placed in the hollow center and a lid of hay bales placed on top.

The hay, a great insulator, keeps the produce just above freezing even in cold Ohio.

Many folks are successful using mound storage. This simply means putting the produce in some dry leaves or straw and covering them with more straw. A thick layer of soil goes on next, covered by plastic or tar paper and boards to keep it waterproof.

SOME FOLKS suggest ventilating these mounds by pushing a pipe through the top. Remember, though, always cover the pipe during freezing weather.

And there are many other ideas too . . . like taking a garbage can and sinking it into the ground to form an inexpensive root cellar.

Time For Cool Crops

Fall is the time to start planting your cool season vegetable garden. Many of you avid vegetable gardeners already know that cool season crops such as broccoli, cauliflower, lettuce, carrots, brussels sprouts and turnips can be planted now to provide your family with tasty vegetable dishes through spring.

Cool season crops are the ones whose immature flowers (such as broccoli and cauliflower), leaves (lettuce and spinach), or roots (like carrots and turnips) we harvest. Fall and winter's cool and shorter days prompt the development of these plant parts that we are so fond of.

FOR THOSE of you who are novices to "home farming" the California Association of Nurserymen offers a few basic suggestions on the cultural care of winter vegetables:

Most cool season crops grow well in a relatively shallow soil. In fall, the soil is warm and dry which makes it easy to cultivate and work.

When preparing the ground for your winter vegetable crops turn it over to a depth of 8 to 10 inches. Next, mix in about two inches of well composted organic material and balanced fertilizer. (No cheating . . . be sure to work compost and fertilizer into the 8 to 10 inches of soil. Like a cake all ingredients must be mixed well for good results).

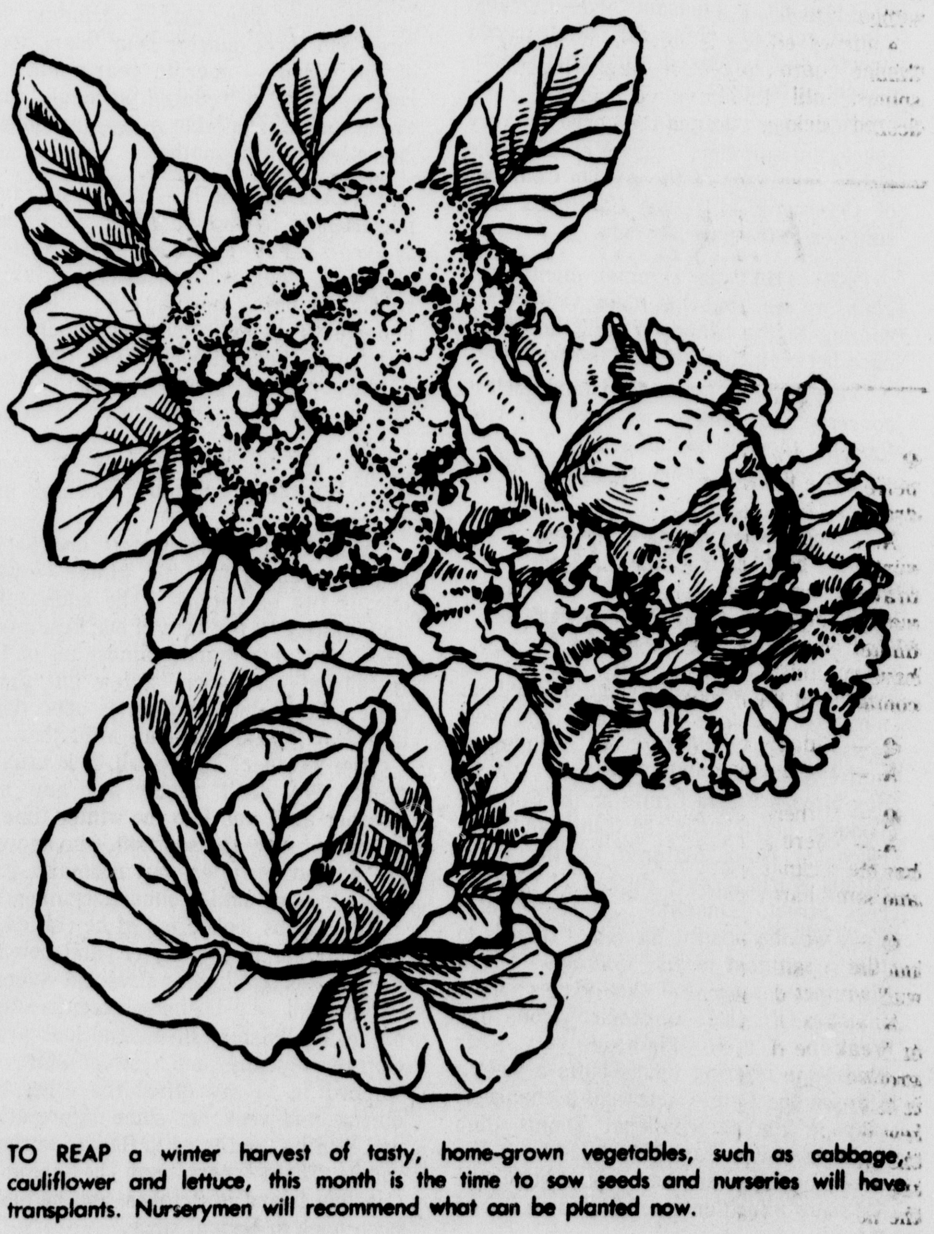
Winter vegetables may be planted now from seed flats or by seeds. When sowing seeds, a good rule to follow is to plant them three times as deep as the diameter of the individual seed.

ONCE YOUR vegetables start growing, be sure to keep weeds under control. Pesty weeds will inevitably be creeping into your vegetables' growing area. Hoeing the top one-half of soil will be sufficient to decapitate those unwanted additions to your crops. If you tend to weeds as they appear, the "Arm Strong" method of pulling weeds will work well — simply bend down and pull them as they appear.

How much rain you receive in your area will determine how often you should fertilize. Your local nurseryman can guide you on the proper amount to apply.

Growing your own vegetables gives you and your family the reward and satisfaction of knowing that you have prepared your meals from seed to plate.

WINTER VEGETABLES



TO REAP a winter harvest of tasty, home-grown vegetables, such as cabbage, cauliflower and lettuce, this month is the time to sow seeds and nurseries will have transplants. Nurserymen will recommend what can be planted now.

They don't need fertilizer because all the food necessary for their spring growth is already stored in the bulb. About the only thing necessary for tulip growth is a soil that drains well. This means that the day after a rain the ground should not be soggy wet. In a wet soil the tulip bulb may rot.

There are several thousand different tulips sold today. These varieties (or cultivars) fall into different classes. Each of the classes has a different blooming period and flower shape. The earliest blooming are the "species" which are among the first of all flowers to bloom in the spring.

Some of these have small flowers on short stems, but some — like Red Emperor — have tremendous flowers on rather tall stems.

THE TRADITIONAL tulip-shaped kinds include the Cottage, Mendel and the most spectacular of all, the Darwin. Most of these bloom in May, which is the traditional tulip month in the North.

But there are other tulips with distinctly different flower shapes. The doubles are a full flower and resemble the garden peony. Then there are those with long, thin petals and resemble the lily flower. These are called, naturally, lily-flowered tulips. Parrot tulips are most exotic. These flowers are streaked with green and have feathered edges. Indeed, they do resemble the coloring and plumage of a parrot.

Unlike many other flowers, tulips will do well in both sun and shade. In shady locations the flowers may appear a few days later, but they will last longer. Also, tulips can be left in the ground undisturbed where they will come up again the following spring.

One caution, though: if you leave them in the ground don't remove the foliage in spring until it has completely turned brown and died down. This assures you that a new bulb has formed.

In the South tulip planting should be delayed. Plant around Thanksgiving and select a shady, cool spot. Before planting store the bulbs in the refrigerator crisper. This helps you give them the cold treatment.

Plant Trees For Touch Of Autumn

There is a certain nostalgia that only autumn with its rustling breezes, balmy but crisp air and shorter days, brings. Nothing marks the transition to winter more than fall's brilliant colors.

For a touch of fall in your yard, the California Association of Nurserymen suggests planting at least two deciduous trees. There is a good selection of trees available now to "paint" your fall landscape.

THE GINKGO, or maidenhair tree is a living relic whose ancestors date back millions of years — to prehistoric times. Its fan-shaped leathery green spring leaves turn a lovely shade of buttery autumn yellow. If you decide to plant a ginkgo in your garden, be sure to plant a male tree. Female trees bear a fruit that has a very obnoxious odor.

American sweet gum (Liquidambar styraciflua) is another fall favorite. Growing to 60 ft. tall, its loose-open form displays an autumn color show of yellows and reds. Even in areas where fall is a warm extension of summer, the Sweet Gum will tint the town to tell of fall's arrival.

A favorite deciduous fruit tree among California's gardeners is the Japanese persimmon. After its yellow to burnt orangish red fall leaves drop, sweet scarlet fruits remain to be eaten and enjoyed. Planting the persimmon in a deep rich soil and fertilizing regularly will give you a good fruit crop in November. In spring the persimmon's dark green, leathery leaves appear.

The Chinese pistache (pistacia chinensis) is another colorful choice for fall. This tree, a native to China, grows to between 40 and 60 ft. and displays handsome rich orange and red fall colors. The pistache performs best where summers are long and hot.

THE GREEN THUMBERS AND THEIR PROBLEMS

BY JAMES J. MURPHY

Q. This spring our 2-year-old apricot tree produced about two dozen apricots that were dry inside. Now the last two months the leaves are drying out and falling, especially in the center branches. The ground around the tree seems to be solid. I water it every day, sometimes twice. How can I soften the ground?

A. When a tree is properly planted, the water penetrates the soil very easily. No tree should be watered daily or twice a day. Construct a basin and fill with water once a week during the warm months, less when the weather is cold. Use a soil conditioner to improve the porosity of hard soil. Excessive water spoils the fruit.

Q. We have seen our neighbors use a machine that shreds leaves and all sorts of garden debris. Is such a machine worth while?

A. The cost of prepared planter mixes is forcing gardeners to eliminate their use. Models of the machines for home use are now available and a good investment. A few large deciduous tree prunings in the fall will furnish enough material to mulch the garden for a year with very little effort.

Q. Can chlordane be sprayed on the soil to control ants and earwigs? Is it safe to use on all types of plants? How long should one application last?

A. Chlordane is very effective in controlling crawling insects and may be used in all parts of the garden. Read the label before using. After applying, observe the garden for signs of insect activity for repeat application.

Q. Our fruit trees produced very little fruit this past season. How can we improve the production for next year's crop? When should the tree be fed?

A. Weather plays a very important role in fruit production. Deciduous trees have required dormant periods. This varies with different species. Warm winters do not allow the rest needed for good fruit production. Feed the trees in March and September with a complete plant food.

Q. Our bird of paradise formed seed for the first time. Will these seeds grow and produce new plants? How should they be planted?

A. Use a small box and half planter mix and half coarse, clean sand. Sow the seed and cover with sand. Place in a warm location. The seed germinates very slowly. After the second leaf appears, pot in small pots until the root system is well established. Plant in a sunny location.

Mother Nature Takes Her Time

Did you ever wonder how long it would take nature to recycle some modern containers?

If you dropped a soft drink can in the woods where it would not be touched except by the air, rain, snow, natural mulch and sunlight, it would probably be completely degraded by the year 2473, according to Pennsylvania State University.

The steel or tin in the can would probably have returned to rusty dust by 2073, but not the aluminum components.

Dr. Edwin L. Owen, a metallurgist, also figures:

A conventional plastic wrapper similarly exposed would return to nature by about 2200; a glass bottle might disintegrate — or might not — by the year 1,001,972.

Decay rates vary considerably with local conditions; thus trash strewn in a tropical rain forest would break up faster since moisture and heat speed the recycling process.

THE WEEKLY CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week.

✓Tuberous begonias which are still in bloom should be fed with liquid fish. As these summer delights fade, replace them with cyclamen, which will provide winter color.

✓Bait for snails and slugs. The cooler weather stirs them to new activity in the garden.

✓Don't overlook ranunculus and anemones when shopping in nurseries for bulbs to brighten your garden next spring.

Harvesting Of Garden Brings A Supply For Freezing, Canning

By PETER TONGE

One morning recently as my family and I were about to take off for a five-day trip, I strolled around the garden in Weymouth, Mass., to see that everything was in good shape before I left.

It was, particularly the corn, and that dismayed me somewhat. You see it was all maturing at about the same time. Most of the ears were ready for picking and if left would be past their best by the time we returned.

THERE was nothing else we could do but harvest them then and there. A good many disappeared at the lunch table and my wife froze the rest. All this effort meant we left home close to two hours later than we intended. But with something like three dozen ears of corn in the freezer it was time well spent.

As people who go in for gardening soon learn, growing crops is one thing, seeing the produce doesn't go to waste is another. As my wife commented the other day: "The trouble with us is that we have too much food."

What she meant of course was that the garden was producing a good deal more than we could consume on a day-to-day basis. Thank goodness then for the freezer, the art of canning, and the rediscovery of some old-time methods of winter storage. They help to spread the summer surpluses through the leaner months of winter.

Certain surveys suggest that buying a freezer is a questionable investment; that unless you are very wise in your food purchases you may not end up stretching the food dollar at all. That simply doesn't apply to the home gardener.

SOME FRIENDS of ours who moved out of state a few months ago sold us their chest-type freezer for a song. But even if we had bought it brand new it would have been worthwhile.

Right now it is loaded with zucchini, cabbage, beans (green and wax), peaches, corn of course, and other garden goodies.

What little space currently remains is rapidly being filled up with tomatoes.

"I suppose," someone said to me the other day, "that you have tomatoes running out of your ears right now." We have, but fortunately my wife has picked up a few freezing tricks that help a lot.

WE ALWAYS include plum tomatoes in our garden plans. They are heavy yielders and you can't beat them for cooking. We store more of these than any others.

In freezing them my wife simply cuts them in half and places them on a cookie sheet for freezing. Once frozen they are thrown into a plastic bag, like so many clunking pieces of marble.

This way the tomatoes don't freeze together in one solid mass and can be removed, a few at a time, as the need arises. You can do the same thing with big eating tomatoes by cutting them into thick slices.

The other day we boiled up a whole batch of tomatoes until they began to thicken somewhat. Then we put them through a Foley food mill to remove the skins and most of the seeds. The resultant puree was frozen into cubes in a standard ice tray and then stored in plastic bags.

Right now we're contemplating canning. With an all but full freezer what else can we do? It takes a little effort but, says a friend accomplished in the art, "any shelf will do for storage."

TO THIS end we are reading up on the subject, indeed on all phases of preservation. A good book we have got hold of is "stocking Up" (Rodale Press) by the staff of Organic Gardening and Farming magazine. One storage idea I particularly like is a storage area made out of hay bales.

Ohio gardener John Krill makes a hollow square or rectangle with one layer of hay bales. The produce — potatoes, onions, cabbage, peas, apples, pears etc. — are then placed in the hollow center and a lid of hay bales placed on top.

The hay, a great insulator, keeps the produce just above freezing even in cold Ohio.

Many folks are successful using mound storage. This simply means putting the produce in some dry leaves or straw and covering them with more straw. A thick layer of soil goes on next, covered by plastic or tar paper and boards to keep it waterproof.

SOME FOLKS suggest ventilating these mounds by pushing a pipe through the top. Remember, though, always cover the pipe during freezing weather.

And there are many other ideas too . . . like taking a garbage can and sinking it into the ground to form an inexpensive root cellar.

Time For Cool Crops

Fall is the time to start planting your cool season vegetable garden. Many of you avid vegetable gardeners already know that cool season crops such as broccoli, cauliflower, lettuce, carrots, brussels sprouts and turnips can be planted now to provide your family with tasty vegetable dishes through spring.

Cool season crops are the ones whose immature flowers (such as broccoli and cauliflower), leaves (lettuce and spinach), or roots (like carrots and turnips) we harvest. Fall and winter's cool and shorter days prompt the development of these plant parts that we are so fond of.

FOR THOSE of you who are novices to "home farming" the California Association of Nurserymen offers a few basic suggestions on the cultural care of winter vegetables:

Most cool season crops grow well in a relatively shallow soil. In fall, the soil is warm and dry which makes it easy to cultivate and work.

When preparing the ground for your winter vegetable crops turn it over to a depth of 8 to 10 inches. Next, mix in about two inches of well composted organic material and balanced fertilizer. (No cheating . . . be sure to work compost and fertilizer into the 8 to 10 inches of soil. Like a cake all ingredients must be mixed well for good results).

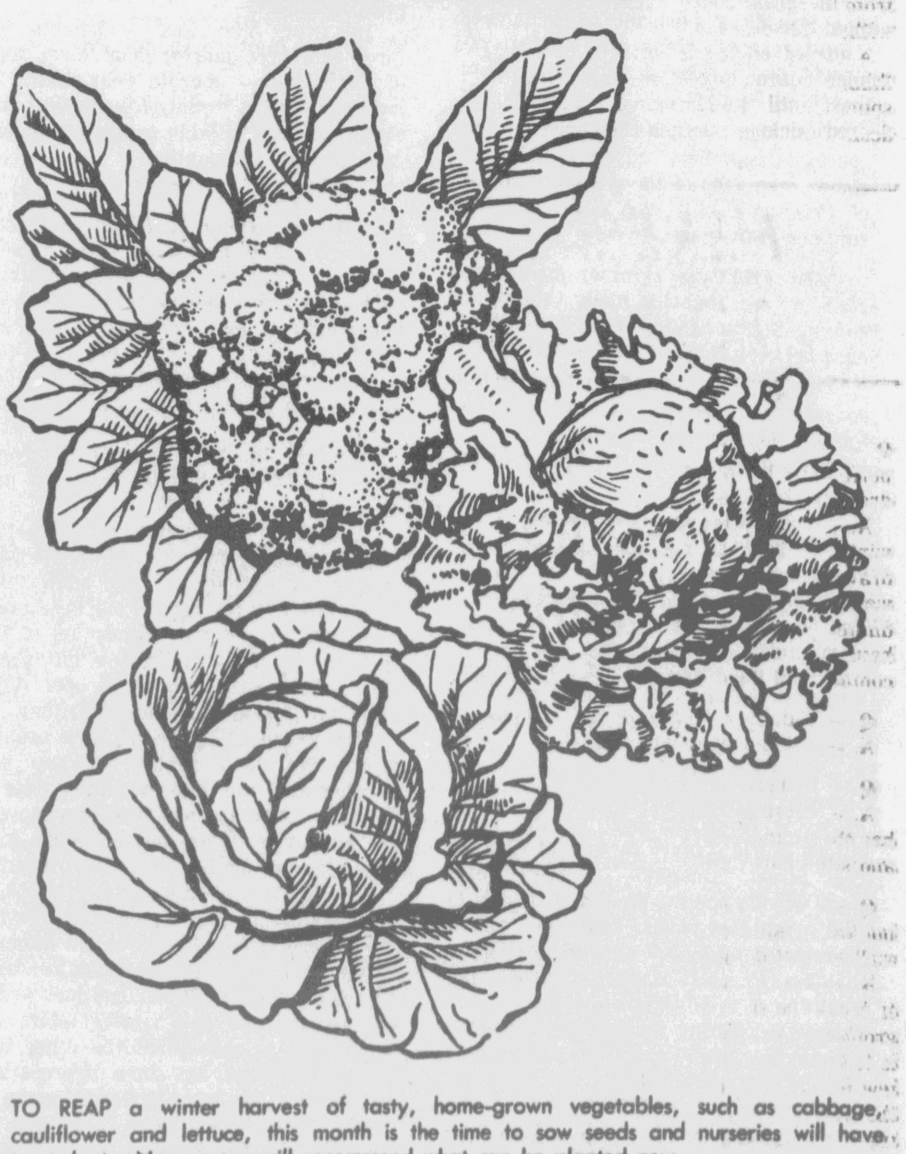
Winter vegetables may be planted now from seed flats or by seeds. When sowing seeds, a good rule to follow is to plant them three times as deep as the diameter of the individual seed.

ONCE YOUR vegetables start growing, be sure to keep weeds under control. Pesty weeds will inevitably be creeping into your vegetables' growing area. Hoeing the top one-half of soil will be sufficient to decapitate those unwanted additions to your crops. If you tend to weeds as they appear, the "Arm Strong" method of pulling weeds will work well — simply bend down and pull them as they appear.

How much rain you receive in your area will determine how often you should fertilize. Your local nurseryman can guide you on the proper amount to apply.

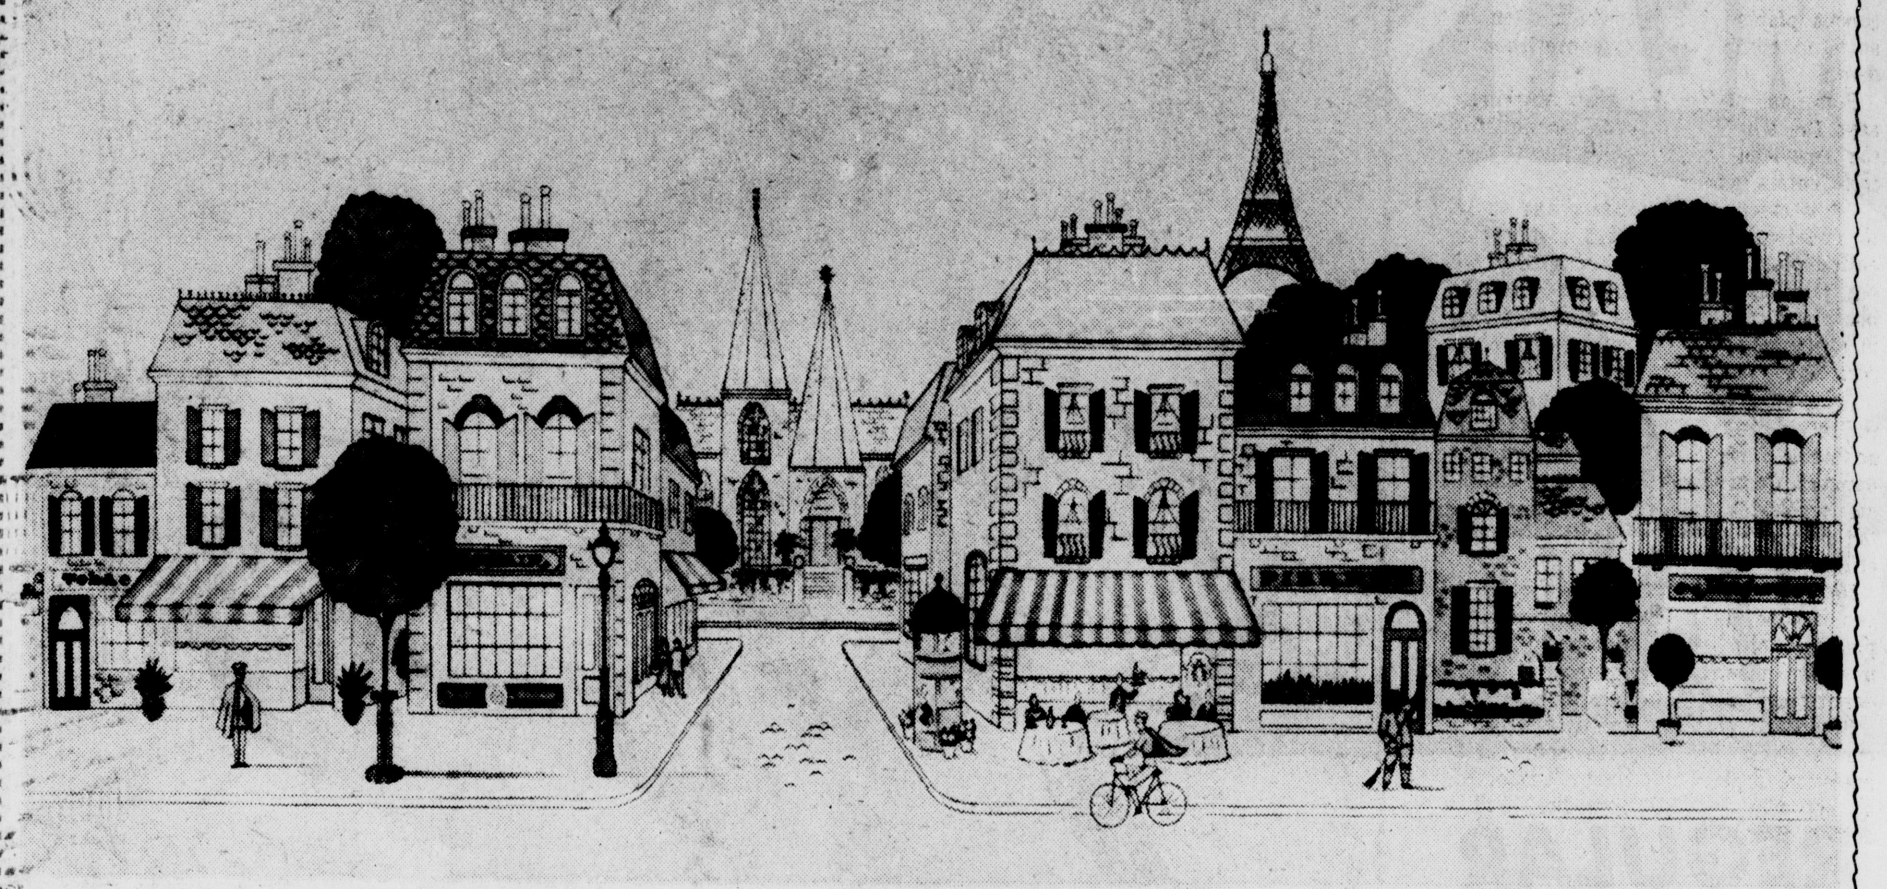
Growing your own vegetables gives you and your family the reward and satisfaction of knowing that you have prepared your meals from seed to plate.

WINTER VEGETABLES



TO REAP a winter harvest of tasty, home-grown vegetables, such as cabbage, cauliflower and lettuce, this month is the time to sow seeds and nurseries will have transplants. Nurserymen will recommend what can be planted now.

PLAY REMBRANDT WITH YOUR WALLS



A DO-IT-YOURSELF MURAL can make a room become fresh, vibrant and alive and fill the void in drab rooms where a dramatic focus is missing. You don't have to be an artist to create the European street scene mural show above. Measuring nine feet wide and thirty-eight inches high, it sets a cheerful mood for any room. All you have to do is trace the full-sized pattern on the wall, then paint over the tracings. If there isn't enought room, just leave off some of the buildings on either end. The pattern can be obtained by sending $3.50 to Steve Ellingson, Independent-Journal pattern department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409, and ask for Pattern 379, the street scene mural pattern. The pattern includes full-color, miniature picture of the completed mural to guide you and instructions on the colors and type of washable paints to use.

Used Furniture Can Be Good Buy

By JOAN HANAUER

In the old Arabian tale, Aladdin's wife was suckered into trading in his marvelous lamp by the offer of "new lamps for old." She learned the hard way that old furnishings may be better than new.

Whether you belong in the category of young and impoverished, family with small and destructive children, or you just plain won't part with the cash called for to buy new furniture — you'll find that used furniture can be a good buy.

"USED FURNITURE can Be a Good Buy" also is the title of a pamphlet written by Glenda Pifer, housing specialist of the U.S. Agriculture Department's extension service, in which the author writes:

"Used furniture can be a bargain if you choose it carefully."

Used furniture shouldn't be confused with antiques, which carry high price-tags. The woods are full of antique hunters combing country back lanes for buys that will make their fortune — but the odds in that kind of treasure hunt are very much in favor of the professional antique dealers.

IN Miss Pifer's context old furniture is just that — furniture that has been discarded because the owner died, had no further use for it or just plain got tired of looking at the stuff.

The place to find it is at auctions, garage sales, used furniture stores and thirft shops. Thrift shops may fall into two categories — those with the name but not the game and those that offer real bargains.

Best buys often are to be found at those run by the Salvation Army, Good Will or other charity. Some thrift shops are run cooperatively for the benefit of several worthy causes.

ONE CAUTION — even at charity thrift shops you can end up paying more than you should because the pricing often is done by volunteers who themselves can only guess at what a piece should cost.

It goes without saying that the more arts-and-crafts skills you bave, the more and better quality repairs you can do yourself, the better bargains you'll find. It's no bargain, after all, to buy a chair cheap, then spend a fortune having it reglued, otherwise repaired, and reupholstered.

WHEN YOU see something that catches your eye, don't get too overwhelmed until you've figured out how you're going to get it home.

Size also is an important consideration from a decorating viewpoint. Close your eyes and mentally move your intended purchase into your living room. Will it fit? Will it either overwhelm or dwarf what you've already got? Unless you're a period purist, don't worry about whether the furniture is Early American or Elderly Anonymous — mix-and-match styles are acceptable even in the swankest homes.

Next step is to check quality, and here are some suggestions from Miss Pifer:

CHESTS: ". . . take out one or two of the drawers and look at the inside corners of the chest frame. Wood corner posts are a sign of good quality. A good frame will not give or creak when you push against it.

"Drawers should pull out smoothly and easily. Handles should be smooth and easy to grasp. Drawer pulls should be fastened all the way through the front of the drawer.

"While you have the drawers out, see if the sides and bottoms are in good condition. The center guide — the wood strip going from front to back along the underside of a drawer adds to the strength of the chest and helps keep the drawer from jamming."

Tables, chairs and sofas: "Look carefully at the legs of furniture, especially if they are small. Tables should be rigid and well balanced. Turn small tables and chairs upside down to see how the legs are attached. Wood or metal braces where the legs are fastened on make the furniture stronger. Rungs or stretchers also help support table and chair legs."

WHEN IT comes to chairs and sofas, Miss Pifer advises the first step is to sit in them to check comfort. Turn upholstered furniture bottom side up to be sure the springs and frame are in good sahpe. Springs should be evenly spaced. Don't worry too much about the cushions they can be replaced, but check the back because if it's lumpy and uneven you'll have a major repair job ahead.

Cedar Edgings Ease Lawn Grooming Job

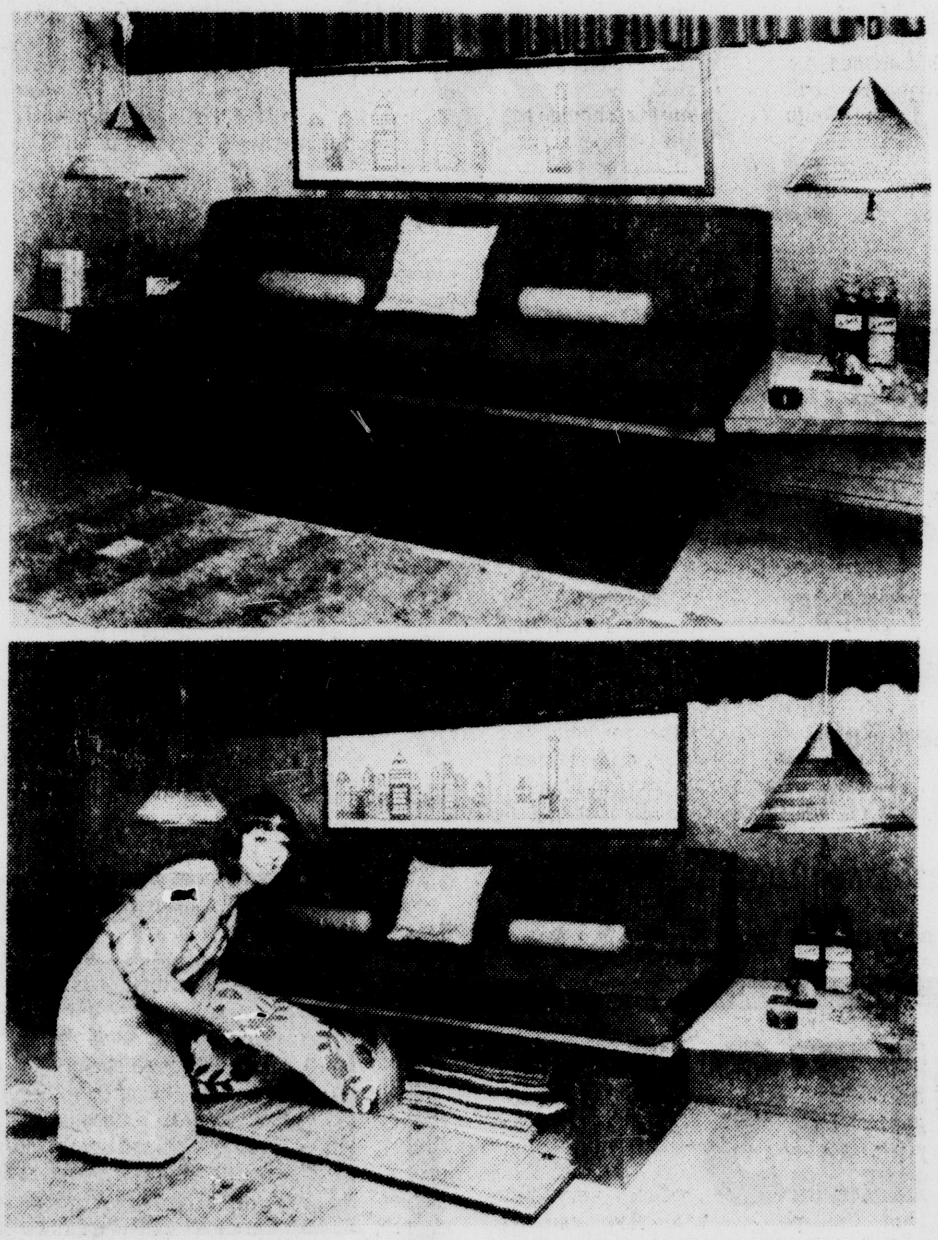
Easily installed edgings of two-by-four inch cedar or other preservative-treated western wood provide mowing strips for lawns and well-groomed divisions between grass, flower beds and walks.

The two-by-fours are spliced with one-by-fours for the desired length and set in a trench slightly deeper than the edging. After staking, the trench should be filled flush with the top of the wood.

Stakes cut from one-by-twos should be set and nailed to the edging at least every five feet. To reduce splitting, galvanized box nails should be used.

When the edging borders a lawn, all stakes should be driven on the side away from the grass so an edger can be used without interference.

A curved edging is formed by nailing thinner boards together, staggering the splices, until the laminated board is the desired thickness around the curve.



A HANDSOME SOFA BED can be built on top of a storage chest and hinged doors provided to permit access to the storage area. With the back cushions removed, the sofa becomes a comfortable bed, three feet wide and more than six-and-a-half feet long.

HERE'S THE ANSWER TO YOUR QUESTION

By ANDY LANG

Q. — The drawers of the bureau in our bedroom stick every summer. They work perfectly in the winter. Why does this happen and what can we do about it to make the drawers work more smoothly during the summer?

A. — The drawers stick in the summer because of the generally high humidity. In winter the heat in your house is turned on, the air becomes drier and the wood in the drawers shrinks. To correct the condition, wait until a dry day when the drawers are working properly. Take out the drawers and seal every part of them with shellac diluted 50 per cent with denatured alcohol. Give particular attention to areas which have no finish on them. Also, seal all wood portions of the frame which come in contact with the drawers, especially the sliding parts.

Q. — Which give off more heat — incandescent bulbs or fluorescent tubes?

A. — The incandescents. The fluorescents give more light per wattage but less heat.

Q. — Is there any kind of varnish that resists alcohol spills?

A. — There are several kinds of varnishes and synthetics with such resistance. One has the nickname of "bar" varnish and can be obtained in most specialty paint shops and some hardware stores and lumber yards.

Q. — One of the tiles on our bathroom wall has a big crack in it. I tried patching it but the repair looks worse than the crack did. Can a single tile be removed from the wall without damaging the others? I think the tiles are ceramic.

A. — Yes, it can be removed, but it must be done very carefully. Use a cold chisel to break the damaged tile after you have scored the tile around its four edges in the grouted joints. Hit the chisel lightly with a hammer, doing it without haste. The idea is to break up the tile with dozens of blows rather than attemtping to smash it with a few blows. You may have to shop around a bit to get a tile that will match the rest of the wall. When you do get it, have the dealer give you some cement that will hold the tile firmly as well as grouting compound. Scrape the old cement from the wall, apply the new to the back of the tile and press it in place. When it has set, use grout to refill the joints.

Cedar Chests Double

If you're an apartment dweller, you must have complained often that the architect who designed your building never lived in an apartment himself. If he had, there would be more storage space.

Nobody ever seems to have enough room to store out-of-season clothes and bedding. For a home owner, the problem is somewhat easier to solve; closets and cabinets can be built in, and they add to the value of his property.

WHEN YOU live in an apartment, you don't want to build anything that you can't take with you when you move. When you're studying your storage needs, think portable.

If you're moderately handy with hammer and saw, you can construct free-standing storage units that do much more than occupy space. Lined with readily available aromatic red cedar, such units will also protect your woolens from the depredations of the household moth.

A basic cedar chest can double as a sofa or day bed. Use two-by fours for the framing, plywood for the exterior, and cedar closet lining inside. A hollow-core door serves as the top. An eight-inch cushion of foam rubber plus a bolster finishes the sofa-bed.

THERE'S a lot of wasted space under the conventional bed. Sweaters and blankets can be well stored in cedar lined storage boxes that fit under the four-poster. Mount under-bed chests on casters so they can be pulled out easily.

Another apartment answer is free standing shelf units. Mix open shelves with enclosed, cedar lined units where you can safely pack away woolens. Coffee and lamp tables can also be planned to double as storage space.

Prepackaged bundles of cedar closet lining, in either uniform or random lengths, are available at leading lumber dealers and home centers. Instructions for installing the material are included.

Care of red cedar is easy. Leave it unfinished so its pleasant, moth-repelling aroma will be released, and simply dust it occasionally.

Bigger Is Not Always Better

Bigger is not necessarily better, as proved by small outdoor living areas that add charm to modest yards.

Stepped planting beds and board-faced planters lift the eye up and out of a confined garden space, and the effect is enhanced with a fence or screen of narrow vertical boards.

Shrubbery surrounding simple benches of four-by-four inch posts and slightly spaced two-by-four-inch seating creates a mini-garden for relaxation.

HOMES PAGE

House For Elderly Involves More Than Number Of Rooms

By ANDY LANG

Buying a house entails a lot more than merely choosing one of a particular size and style.

This is especially important in the case of the elderly, who must find their housing satisfaction in factors that usually are more vital than the number of rooms and baths, even though these are important.

ALL OF us know at least one retired couple who sold their old home, bought one in a new location and, after a year or two, were dissatisfied and perhaps made a second move, sometimes back to the former area.

Rarely, if ever, has any such couple complained about the house per se. Their reasons for not being satisfied were related to such things as location, climate, social and personal privacy, neighbors, accessibility to facilities and, in some cases, just plain loneliness. In the latter case, the absence of loved relatives and friends played a part in this feeling.

IT WOULD be easy to assume that, considering such reasons, some pattern would be apparent on which to base wise decisions. Surveys show otherwise. People can't always predict accurately how they will react to unfamiliar situations. Some of the elderly who did not wish to be located near children or other relatives (about 60 per cent in one survey) found later that they had moved too far away and that meetings were too infrequent to satisfy them.

Others who believed it important to be near relatives wished later that they had followed their first impulses and moved to more desirable climatic locations hundreds of miles away.

LUCKY indeed is the elderly couple who can forecast precisely which characteristics will be most important to them in retirement. Even luckier is the couple who can afford to hang on to their present home and perhaps lease it while they rent a house for a year in the area they have selected.

Conscientious real estate brokers can be of great help to those who want to settle in a region not familiar to them. As Stuart Davis, president of the Real Estate Board of Metropolitan St. Louis, puts it:

"We are in the people business, not the house business. We don't sell houses; we find the right homes for people."

Take The Squeaking Out Of Your Floors

By GEORGE MONTGOMERY

The furniture buff who has become handy with wood and woodworking tools often finds extracurricular outlets for his talents. One such outlet that should win approval from all the family is the repair of squeaking floors.

INDEED, a squeaking floor can be somewhat of a psychological challenge. A broken chair rung or a gouged table top are right out in the open where you can see them. You know just what to do. But a squeaky floor is something different. It's invisible. Perhaps you hear it only in damp weather — or perhaps only in dry weather. You are not really quite sure where it is.

But take heart. A few simple procedures will take the mystery out of squeaking floors.

There are several causes of squeaking floors. A floor support beam may have sagged leaving the floor boards unsupported. One or more floor boards may have become warped. Shrinkage also can cause squeaks. Or nails may have come loose.

YOUR FIRST step is to pinpoint the culprit. If the squeak is in the ground floor and the beams in your basement have not been covered, you are in luck. Ask someone to walk overhead while you stand in the basement. By a combination of sight and sound you will be able to locate the squeak and diagnose the cause.

If the problem is a sagging beam, the easy cure is to drive wooden wedges between the beam and the floor boards. If a large area is involved, an alternative is to force a length of wood longer than the sag up flush with the floor boards and nail it to the beam.

If the squeak is caused by loose or warped floor boards a different remedy is in order. Where there is just one layer of flooring involved the solution is to drive nails from above into the supporting beams. If there is double flooring, and the problem is with the finish layer, you can again make your repairs from below. Drill holes through the sub-flooring under the squeaky area and part way into the finish layer — then insert screws to pull the two layers of wood tightly together.

YOU HAVE still another problem if your basement ceiling is covered or the squeak is in an upstairs floor. Under these circumstances you must work from the surface. Special spiral nails are made for this purpose. They must be driven through the loose or warped boards into the supporting beams or sub-flooring and counter-sunk.

Unless you have wall-to-wall carpeting, you will have to fill the holes left by the countersunk nails with a suitable wood filler compound. In extreme cases you may have to refinish the entire floor.

Clever Trellising

Trellis panels built of western cedar two-by-twos set at right angles to a long fence strengthen construction, lend interest to garden niches.

Size also is an important consideration from a decorating viewpoint. Close your eyes and mentally move your intended purchase into your living room. Will it fit? Will it either overwhelm or dwarf what you've already got? Unless you're a period purist, don't worry about whether the furniture is Early American or Elderly Anonymous — mix-and-match styles are acceptable even in the swankest homes.

Next step is to check quality, and here are some suggestions from Miss Pifer:

CHESTS: ". . . take out one or two of the drawers and look at the inside corners of the chest frame. Wood corner posts are a sign of good quality. A good frame will not give or creak when you push against it.

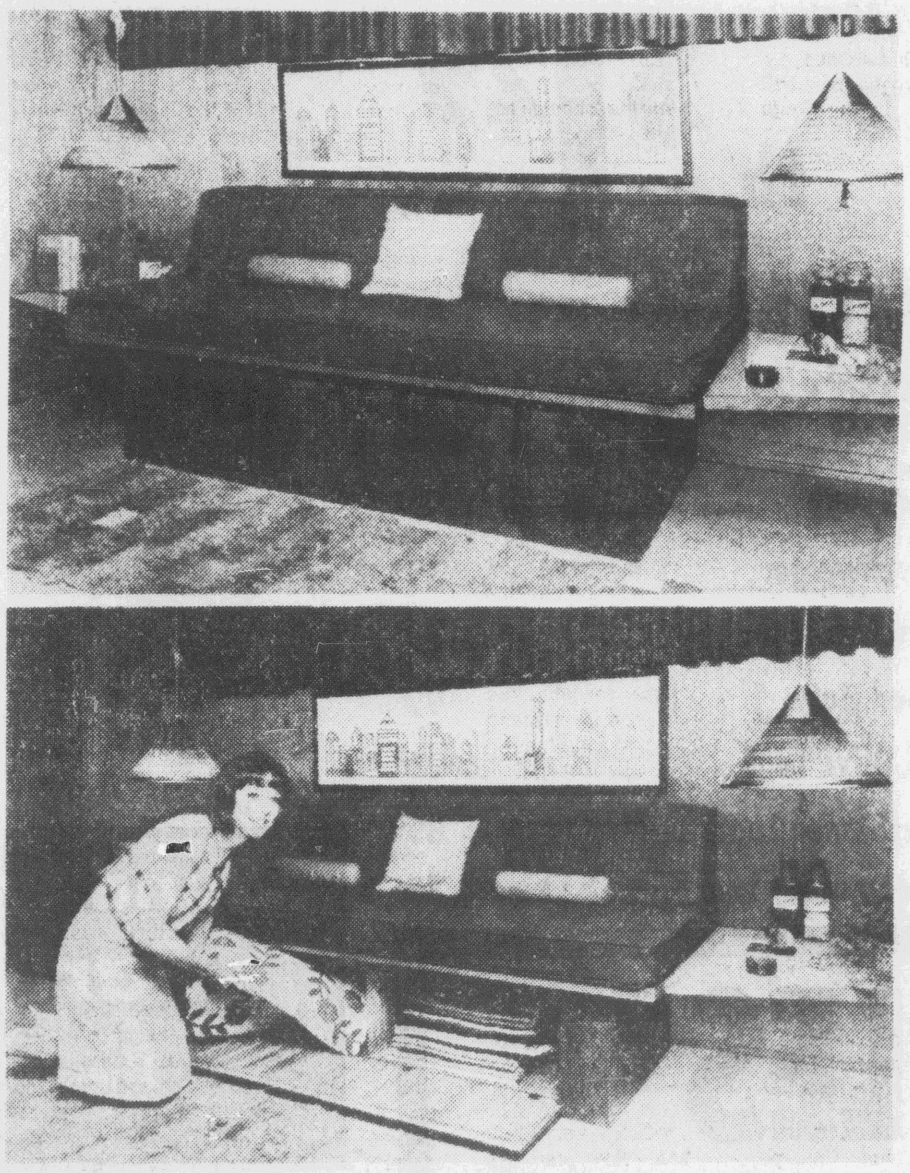
"Drawers should pull out smoothly and easily. Handles should be smooth and easy to grasp. Drawer pulls should be fastened all the way through the front of the drawer.

"While you have the drawers out, see if the sides and bottoms are in good condition. The center guide — the wood strip going from front to back along the underside of a drawer adds to the strength of the chest and helps keep the drawer from jamming."

Tables, chairs and sofas: "Look carefully at the legs of furniture, especially if they are small. Tables should be rigid and well balanced. Turn small tables and chairs upside down to see how the legs are attached. Wood or metal braces where the legs are fastened on make the furniture stronger. Rungs or stretchers also help support table and chair legs."

WHEN IT comes to chairs and sofas, Miss Pifer advises the first step is to sit in them to check comfort. Turn upholstered furniture bottom side up to be sure the springs and frame are in good sahpe. Springs should be evenly spaced. Don't worry too much about the cushions they can be replaced, but check the back because if it's lumpy and uneven you'll have a major repair job ahead.

One final caution — don't be embarrassed about giving your proposed buy a good looking over. Even at bargain prices furniture is a major budget item.



A HANDSOME SOFA BED can be built on top of a storage chest and hinged doors provided to permit access to the storage area. With the back cushions removed, the sofa becomes a comfortable bed, three feet wide and more than six-and-a-half feet long.

Cedar Edgings Ease Lawn Grooming Job

Easily installed edgings of two-by-four inch cedar or other preservative-treated western wood provide mowing strips for lawns and well-groomed divisions between grass, flower beds and walks.

"The two-by-fours are spliced with one-by-fours for the desired length and set in a trench slightly deeper than the edging. After staking, the trench should be filled flush with the top of the wood.

Stakes cut from one-by-twos should be set and nailed to the edging at least every five feet. To reduce splitting, galvanized box nails should be used.

When the edging borders a lawn, all stakes should be driven on the side away from the grass so an edger can be used without interference.

A curved edging is formed by nailing thinner boards together, staggering the splices, until the laminated board is the desired thickness around the curve.

HERE'S THE ANSWER TO YOUR QUESTION

By ANDY LANG

Q. — The drawers of the bureau in our bedroom stick every summer. They work perfectly in the winter. Why does this happen and what can we do about it to make the drawers work more smoothly during the summer?

A. — The drawers stick in the summer because of the generally high humidity. In winter the heat in your house is turned on, the air becomes drier and the wood in the drawers shrinks. To correct the condition, wait until a dry day when the drawers are working properly. Take out the drawers and seal every part of them with shellac diluted 50 per cent with denatured alcohol. Give particular attention to areas which have no finish on them. Also, seal all wood portions of the frame which come in contact with the drawers, especially the sliding parts.

Q. — Which give off more heat — incandescent bulbs or fluorescent tubes?

A. — The incandescents. The fluorescents give more light per wattage but less heat.

Q. — Is there any kind of varnish that resists alcohol spills?

A. — There are several kinds of varnishes and synthetics with such resistance. One has the nickname of "bar" varnish and can be obtained in most specialty paint shops and some hardware stores and lumber yards.

Q. — One of the tiles on our bathroom wall has a big crack in it. I tried patching it but the repair looks worse than the crack did. Can a single tile be removed from the wall without damaging the others? I think the tiles are ceramic.

A. — Yes, it can be removed, but it must be done very carefully. Use a cold chisel to break the damaged tile after you have scored the tile around its four edges in the grouted joints. Hit the chisel lightly with a hammer, doing it without haste. The idea is to break up the tile with dozens of blows rather than attemtping to smash it with a few blows. You may have to shop around a bit to get a tile that will match the rest of the wall. When you do get it, have the dealer give you some cement that will hold the tile firmly as well as grouting compound. Scrape the old cement from the wall, apply the new to the back of the tile and press it in place. When it has set, use grout to refill the joints.

Cedar Chests Double

If you're an apartment dweller, you must have complained often that the architect who designed your building never lived in an apartment himself. If he had, there would be more storage space.

Nobody ever seems to have enough room to store out-of-season clothes and bedding. For a home owner, the problem is somewhat easier to solve; closets and cabinets can be built in, and they add to the value of his property.

WHEN YOU live in an apartment, you don't want to build anything that you can't take with you when you move. When you're studying your storage needs, think portable.

If you're moderately handy with hammer and saw, you can construct free-standing storage units that do much more than occupy space. Lined with readily available aromatic red cedar, such units will also protect your woolens from the depredations of the household moth.

A basic cedar chest can double as a sofa or day bed. Use two-by fours for the framing, plywood for the exterior, and cedar closet lining inside. A hollow-core door serves as the top. An eight-inch cushion of foam rubber plus a bolster finishes the sofa-bed.

THERE'S a lot of wasted space under the conventional bed. Sweaters and blankets can be well stored in cedar lined storage boxes that fit under the four-poster. Mount under-bed chests on casters so they can be pulled out easily.

Another apartment answer is free standing shelf units. Mix open shelves with enclosed, cedar lined units where you can safely pack away woolens. Coffee and lamp tables can also be planned to double as storage space.

Prepackaged bundles of cedar closet lining, in either uniform or random lengths, are available at leading lumber dealers and home centers. Instructions for installing the material are included.

Care of red cedar is easy. Leave it unfinished so its pleasant, moth-repelling aroma will be released, and simply dust it occasionally.

Bigger Is Not Always Better

Bigger is not necessarily better, as proved by small outdoor living areas that add charm to modest yards.

Stepped planting beds and board-faced planters lift the eye up and out of a confined garden space, and the effect is enhanced with a fence or screen of narrow vertical boards.

Shrubbery surrounding simple benches of four-by-four inch posts and slightly spaced two-by-four-inch seating creates a mini-garden for relaxation.

HOMES PAGE

House For Elderly Involves More Than Number Of Rooms

By ANDY LANG

Buying a house entails a lot more than merely choosing one of a particular size and style.

This is especially important in the case of the elderly, who must find their housing satisfaction in factors that usually are more vital than the number of rooms and baths, even though these are important.

ALL OF us know at least one retired couple who sold their old home, bought one in a new location and, after a year or two, were dissatisfied and perhaps made a second move, sometimes back to the former area.

Rarely, if ever, has any such couple complained about the house per se. Their reasons for not being satisfied were related to such things as location, climate, social and personal privacy, neighbors, accessibility to facilities and, in some cases, just plain loneliness. In the latter case, the absence of loved relatives and friends played a part in this feeling.

IT WOULD be easy to assume that, considering such reasons, some pattern would be apparent on which to base wise decisions. Surveys show otherwise. People can't always predict accurately how they will react to unfamiliar situations. Some of the elderly who did not wish to be located near children or other relatives (about 60 per cent in one survey) found later that they had moved too far away and that meetings were too infrequent to satisfy them.

Others who believed it important to be near relatives wished later that they had followed their first impulses and moved to more desirable climatic locations hundreds of miles away.

LUCKY indeed is the elderly couple who can forecast precisely which characteristics will be most important to them in retirement. Even luckier is the couple who can afford to hang on to their present home and perhaps lease it while they rent a house for a year in the area they have selected.

Conscientious real estate brokers can be of great help to those who want to settle in a region not familiar to them. As Stuart Davis, president of the Real Estate Board of Metropolitan St. Louis, puts it:

"We are in the people business, not the house business. We don't sell houses; we find the right homes for people."

Take The Squeaking Out Of Your Floors

By GEORGE MONTGOMERY

The furniture buff who has become handy with wood and woodworking tools often finds extracurricular outlets for his talents. One such outlet that should win approval from all the family is the repair of squeaking floors.

INDEED, a squeaking floor can be somewhat of a psychological challenge. A broken chair rung or a gouged table top are right out in the open where you can see them. You know just what to do. But a squeaky floor is something different. It's invisible. Perhaps you hear it only in damp weather — or perhaps only in dry weather. You are not really quite sure where it is.

But take heart. A few simple procedures will take the mystery out of squeaking floors.

There are several causes of squeaking floors. A floor support beam may have sagged leaving the floor boards unsupported. One or more floor boards may have become warped. Shrinkage also can cause squeaks. Or nails may have come loose.

YOUR FIRST step is to pinpoint the culprit. If the squeak is in the ground floor and the beams in your basement have not been covered, you are in luck. Ask someone to walk overhead while you stand in the basement. By a combination of sight and sound you will be able to locate the squeak and diagnose the cause.

If the problem is a sagging beam, the easy cure is to drive wooden wedges between the beam and the floor boards. If a large area is involved, an alternative is to force a length of wood longer than the sag up flush with the floor boards and nail it to the beam.

If the squeak is caused by loose or warped floor boards a different remedy is in order. Where there is just one layer of flooring involved the solution is to drive nails from above into the supporting beams. If there is double flooring, and the problem is with the finish layer, you can again make your repairs from below. Drill holes through the sub-flooring under the squeaky area and part way into the finish layer — then insert screws to pull the two layers of wood tightly together.

YOU HAVE still another problem if your basement ceiling is covered or the squeak is in an upstairs floor. Under these circumstances you must work from the surface. Special spiral nails are made for this purpose. They must be driven through the loose or warped boards into the supporting beams or sub-flooring and counter-sunk.

Unless you have wall-to-wall carpeting, you will have to fill the holes left by the countersunk nails with a suitable wood filler compound. In extreme cases you may have to refinish the entire floor.

Clever Trellising

A Look At The Season So Far

By ARTHUR UNGER
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

"I don't think there is any danger in overestimating the intelligence of TV audiences — the real danger lies in underestimating it."

Those are the words of one of TV's most successful intelligence estimators: Norman Lear, producer of "All in the Family," "Sanford & Son," "Maude," "Good Times." In his Tandem Productions hopper right now is another spinoff — a show based on the Jeffersons, black next-door neighbors of the Bunkers.

Lear went on to say: "I think it is arrogant of some television people to say that we overestimate the intelligence of audiences. I have sat with hundreds of network executives and most of them have no more intelligence than the average American.

"They are usually no brighter than the less educated fellow I met in say, Winterset, Iowa, working in the car wash who, by virtue of native shrewdness and basic intelligence, is often able to fit more of life properly into his skull and come up with more of the proper answers than most TV executives."

Well, the new television season is now four weeks old and, perhaps, it is time to take a look at what the executives estimated in the way of audience intelligence and how the audience responded. With the aid of my trusty pocket computer I have averaged the ratings for the first three weeks of viewing, eliminating movies and specials, focusing only on regularly scheduled series.

The top shows are:

1. "All in the Family" (CBS, Saturday)
2. "Chico and the Man" (NBC, Friday)
3. "Sanford & Son" (NBC, Friday)
4. "Rhoda" (CBS, Monday)
5. "M-A-S-H" (CBS, Tuesday)
6. "The Waltons" (CBS, Thursday)
7. "Maude" (CBS, Monday)
8. "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" (CBS, Saturday)
9. "Little House on the Prairie" (NBC, Wednesday)
10. "The Bob Newhart Show" (CBS, Saturday)

Grouped closely after these top ten are the following: "Good Times," "Hawaii Five-O," "The World of Disney," "Medical Center," "Paul Sand: Friends and Lovers," "Rockford Files," "Streets of San Francisco," "Kojak," "Emergency," "Born Free," "Policewoman," "That's My Mama."

Even though some of those top 10 shows may not conform to your particular taste level, it would be hard to deny that they represent an amazingly superior group of programs. Each one is carefully conceived, beautifully executed, with well-delineated characters involved in psychologically authentic situations. They are skillfully written, acted, and directed. Their dialogue is relevant; their relationships valid. And in each case, the creator or exectuive producer involved is thoroughly dedicated to maintaining the integrity of his show.

Physical violence is practically nonexistent in these shows. Even the occasional violence in "M-A-S-H" is carefully calculated to discourage the idea of warfare rather than encourage it.

It is possible to break down these top ten into three basic categories: the hard-edge comedies ("All in the Family," "Chico and the Man," "Sanford & Son" "M-A-S-H," and "Maude"); the soft-edge comedies ("Rhoda," "Mary Tyler Moore," "Bob Newhart"); and the nostalgia group ("The Waltons," and "Little House on the Prairie.")

In the hard-edge group, the humor is often abrasive, the situations ticklish, the material adult. In most, bigotry is dealt a blow through ridicule. As a matter of fact, all three top shows feature aging, intolerant gentlemen in constant battle with their distorted values.

The bigotry always loses — but the audience comes away understanding it just a bit better. None of the shows treat bigotry as a dark and fearful thing — more like a sad exercise in futility.

In the case of "Maude" we are dealing with a by-the-numbers reactor who is softened and leavened by the inter-reaction of the people around her. Though her reasoning may be faulty she is thus able to make wise decisions most times.

"M-A-S-H," of course, points out the pomposity of human beings and the fallibility of hackneyed ideas, especially in war and medicine. But it is not destructive because, in the long run, it is about the foibles of people who love rather than hate one another when the choice arises.

The soft-edge shows ("Rhoda," "Mary" and "Bob") are all concerned with real people in real situations, learning to deal with their lives through humor and understanding. Every gag has the ring of psychological authenticity; minor revelation is the rule.

The nostalgia two ("Waltons" and "House") create worlds with values and virtues we all would like to believe once existed. They reflect the way things ought to have been if, in fact, they were not. One hopes, they imply, it is the way things could be once again.

In all of the shows, there are extraordinary men and women involved in the production, people with foresight and perserance. In the case of "All in the Family," "Sanford & Son," and "Maude," it is Norman Lear.

In the case of "Rhoda," "Mary Tyler Moore," and "Bob Newhart," it is James Brooks, Allan Burns, and perhaps, MTM herself. In the case of "M-A-S-H" it is Gene Reynolds, Larry Gelbhart and Alan Alda. In the case of "The Waltons," it is Earl Hammer. In the case of "Little House on the Prairie" it is Michael Landon. In the case of "Chico and the Man," James Komack.

All of the people are determined to maintain character, theme, authenticity — but most of all, integrity. It shows in the product . . . and in the audience reaction.

Of course, placement of the shows has a great deal to do with their success as well — the right show in the wrong time slot can fail miserably. Two cases in point are the nostalgic "The New Land" and "The Texas Wheelers," both fine shows which simply cannot overcome the handicap of difficult time slots.

But, on the whole, the first three weeks of the new season have proven that given valid concept and proper execution in conjunction with reasonable scheduling, intelligent, nonviolent, relevant television shows can win wide audience approval.

Let all the networks be forewarned: We now recognize that a bad season is the fault of the producers rather than the audience itself. The oft-repeated fable about the 12-year-old mentality of the average TV viewer has been thoroughly debunked.

But, let us not become too complacent either. Creeping up on the horizon, just below that top ten list, if intelligence and responsibility should falter, are: "Policewoman," "That's My Mama," and . . .

Like Any Other Author, Dick Cavett's Hustling His Book

By BOB THOMAS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — He seemed like any traveling author, hustling from radio to television stations to hawk his book, fretting about missing the change of seasons at his Long Island home.

But he wasn't just any author. He was Dick Cavett, here on a 10-city tour to sell "Cavett," which he wrote with Christopher Porterfield, his Yale roommate and now a member of his television staff.

After years of interviewing authors on his late-night talk show, Cavett now finds himself on the other side of the microphone.

"It's different," he admitted. "You find yourself groping with those general questions like, 'Tell us your most embarrassing moment on the air,' or, 'Who are the most fascinating people you have had on your show?'

"I am taken slightly aback and have to think awhile. I suppose I should have answers ready for such questions, but I hate to do that."

While in Los Angeles Cavett had been appearing on the shows of his sometime competitors, and he evidenced the author's trepidation about his performance.

"I'm a bit concerned about the show I did with Dinah Shore today," he said. "Somewhat inadvertently I made a couple of remarks that reflected on her age, and the audience laughed.

"Then I made another comment that wasn't meant to be a joke at all, but the audience thought it was another crack about how old she was.

"I tried to explain that I didn't mean that."

When he appeared with Johnny Carson, the audience was expecting the two wits to carve each other up. Instead, they talked about magic, with which both began as entertainers in Nebraska.

"I asked Johnny if it was all right if I mentioned that I was doing an all-magic show on my next broadcast," said Cavett.

Host is a guest

"He agreed — then he realized that I would be on opposite his own show."

"That's the night we're going to stage an electrocution,' he said. 'Then we're going to disembowel a horse.' "

Cavett said he got along akay on the Merv Griffin Show — "fortunately I didn't say anything bad about Merv in the book, at least I don't think I did."

Predictably, Jack Paar took offense and fired off a curt letter in answer to a news magazine's review of "Cavett."

"But that's Jack's way," said Cavett philosophically. An insatiable word-juggler, he pointed out that the anagram for Paar is "A Rap."

Cavett has been learning other things about the author's huckstering life, besides the inane questions and the bone-bending schedules.

"I spent two days racing around Chicago doing every show, then the stores ran out of books," he said.

That is one of the biggest gripes of book writers, but coauthor Porterfield pointed out Cavett's advantage: "He can pick up the phone and complain to the president of Harcourt Brace Jovanovich."

"Cavett" is, in fact, a highly readable and revealing portrait of one of television's best assets.

He is perhaps the tube's best talker, and hence attracts such rare TV guests as Marlon Brando and Katharine Hepburn. Alas, he also attracts slim ratings against the indominable Carson and hence he has had his shows reduced on the ABC schedule.

"Right now I'm supposed to be on every other Thursday," said Cavett, "although that has been disturbed by pre-emptions.

"The last was when President Nixon resigned; I was willing to give up my time for that.

"My contract with ABC comes up for renewal this month, and this is about the time they start asking for an extension.

"I don't know what will happen this time. I'm not pleased with the scheduling — you need a horoscope and a birth-control pill chart to find out when I'm on. I hope we can work out something better."

Carson Film Deal

NBC host Johnny Carson has joined with Paramount Productions to produce movies for television. The first is "Black Harvest," destined for ABC telecasting during the new season. Story is about a farmer's struggle in the 1940s against a plague of locusts.

Perennial Villain Achieves Dream With His Own Series

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Claude Akins, a character actor for years and a perennial guest star on television shows, has finally achieved his dream with a series of his own, "Movin' On."

Akins' rugged features and rock quarry voice make him the perfect stereotype villain. But he's almost heroic as the tough truck driver in the new NBC show.

Ferocious as he may appear externally, Akins is essentially a softie who is family oriented. He and his wife Therese, whom he calls Pie, have been married 23 years.

Their children are Claude Jr., 17, Wendy, 15, and Michelle, 13.

Each youngster excels in a different field. Claude Jr. is a top flight amateur golfer who hopes to turn professional one day. A high school senior, he has won several tournaments.

It is only natural then that the Akin home in the San Fernando Valley is filled with trophies, ribbons and plaques. Until this year the lion's share of golf trophies in the family den belonged to Akins, but they have been surpassed by Claude Jr.'s prizes.

The ranch style house is comfortably furnished in contemporary style. The swimming pool is outsized and used every day when Akins is in town. He starts each morning with a brisk series of laps.

Papa Akins' delight at having his own show is tempered by the fact that he works entirely on location a thousand miles or more from home. Most of "Movin' On" is being shot in the Pacific Northwest.

He left home July 15 and won't return until December. Akins eats all his meals in restaurants during production and has learned to call a variety of motels home during shooting of the peripatetic show.

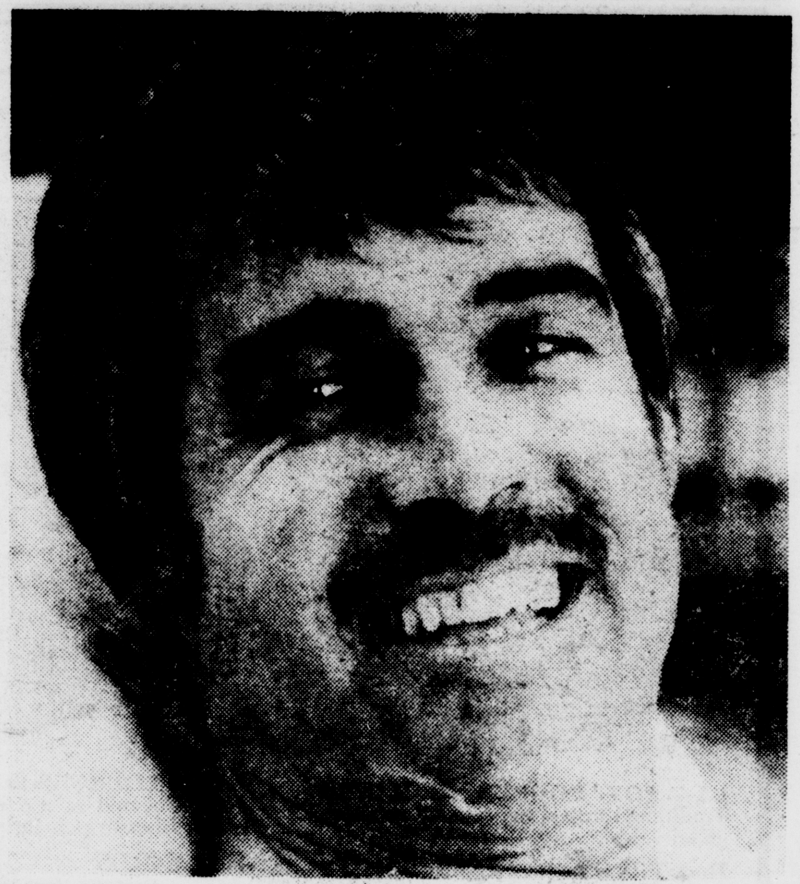
He works 12 hours a day, from sunup to sundown, six days a week.

With the children in school and a large house to run Pie has been unable to visit her husband on the endless locations.

For the fifth year Claude has been unable to accompany his family on summer vacations. Just when school lets out Claude inevitably finds himself reporting to work in a movie or television show.

The actor is comfortable in denims and boots, but he most often can be found wearing golf togs, returning to or heading for the links

If any actor leads a typical Southern California existence — featured by indoor-outdoor living with plenty of sports thrown in — it is Claude Akins and family, and they wouldn't have it any other way.



JOE KAPP, former Minnesota Vikings quarterback, appears on NBC's "Emergency!" in the episode "Surprise," to be shown Saturday, Oct. 19, at 8 p.m. on Channels 3 and 4. Kapp plays a physical fitness instructor who passes out in a sauna bath.

Perennial Villain Achieves Dream With His Own Series

Akins' rugged features and rock quarry voice make him the perfect stereotype villain. But he's almost heroic as the tough truck driver in the new NBC show.

Ferocious as he may appear externally, Akins is essentially a softie who is family oriented. He and his wife Therese, whom he calls Pie, have been married 23 years.

Their children are Claude Jr., 17, Wendy, 15, and Michelle, 13.

Each youngster excels in a different field. Claude Jr. is a top flight amateur golfer who hopes to turn professional one day. A high school senior, he has won several tournaments.

It is only natural then that the Akin home in the San Fernando Valley is filled with trophies, ribbons and plaques. Until this year the lion's share of golf trophies in the family den belonged to Akins, but they have been surpassed by Claude Jr.'s prizes.

The ranch style house is comfortably furnished in contemporary style. The swimming pool is outsized and used every day when Akins is in town. He starts each morning with a brisk series of laps.

Papa Akins' delight at having his own show is tempered by the fact that he works entirely on location a thousand miles or more from home. Most of "Movin' On" is being shot in the Pacific Northwest.

He left home July 15 and won't return until December. Akins eats all his meals in restaurants during production and has learned to call a variety of motels home during shooting of the peripatetic show.

He works 12 hours a day, from sunup to sundown, six days a week.

With the children in school and a large house to run Pie has been unable to visit her husband on the endless locations.

For the fifth year Claude has been unable to accompany his family on summer vacations. Just when school lets out Claude inevitably finds himself reporting to work in a movie or television show.

The actor is comfortable in denims and boots, but he most often can be found wearing golf togs, returning to or heading for the links

If any actor leads a typical Southern California existence — featured by indoor-outdoor living with plenty of sports thrown in — it is Claude Akins and family, and they wouldn't have it any other way.

"THE STORE YOU KNOW BECAUSE YOU HELPED US GROW"

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR RONA JAFFE, author of "Family Secrets"

When did you first decide to be a writer?—A. S., Hartford, Conn.

● At five—when I saw my first "Tarzan" film! I thought it would be loads of fun to be a lady reporter and go into the dark and dangerous jungle with a man reporter. My first job was editing for a magazine where I had to rewrite other people's lurid stories (cleaning them up and toning them down). At that time sex wasn't as fashionable as it is now. My bosses felt that since I was 20, I was naïve and would therefore inject some innocence into the manuscripts. Finally I decided if I could improve the work of others, I should write under my own name.

FOR ALAN ALDA

How much are you and "Hawkeye," the character you portray on "M*A*S*H," alike?—Paula Wall, Hobbs, N.M.

● Neither of us is interested in war, and we both try to do our work as well as we can. Unlike the character, I'm a family man and I don't drink martinis (I've never had one in my life); but I do have a sense of humor that's always with me. When it's not on display, I keep it hidden—just below the surface!

FOR JEANE DIXON, seeress

I thought that you did not use your gift of prophecy for monetary gain but that you gave all remunerations to charity. Now I hear this is not true. Would you comment?—H. Tobola, Cadott, Wis.

● All the earnings from my lectures, articles and various radio and TV appearances go directly to the Children to Children Foundation. I personally do not receive one cent.

FOR JAYNE MEADOWS

Why do you wear furs and feathers when you claim to be a conservationist?—James Giarelli, Gainesville, Fla.

● The furs I wear are either fake or else minks that Steve bought me 15 years ago. Mink is not an endangered species. When I have to wear furs for a role, I make sure they're not from an endangered species. For "Love American Style," I wore the ostrich-feather coat designed by Edith Head 40 years ago for Carole Lombard, and supplied by Paramount Pictures. I'm not a hypocrite! I love all humans and animals.

● Actually, it's hard on the whole leg, not just the knees. When you get up and down that often, you really begin to feel it. That's one reason I like to play another position from time to time. It gives me a nice break from catching, and I still get to stay in the game.

FOR O. J. SIMPSON, football star

During the football strike, you said that "freedom of speech" was one of the players' demands that most concerned you. Could you explain?—Ted Davidson, Teaneck, N.J.

● Too often free speech in pro football has been a one-way street. For example, in Atlanta last year Coach Norm Van Brocklin said he would fine any player who criticized the Falcons' organization in the press. Yet he held players up to ridicule in front of media people. We want the chance to speak as freely as the people who discuss us with the media.

FOR ELIZABETH POST,
director of the Emily Post Institute

Should parents accept an invitation from their unmarried son or daughter to visit the apartment they're sharing with someone of the opposite sex?—G. B., Albany, N.Y.

● I definitely think they should. To refuse gains the parents nothing but a loss of communication and influence with their child. And, of course, "acceptance" of the invitation doesn't necessarily mean approval of the arrangement.

FOR MARY STUART, star of "Search for Tomorrow"

What episodes have you enjoyed most in "Search for Tomorrow"?—T. Valins, Pontiac, Mich.

● Two stand out. When I played a blind character and a deaf mute. It was challenging and fascinating, and it gave me enormous insight into how handicapped people live. I prefer stories in which I can become totally involved and lose my own identity. For selfish reasons, I'd love to have more of the music I write played on the show. My song, "Don't Look Back," was used on "Search," and it was very well received.

FOR ARTHUR HERZOG, author of "Swarm"

Is there a real likelihood that dangerous bees from South America are coming north, as you predict in your novel?—Tom Moore, Sacramento, Calif.

● Yes, there is. The bees are now in Brazil—they are imports from Africa and escaped there—and are coming north at about 200 miles a year. If they make it all the way to the U.S., they could be a problem, as they are very irritable and attack in swarms. But the U.S. Government is taking measures to try and keep them out.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

Do you have any professional ideas on whether it's better for an adopted child to be told of his natural parents and the circumstances that led to his adoption?—A. C., Philadelphia, Pa.

● Professional opinion still indicates the child should NOT be told, because of the resultant search by the child for his biological parents and the emotional trauma that might result from it. Roger Grimsby, anchorman of ABC-TV's "Eyewitness News," is an adopted child who, despite sealed legal documents, was successful in locating his natural parents. In a recent lecture on the subject, he admitted he has been left with mixed feelings. He believes that the information should not be provided to the adoptive parents, but the child himself should be able to get it when he reaches legal age.

Famous Scandinavian Design Scissors

The Scissors that are molded to your hand

- Cushion plastic handles with contour finger grip gives you more comfort and cutting freedom than you've ever experienced before.
- Stainless steel blades
- Cut paper . . . patterns . . . fabrics with incredible ease

Some time ago those inventive Scandinavians introduced an entirely new concept in scissors. It was a scissors with a special cushioned handle anatomically designed to fit your hand. The comfort was incredible. You could cut through the most intricate curve, cut all kinds of materials, cut free hand into all kinds of designs or slip the scissors along the table for an even straight line cut. People who were used to the old fashioned kind of scissors couldn't imagine a pair of scissors working so efficiently and so effortlessly as this new design. Seamstresses and anyone who needed them knew they had discovered a secret. But originally these scissors cost much, much more. In fact, even today you can find this design selling for $8.00 or more in fine stores. But now we've created this same design at a fantastically low price. "Shear Joy"! It's got the familiar orange, cushion soft, plastic handle, the stainless steel blades, weighs only 3 ounces, and they're 8¼" long. If you thought there was nothing glamorous about a pair of scissors then wait until you've tried these. At this new low price you can't afford to be without them. Order now. If they are not shear joy, simply return for full money back.

Globe Photos

Johnny Cash and June Carter with their son John Carter. Johnny and June will host the CBS-TV special Country Music Award Show on October 14.

> "On weekends, when I drive out the gate, sometimes there are 40 or 50 tour buses out there! They unload at the front gate and take pictures of the house. . . . I'd like to say it doesn't bother me."

Normally, country-western superstar Johnny Cash shuns interviews. And when he does consent to them, he invariably includes his wife, June Carter, or (as in this case) Rosanne Cash (Johnny's daughter) and Rosie Nix (June's daughter). The meeting was held in their New York hotel suite.

Johnny Cash seemed to be a very relaxed man, one who smiles so often he should pose for toothpaste ads. He is much younger looking and better looking in person than he seems on TV. He talked easily, giggled often and acted very much like a man who has just found the secret of how to stay happy. Like his wife June, he wears an Israeli wedding ring and, around his neck, both the Star of David and a gold cross.

FAMILY WEEKLY: What makes you happy now?

JOHNNY: Having my family with me. It really does. That's what makes me happy, and knowing that everything's all right! Of course, a man's got to enjoy his work. I really enjoy working. The girls and I come off the stage at night and we're as high as kites! We're just so happy with what we're doing. And having John Carter [Johnny's youngest son, age four] with us makes us all feel better. He's here today, playing out in the park.

FW: Music seems to be kind of a way of life with you.

JOHNNY: It always has been. The girls both inherited a legacy of music I suppose, especially Rosie. Music in this family goes back to 1927, when her grandmother, Maybelle Carter, first started recording. June, Rosie's mother, has been onstage since she was six. I've been at it for 20 years. All Rosanne has ever known is her daddy as an entertainer and performer. I guess she wouldn't know what it was like to have a daddy who lived a normal life and worked at a regular job.

FW: Then music has always been part of your family?

JOHNNY: It's a binding kind of thing because we feel a closeness when we're singing that nobody could feel any other way. It's like we're sharing a song together. And the song is coming from each one of us, but it's coming from all of us as well. It's like a marriage out there. We're all one!

FW: How do you explain the growing interest in country-and-western music?

JOHNNY: In many ways, country and western has grown up. It's appealing to a lot more people. It's meshing and merging in a lot of ways without losing any of its originality, pureness and simplicity of form. At the same time, which is a strange thing, people like Willie Nelson, Waylon Jennings and guys like that are calling their music "hard country rock" or "hard country." Waylon Jennings is kind of like an outlaw in country and western. In many ways, he's like me. I've never really been quite orthodox country. I've done it according to feel. And that's the way a lot of people like Waylon are doing it. There's honesty in his performance and delivery. He doesn't compromise the way he feels just to please a certain group of peole. He is himself. But it's not all a bed of roses family-wise. Life on the road is very stimulating and exciting. It's a great life, living in a nice hotel like this -and playing a beautiful place like the Music Theater. But when we get home, then the tough part starts. It's hard for a 42-year-old man to understand a 16-year-old or a 19-year-old girl! When we go home, there's a lot of pressure that builds up. Things are waiting for us to come home and take care of.

FW: But isn't home the only place you can really relax?

JOHNNY: It's the only place you can't relax unless you stay home three or four weeks. Then you can adjust to the change of pace. But you need time to separate the entertainment world and the home world. We haven't found that time.

FW: Do you find when you travel together as a family that you're so glad to be with each other that you don't need other people around?

JOHNNY: That's certainly not true with the girls. June and I are fairly exclusive. For example, when we finish a concert, we always have an invitation to go to a club or hear another entertainer. We rarely do it. If we could, we would put on wigs and glasses and go sit in the audience like everybody else. That would be great! We did that once.

FW: Would you like to be a bum and just go out there and do what you want to?

JOHNNY: Secretly, maybe I would! I have a blond wig and glasses. June put hers on one time, too, and the two of us went to see the Carter Family and sat right in the front row and nobody knew us. It was great fun. I guess there's a little bit of that in all of us, when we'd like to be just a face in the crowd.

FW: How do you relax?

ROSANNE: He goes off with John Carter mostly, fishing.

JOHNNY: I enjoy John Carter. I relax a lot with him. And I love to go to movies! Do you know what I like? I like children's movies! I looked in The New York Times and saw what movies were showing here for children. I saw "The Song of the South" was playing again. I'd like to go see that again. I took John Carter to see "Herbie Rides Again." That's the last movie I've seen. Do you know what I enjoy about it? The children! I enjoy the laughter and applause of children. I really get a kick out of that. I don't know if you saw it, but I really loved the scene when that Volkswagen ran up the side of that building and jumped across the river! All those kids were jumping and screaming and laughing!

FW: Have your exposure on TV and frequent public appearances robbed you of your privacy?

JOHNNY: Sometimes I resent the

Eighth in a series:

She's Betty King Barker, industrial designer who can list among her credits 4 careers, 3 grandchildren, 2 sons, and 1 husband. She also manages to find time for tennis, golf and looking after her good looks. To keep her silvery hair bright and beautiful, she uses Silk & Silver, Clairol's long lasting color lotion in Silvery Pearl* #14.

"So easy," says Mrs. Barker, "I just shampoo it in every few weeks – it colors away the yellow, adds lots of body and wonderfully rich deep color." And it has no peroxide.

Precious 24K Gold, married to pure .999 Silver by an extraordinary advance in Gold Metallurgy.

12 Great Americans 1776-1976.

The World's first Medallic Series in Gold Bas Relief.

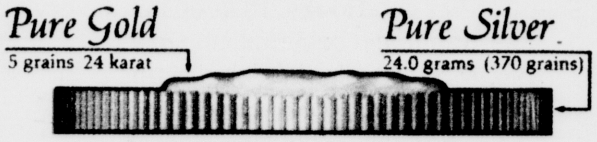
TWELVE GREAT AMERICANS
GEORGE WASHINGTON
1776-1976

As our great country approaches its second centennial. The Letcher Mint proudly presents a limited edition of intricately crafted commemorative medals...unique in all the world:

For more than four years research has been conducted in the laboratories of The Letcher Mint, drawing heavily on the latest space-age developments in the forming of precious metals.

As a result of these painstaking efforts by the craftsmen and technicians of the west's largest private mint, we now can create a single amazing piece of metal—with pure 24 K gold and the purest silver obtainable (99.9% silver) permanently combined to form a collector's item of exceptional rarity and beauty. This is not gold plating or common "gold on silver" —but an entirely new and revolutionary process.



A Treasury of Americana

In the relatively short span of time between 1776 and 1976 the ideas and deeds of these great men helped make America the most influential country in the world.

George Washington
Benjamin Franklin
John Paul Jones
Alexander Hamilton
Abraham Lincoln
Robert E. Lee
Mark Twain
Thomas A. Edison
Theodore Roosevelt
Charles A. Lindbergh
Dwight D. Eisenhower
John F. Kennedy

Now at a time when world events rush forward at breathtaking speed, the wise collector and novice alike have a rare opportunity. That of owning a series of precious medals of both historic significance and true intrinsic worth.

Sculptured by Boris Buzan

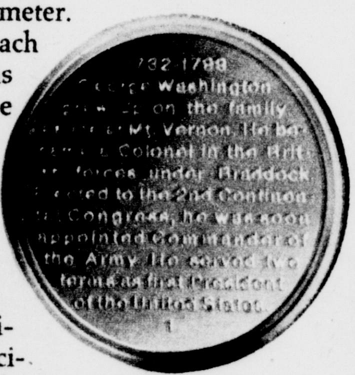
Enduring Value

As the cost of gold and silver on world markets spirals inexorably upward, there could be no wiser choice for the collector than a purchase of pure gold and pure silver medals and coins. For here truly is a commodity whose value is timeless and virtually indestructible.

Each piece in this distinguished series measures a full 39mm (1.53″) in diameter. The obverse side depicts each of 12 Great Americans sculptured in brilliant pure gold (24 K). The mirror-like, pure silver background is finely detailed with illustrations individually designed for each of the 12 medals. The reverse dies are exquisitely engraved with fascinating biographical details in raised, frosted lettering, against the gleaming, pure silver background. And each piece contains a total of 5 grains of pure 24 K gold and 370 grains of pure .999 silver (more pure than sterling).



Limited Edition

In honor of the 200th anniversary of the American Revolution, 9,800 sets of Great Americans medals will be struck. 5,000 of these have been reserved for existing Letcher Mint collectors, leaving only 4,800 available to the public at large, on a first come, first served basis. No other sets will be struck and the dies will be destroyed, insuring the rarity of the series and its value to the collector.

Price Guarantee

The Great Americans series will be issued at the approximate rate of one medal per month. And the issue price of $30 per piece will be maintained regardless of increases in the prices of gold and silver on world markets during the life of your series. This offer will expire December 30, 1974.

Please complete the order form below and each medal will be sent to you postpaid via insured mail, in its own case. You will be notified monthly as each medal is struck. What's more, when the order for your fourth medal is confirmed, you will be sent prepaid, a luxurious presentation case with lock and key, to house your entire collection.

Save $30

Charge to your credit card number or send a check for $330 with your application, you will receive prepaid, all 12 medals and the beautiful presentation case without additional invoices or effort (you save $30).

We believe that this extraordinary series will become one of your most valued possessions. If after viewing your first medal you do not agree, just return it within 10 days for a full refund. After that you may discontinue your subscription at any time with no further obligation.

Johnny Cash

knocks on the door. A lot of people just come walking up to our house—even at night. Of course, we have a guard, and the alarm system is always working. There's no way anybody could break in. But people come. A songwriter or somebody from a charity organization who thinks he needs my help. They knock on my door late at night and want to talk to me. Invariably, I say, "I'm sorry! I don't take care of business at home. You'll have to see somebody in my office tomorrow." I try to handle it as politely as I can.

JOHNNY: I lock the door or tell the guard I'm not at home or I don't want to see anybody unless it's an emergency. Or I go to my back room, stay in there and sleep or read by myself. I don't think I've done it more than twice in my life, but I can if I want to! On weekends, when I drive out the gate, sometimes there are 40 or 50 tour buses out there! They unload at the front gate and take pictures of the house. The bus goes up to the end of the street, turns around and comes back and picks up the people.

FW: Does that bug you?

JOHNNY: There are times when there might be 400 or 500 people standing out in front of my house! I'd like to say it doesn't bother me. Sometimes—and usually it's when I'm in a hurry—I hit that driveway and there are 300 people blocking the car! For pictures and autographs. It's taken a lot of wisdom and prayer to know how to handle it.

FW: How does June help you in this?

JOHNNY: She is a solid rock! She'll stop and talk to those people.

ROSIE: She'll give them her life story. And stand there and chat with them and give them recipes.

JOHNNY: I tell you, she has been the human anchor that God gave me to hold on to through those kinds of things. And I'm pretty hard on her. Sometimes when people want to talk or ask a question, I turn to her and let her answer it. June is a very strong person spiritually. No matter what the crisis is, she'll always stop me cold with a smile! She'll say, "Now raise your right hand and reach up for some strength!" Sometimes, if it's really a crisis, I'll say, "Don't bug me!" And I'll refuse to raise my hand! But she'll just keep looking at me and keep smiling. And she'll stick her hand up there higher and higher until finally I'll have to do it too!

SMART SHOPPERS TAKE NOTE!

Since September 8, consumers are finding more precise "open dating" information on packaged meat and poultry to assist them in determining the freshness of these products. Specifically, meat and poultry, which are calendar-dated, are now also carrying an explanation of what the date means.

Under the U.S. Department of Agriculture's newly amended regulations, the calendar date will have to be identified as a "packing date" "sell by date" or "use before date."

Hopefully, the new regulations will provide consumers with more information on the freshness of meat and poultry products.

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

How Much Do You Know About (Grrrrrrr!) Hostility?

True or False: Most people feel there is no excuse for husbands and wives throwing things or slapping each other.
(See number 4)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. If you are in a happy mood when confronted by someone who is angry with you, his hostility will gradually diminish.

2. If you happen to offend someone for whom you've done a favor, he is much less likely to explode with verbal or physical violence.

3. If a person is frustrated, a good way to keep him from blowing his top is to sympathize with him.

4. Most people feel there is no excuse for husbands and wives throwing things or slapping each other.

5. A chief reason why two people become hostile toward each other is that they have different types of brain rhythm.

ANSWERS

1. False. Studies show that your happy mood is likely to arouse more hostility and increase the chance of a violent altercation. Conversely, if you are in a depressed mood, this will have a cooling effect on the other person's anger.

2. False. Studies at the University of Pennsylvania have demonstrated that when a person offends someone he has helped, it makes the other person much angrier and "results in greater retaliation."

3. False. According to studies at the University of Alberta (Canada). It was found that sympathy actually elicited more aggression under frustration conditions.

4. True. A survey of more than a thousand adults showed that only 20 percent could easily visualize situations where they could fully approve of a husband slapping his wife's face. A somewhat higher percentage said they could imagine circumstances where a wife would be justified in letting her husband have a hard one right across the chops. But less than four percent could imagine situations in which they felt more extreme forms of marital mayhem would be justified.

5. True. Studies conducted by Dr. W. Grey Walter of the Burden Neurological Institute (Great Britain) have shown that if one person is a visual thinker (one who thinks in practical, down-to-earth terms) and another is an abstract thinker (theoretical as opposed to realistic or literal), neither understands the other, and a mutual hostility tends to build up almost immediately. "The antagonism between visual and abstract thinkers can cause an irrational rupture of communications among scientists, politicians, administrators, diplomats, and even married couples." The two antagonists may think they are speaking the same language, but they are not. Their brain rhythms, their mental faculties, function in diametrically opposite ways.

Save money on interior decorations, clothing, accessories and gifts. Learn a skill that could become a part-time money-maker.

A new library of craft projects

So why pay high prices for things you can create for yourself?

Let The Family Creative Workshop, a new craft encyclopedia, help you discover the personal satisfaction of making professional-looking crafts "from scratch."

Over 900 activities to choose from in alphabetically arranged volumes, are all the crafts you ever wanted to try and more! From tapestry to tie-dying, pottery to plastics. From things as simple as a paper airplane to things as complicated as building a kayak or a greenhouse.

Every member of your family will find a project to enjoy. Perhaps Dad would like to build a specialized birdhouse, or a simple concrete birdbath that costs practically nothing. Turn on a teenager by showing him how to make a free spirit out of an old car with a rainbow acrylic paint job...for less than the cost of a retread. Children will be fascinated (and learn ecology, too) from a mason-jar ant farm. Mom will love making placemats, colonial candles, luxurious strawberry soap, batik wall hangings.

Build your craft skills

You learn any of the over 200 basic craft skills by following step-by-step instructions for the variety of project ideas offered in each. Choose the ones that fit your time schedule, budget, degree of skill. There are symbols at the beginning of each project to guide you. The first project is usually a simple, quick, low-cost "starter" idea.

Each project has been designed by a highly regarded expert in the field, is explained with step-by-step directions, diagrams and photographs that show you exactly what to do. Follow them, and the professional look of your handcraft is assured.

Hours of fun and you save money too!

You can literally save hundreds of dollars by making your own lamps, rugs, pottery, gifts, turning garage-sale bargains into handsome "antiques." Or you can make money for your favorite charity by donating your crafts for sale.

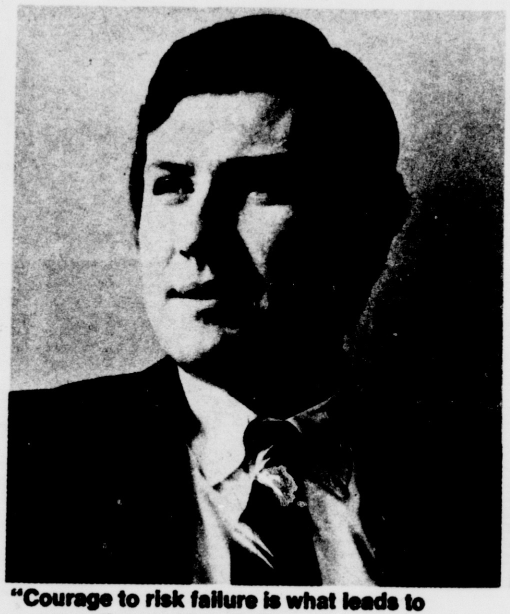
The Strange Way We Groom Ourselves for Failure

By Allan J. Cox



Diana Bryant

"Courage to risk failure is what leads to success," says Allan J. Cox.

> "It is always easier to blame others for some personal disappointment or problem rather than see how our own negative attitude guaranteed the occurrence."

Wise men have known for a long time that if you can change a person's expectations you can change his behavior. However, although we know this, we do not always make proper use of this important wisdom in our daily lives.

Perhaps it is because we have been burned by leaders who have misused—or, at the very least, misunderstood—the powerful tool of inspiration. Unfortunately, inspiration has been used more often than not to manipulate others for self-serving ends rather than for their own fulfillment. The lesson from political life is clear: Rash promises and the call to new hope among dispirited people lead to even greater depression and apathy when those promises go unfilled and those hopes are proved unjustified.

However, I think there are deeper reasons for our not being comfortable with the notion that by changing our expectations we can change our behavior. And I think the discomfort stems from knowing that this makes each of us responsible for the outcome of his life. It is always easier to blame others for some personal disappointment or problem rather than see how our own negative attitude guaranteed the occurrence.

At work, we see this harmful principle operating daily. For example, a subordinate has an idea with real merit, but he is sure the boss won't like it, so he never presents it. Or even if he does, his presentation is so lacking in verve that the boss is hard-pressed to take his attention away from his other duties to give the idea the consideration it deserves.

What purpose is served for the subordinate who has set up his failure with such low expectations and a consequent unenergetic performance? Is it that he can now comfort himself by blaming his "closed-minded" boss for prohibiting what surely would have led to a stellar outcome? I think so.

To one extent or another, I believe we all trip ourselves up this way. Without being aware of it, we use low expectations to get ourselves off the hook. By assuming a lack of cooperation on the part of others, we guarantee their uncooperativeness and our nonparticipation in an activity in which we would be expected to make a contribution. In this round robin, we excuse ourselves from an activity where we question our ability to perform and save face by blaming someone else for thwarting our ambitions. What we hide from ourselves, of course, is our ambition to be the star and our fear that we will never make it.

> "What purpose is served for the subordinate who has set up his failure with such low expectations and a consequent unenergetic performance? Is it that he can now comfort himself by blaming his 'closed-minded' boss for prohibiting what surely would have led to a stellar outcome? I think so."

How does one break this self-limiting cycle? How does one meet a challenge on positive ground? How does one adopt a positive view of what he is, what the circumstances are and what he can accomplish? In short, how does one raise his expectations?

By not being afraid of making a mistake. Courage to risk failure is what leads to success. Self-confidence comes by taking risks where the outcome is no more than the fruition of what you truly believe can be accomplished. And remember, even when you make a mistake, that doesn't mean you are one!

LARRY MAHAN
A card-carrying cowboy

QUOTE: From Larry Mahan, six-time All Around Cowboy in rodeos and star of the rodeo documentary, "The New American Cowboy": "I've ridden over 6,000 animals in my career. I figured out that last year I was bucked off saddle broncs two times and, out of 130 to 150 bulls I rode, I was bucked off 30 percent of the time. I don't know how many times I've been stepped on, crushed or kicked. The cowboy is just as tough as he used to be, but he's had to organize to better himself. We've established card-carrying members of the Rodeo Cowboys Association because we get ripped off just like any other participants in spectator sports. The grounds owner can make $100,000 off us, so we're just trying to get a percentage of the gate. Top cowboys can win $60,000 a year while others only win $600 a month—we don't get a cent for just being there. If you don't place within the top four of a category, you don't make any money." UNQUOTE.

Steven Stills

Steven Stills of the recently reunited rock group Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young: "I like playing music with these guys. It's a social event. I never wanted to be only the main guy. It's fun, subjective, or whatever, because we're old friends. We're playing new music, and it's fun to enjoy each other. We realized why we fell apart—our size of popularity—and this time we tried to be sensible, plan for it, grow up a little. I mean it's staggering when you face 60,000 people—you grow out of your skin. You'd have to be a cold man not to be affected by that much energy. It's also expensive on the person to travel on the road; you're tired; it eats on your energy level. I want to go home. I miss my son. He was born in the spring and I want to see him."

JENNIE AND CRAIG
A cry of joy

Mother Jennie Thomson is delighted with her very ordinary baby boy, Craig, because she was such an extraordinary baby. When born 20 years ago, Jennie had a serious heart condition that forced her to live as an invalid in a hospital for the first six years of her life. Finally doctors were able to perform a revolutionary operation in which they inserted plastic plates in her heart. Since then she has been able to lead a normal, full life. Marriage, however, brought with it the fear that any children she might have might inherit the same heart affliction. Fortunately that was not the case. Every time Craig gives a hearty, healthy cry, Jennie breaks into a wide smile.

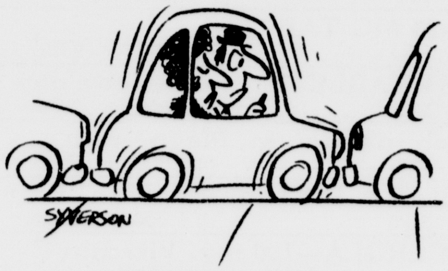
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour



CURBING MY TEMPER

My wife insists that I re-park
To get two car lengths nearer.
I do so, though I grump a bit
And check my rearview mirror.

In front and back, where first I parked,
The space was really spacious,
But now, as I work wheel and brake,
I must be skilled, sagacious.

Yet when it's done I'm rather proud
And of my deed I'm talking.
My wife? She's spared her shoes and feet
A full two car lengths walking.

A long-haired youth was getting his first haircut in a year and was alarmed to see the barber wave a large magnet over his head. "Don't worry," assured the barber, "it's not a new treatment. I'm just trying to find my scissors."
—Dorothea Kent

A lady complained to a pet-store owner, "You told me this cat wasn't finicky, but I can't get him to eat." The owner said, "I meant about what he drags in." —Robert Brault

Jaworski Resigns Prosecutor's Post

Declares Pardon Was No Influence

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski resigned Saturday, saying his decision had nothing to do with Richard Nixon's pardon and that to challenge it in court would amount to "unprofessional conduct."

His departure, planned for several weeks, will not affect the ongoing Watergate cover-up trial —the major prosecution under his leadership.

The 69-year-old Texas lawyer, who took over the demanding job 11 months ago following Nixon's firing of Archibald Cox, said his work was nearly completed and could be wrapped up by someone else.

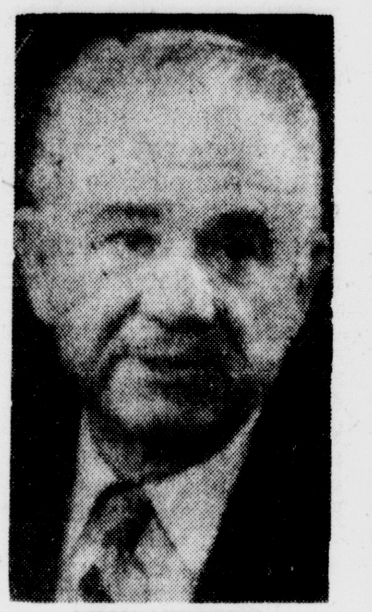
And he said he felt it would be "intellectually dishonest...tantamount to unprofessional conduct" for him to try to undo the unconditional pardon President Ford granted to the former president.

"The bulk of the work entrusted to the care of this office having been discharged, I am confident that such of our responsibilities as revain unfulfilled can well be completed under the leadership of another special prosecutor," Jaworski wrote Saxbe.

In a separate letter, he rejected unspecified "suggestions" that he try to prosecute Nixon despite the pardon, saying the Constitution is clear that Ford had the power to do so and that the special prosecutor's charter does not supercede that right.

"For me now to contend otherwise would not only be contrary to the interpretations agreed upon in congressional hearings —it also would be, on my part, intellectually dishonest," Jaworski said.

"Thus, in light of these conclusions, for me to procure an indictment of Richard M. Nixon for the sole purpose of generating a purported court test on the legality of the pardon, would constitute a spurious proceeding in which I had no faith; in fact, it would be tantamount to unprofessional conduct and violative of my responsibility as prosecutor and an officer of the court."



LEON JAWORKSI
"A great loss. . ."

He said he felt obliged to discuss his views on the pardon "to dispel any thought that there may be some relation between my resignation and that issue."

His letters were delivered to Saxbe at midmorning and the White House was informed simultaneously. There was no immediate reaction.

Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, a member of the now-defunct Senate Watergate committee, called Jaworski's impending departure "a great loss."

Sources close to Jaworski, who was spending the long holiday weekend in New York, said he had decided "several weeks ago" to resign but waited until a jury was chosen and sequestered in the Watergate cover-up trial of five former Nixon aides to avoid further pretrial publicity.

"It was no sudden decision," one source said. "It had been in the works for some time."

A jury of nine women and three men plus six women alternates was picked yesterday, the ninth day of the cover-up trial, and immediately sequestered. A team of assistant prosecutors headed by James F. Neal is handling the case.

Opening arguments are to be made Monday by prosecution and defense lawyers and the first witness —reportedly former White House counsel John W. Dean III —will be called on Tuesday.

Philip A. Lacovara, a Republican and the No. 3 man on the Watergate Special Prosecution Force, resigned last month in protest to the Nixon pardon. Internal staff discussions that led to Jaworski's decision to resign apparently began about the same time.

Legal Aid Snubs Highlands Talks

The board of directors of the Marin County Legal Aid Society yesterday snubbed a request from two county supervisors to discuss a threatened suit over the Richardson Highlands project in Marin City. (See related story page 35.)

Instead, directors agreed to send a three-member delegation to meet with Supervisors Gary T. Giacomini and Robert A. Roumiugiere and directed the team not to discuss sepcifics of the the Marin City controversy.

As reported earlier, Legal Aid staff attorneys have threatened to try to halt the 379-unit housing project uless both phases of the two-stage development include low and moderate cost units.

The county has approved the first phase of 139 townhouses to be sold at "market rate" and indicated the second phase of 240 apartment-condominiums must include 48 moderate-cost units.

The county did not require low-cost units in either phase after being told federal officials consider Marin City already "impacted" with such units.

Supervisors have charged that Legal Aid is misusing the legal process to overturn a political decision, limiting inexpensive housing to moderate-cost levels.

On Tuesday, they appointed Giacomini and Roumiguiere to meet with the full board of Legal Aid to determine its position on the threatened suit.

The action came after Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste said he may seek to withhold county funding from the legal assistance agency unless its board of directors takes a position.

He and others questioned who at legal aid decides what cases it accepts and how they are handled.

According to Douglas H. Bosco, a member of the Legal Aid board, the directors voted yesterday simply to send a three-member team to meet with the two supervisors.

Bosco, who is director of the County Human Relations Department, said the three-member team was instructed to discuss the general guidelines under which legal aid accepts cases but not to discuss the Marin City case.

On a related matter, Bosco said the County Human Rights Commission voted unanimously Thursday to join with the County Housing Authority in supporting Marin City demands for low and moderate cost units in both phases of the project.

Long-Awaited Highway 101 Bypass Will Open Tuesday

The long-awaited Highway 101 bypass of Novato will open at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday to northbound traffic.

It will carry motorists east of downtown Novato on 5.2 miles of uninterrupted freeway and return them to the present Highway 101 freeway just north of the city.

Southbound highway traffic will continue to use the present highway for some six weeks while part of the present northbound lanes are converted into a freeway, according to Thomas R. Lammers of the California Department of Transportation.

Signs will be placed to advise motorists of the routing changes during the conversion period, he said.

Since only northbound traffic will use the new bypass freeway, some temporary traffic routings will be made at the Atherton Avenue-San Marin Drive interchange for local traffic.

Northbound drivers will be able to use the Rowland Boulevard off-ramp and can cross the freeway to South Novato Boulevard. But connections from the Rowland Boulevard interchange to the old Redwood Highway have not been completed.

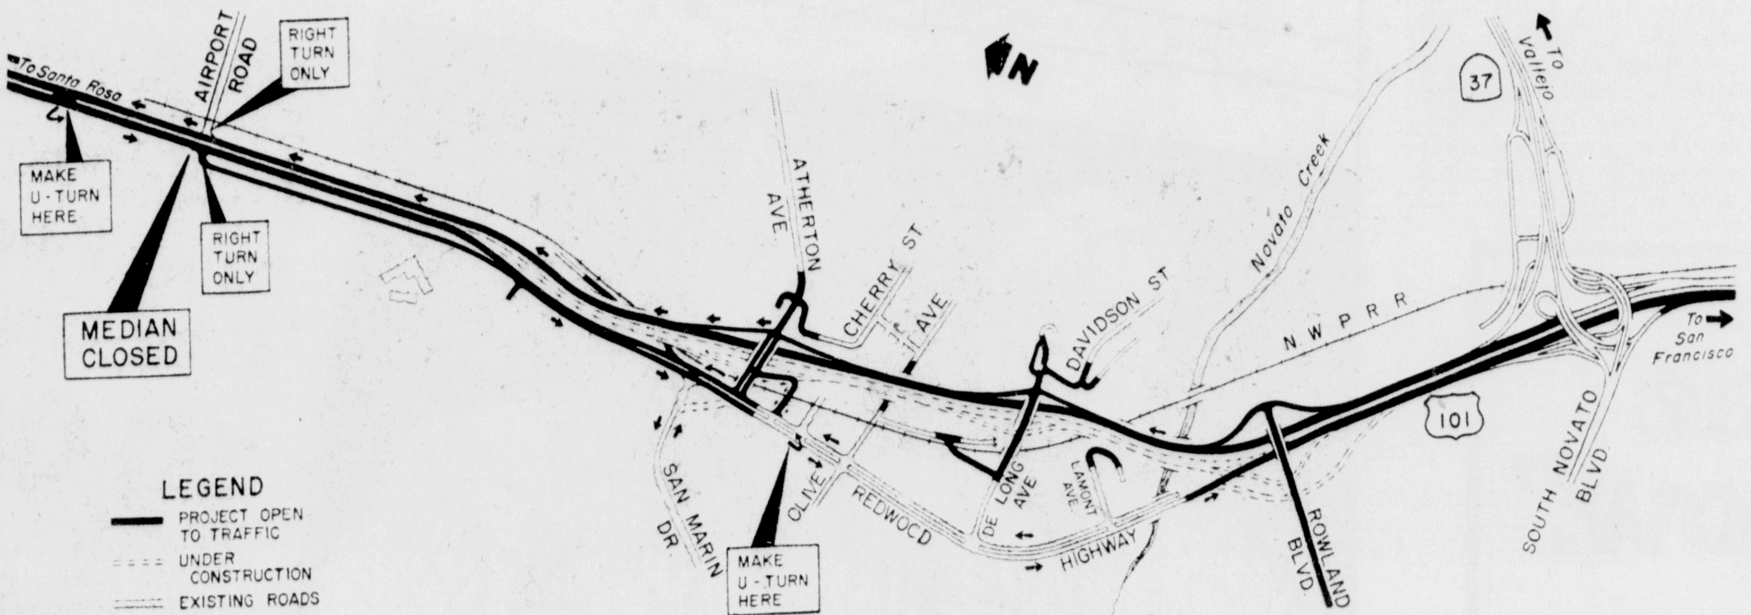
Southbound traffic from Airport Road must turn right onto the existing northbound freeway lanes, go one-quarter mile north and make a U-turn at the new median opening.

Motorists bound for the McGraw-Hill Book Co. and the Sportsman Lodge motel should continue north of the airport road and make the same U-turn at the new median opening. The present airport road median opening will be closed after Tuesday.

Northbound autos leaving McGraw-Hill and the motel will travel south to Cherry Street, make a U-turn across the freeway onto the new Atherton Avenue bridge and then take the northbound on-ramp to join the freeway.



NEW BYPASS — Bold upper line on the map shows how the new Novato bypass of Highway 101 will carry northbound through-traffic east of the present route. Northbound motorists will use the new bypass highway beginning at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday. Traffic from just north of the Highway 37 interchange will flow northward uninterrupted along the new bypass and return to the present four-lane highway north of Novato.

A NEW CAREER — Former Playboy Club bunny Suzanne Kurers, of Ardmore, Okla., has turned in her bunny costume for a shovel. Miss Kurers is on a cement gang for an construction company in Ardmore. She took the job two months ago because she got "tired of the hassle of it all."

Bunny Shovels Way To New Job

ARDMORE, Okla. (UPI) — Pouring concrete is a lot different than sporting a bunny tail at a Playboy Club, but former hutch tender Susanne Kurers feels she is accomplishing more in her new vocation.

Susanne one of 10 women is shoveling cement for the H.T. Ibberson Construction Co., builder of a 140-foot grain elevator tower for Comet Mills of Ardmore.

Coworkers at the previously all-male construction firm welcome the girls. They say having the young ladies on the site helps break the monotony of 12-hour work shifts without lunch breaks.

Miss Kurers said she made the switch from satin and bunny tails to blue jeans and gloves two months ago because she got "tired of the hassle of it all."

The work is hard, but the pay is good and the exercise helps keep the former bunny trim. Missing lunch can be an advantage.

There were 144 arrests during the same period last year, and that was a drop from years past. Most of those arrested were charged with being drunk and disorderly.

Rocky Discloses $2.1 Million In Gifts, Loans To Friends

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice presidential nominee Nelson A. Rockefeller, saying he was innocent of moral or legal wrongdoing, has disclosed personal loans and gifts totaling more than $2.1 million to friends, political associates, a journalist and 18 former U.S. and New York State officials.

Among those listed as recipients of Rockefeller's largesse were Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who received $50,000 just before he joined the Nixon administration; and former New York GOP Chairman L. Judson Morhouse, later imprisoned for bribery.

Rockefeller boosted by $75,000 the size of his previously reported total gifts to Dr. William J. Ronan, his single biggest beneficiary. He said Ronan, a former adviser and now the unsalaried chairman of the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, got $625,000 between 1958 and 1974.

The former New York governor also disclosed he had given gifts and forgiven loans totaling $155,000 to former Newsweek columnist Emmet John Hughes. Rockefeller said he forgave a $150,000 loan for Hughes in 1970 "because of my personal friendship ... and my respect for his talents as a writer."

The Washington Post quoted Hughes as saying the money was not a gift, but deferred compensation for his work as adviser and speech writer during Rockefeller's 1968 presidential campaign.

Disclosure of the gifts and loans came in a two-page letter and an accompanying six-page list made public by Rockefeller Friday night after they were sent to Sen. Howard Cannon, DNev., chairman of the Senate Rules Committee.

Cannon had requested the details based on gift tax reports provided in income tax material Rockefeller gave the Senate and House as part of his confirmation hearings. Rockefeller said he made the letter and list public because part of the information already had been leaked to reporters.

By far the bulk of the gifts and loans — totaling almost $1.8 million — were made to 18 men and women who were present or former U.S. and New York state officials or were on Rockefeller's staff when he was governor.

Rockefeller said these 18 "all operated in a framework of policy established by me as governor of the state." He said all had been appointed by him and were responsible to him.

BOSTON (UPI) — The Rev. John J. McLaughlin, one of Richard Nixon's staunchest defenders during the impeachment furor, was ordered to leave the White House by church officials shortly after Nixon's resignation, according to a Jesuit newspaper.

McLaughlin

The SJ News, a Jesuit publication published in Boston, said it had learned that McLaughlin was ordered to resign his post as a presidential aide five days after Nixon's resignation. The paper said McLaughlin initially refused to confirm the report, but later verified he received such an order from the New England Provincial of the Jesuits, Rev. Richard Cleary.

McLaughlin recently announced he would leave his White House post later this month.

The paper said it had learned from both Washington and Jesuit sources of Cleary's letter. It said McLaughlin refused to discuss the reasons for the letter. He also reportedly said his resignation was because of "Jesuit policy." He refused to elaborate further.

Search For Trio

SAXIS, Va. (UPI) — Coast Guard searchers early today located the wreckage of a light plane which crashed and sank in marshland near the Chesapeake Bay near this fishing village after colliding with a military jet last night.

A spokesman said searchers also found a flight bag and billfold belonging to the owner-pilot of the Piper PA24, Robert A. Axley of White Plains, N. Y. Also aboard the plane and also still missing were Axley's wife, Dale, and their daughter, 3.

Begins Work

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson began work today on a cautious Socialist program designed to curb Britain's rising inflation.

Wilson plans to introduce his Socialist package to the new parliament which opens Oct. 22 in a state ceremony highlighted by Queen Elizabeth reading a government-written speech outlining Wilson's legislative program.

Because of his bare three-seat majority in the House of Commons, political commentators said Wilson is likely to avoid controversial measures such as his plans to nationalize large sections of industry now in private ownership.

Coup Dampened

ROME (UPI) — A group of right-wingers led by Prince Junio Valerio Borghese took up positions around Rome on a cold night nearly four years ago, awaiting the signal to seize key installations and topple Italy's government.

But the coup was called off because of rain.

Police arrested eight men in Rome, Pisa and Bari Friday, looked for another 12 and searched 90 homes, including those of two retired air force generals.

Borghese, who headed a Fascist antiguerrilla unit during World War II, died last year in Spain and was buried in Italy after a stormy funeral in Rome before admirers giving the Fascist salute.

Police said on the night of Dec. 8, 1970, a 200-man forest ranger force from Cittaducale, 50 miles northeast of Rome, marched to the capital's outskirts under pretext of a fire-fighting exercise and stood ready to occupy television studios for Borghese to issue a takeover proclamation.

Hundreds of other men stood by in three Rome gyms. A few armed men even managed to sneak into the Interior Ministry, the nerve center of Italy's police.

Then driving rain set in and someone called off the coup.

Club Bombed

LONDON (UPI) — Bombs shattered two exclusive military clubs on London's West End in the second bombing attack against the British army in six days. Police said the outlawed Irish Republican Army apparently planted the explosives.

Three persons were injured in the blasts last night. One of the bombs exploded at the Victory ex-serviceman's club and the second went off 10 minutes later at the Army and Navy Club a mile away.

"It would seem reasonable to suggest that it was an IRA attack, although we have no confirmation at this time," a Scotland Yard spokesman said.

Asks Autopsy

PARIS (UPI) — A young daughter asked the Paris prosecutor to order an autopsy today into the death of her mother Mrs. Stavros Niarchos, wife of the Greek shipping magnate and former wife of millionaire Aristotle Onassis.

Tina Niarchos, former wife of Onassis, died Thursday in her glass-and-stone mansion in Paris's fashionable 7th district of what a family spokesman called heart failure. The family reported the death of the 45-year-old woman Friday.

The autopsy request came from Christina Onassis, 24, Mrs. Niarchos's daughter by her marriage to Onassis, another world-renowned shipping tycoon and the husband of Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy.

A preliminary coroner's investigation said: "It seems it is a case of natural death following extreme edema of the lung." Edema is a swelling or congestion brought on by heart attack.

Ex-Officer Dies

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — Oskar Schindler, a former German officer honored by Israel for saving more than 1,200 Jews from Nazi brutality in occupied Poland and Czechoslovakia, died Wednesday, his family announced today. He was 66.

As manager of industrial enterprises the Nazis had taken away from their Jewish owners in Poland and the German Sudetenland, now part of Czechoslovakia, Schindler blocked deportation of Jews to the gas chambers of Auschwitz and other concentration camps at the ridk of his own life.

Mills Criticized

LITTLE ROCK (UPI) — The Arkansas Gazette, the largest newspaper in Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, 2nd Congressional District, today criticized Mills for his absence from congressional duties since his involvement in an incident at Washington earlier in the week.

Mills, another man, and three women — one identified as a former stripper — were stopped by park police for speeding and driving without headlights. The former stripper, Mrs. Anabell Battistella, jumped out of the car and plunged into the tidal basin. Police said Mills was intoxicated and bleeding.

Mills, a Democrat facing re-election opposition from Republican Judy Petty, and chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, has remained in seclusion since the episode.

5 Drown

SANFORD, Fla. (UPI) — Five persons, including two children, drowned last night when the van in which they were riding was struck from behind by a truck and plunged off a St. John's river bridge into the water. Six other children were pulled to safety by fishermen.

Betty Ford Returns To White House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — First Lady Betty Ford is back home in the White House after making an "excellent" recovery from surgery for removal of a cancerous right breast two weeks ago.

Dr. William Fouty, the physician who performed the operation, described her condition and progress as "excellent." The final hospital medical bulletin said "Mrs. Ford has excellent use of her right arm."

The First Lady appeared tired but smiled as she left the Bethesda Naval Hospital for a brief helicopter ride back to the White House with her husband, who flew to the suburban Maryland hospital yesterday afternoon.

Presley Sued After Fight

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — A man who said he was beaten at a party given by Elvis Presley filed a federal court suit Friday seeking more than $6.2 million damages.

Edward Ashley, Nevada County, Calif., alleged he was beaten after he knocked on the door of a 14th floor room at the hotel where Presley was giving a party after a show last May 20.

Ford Signs Energy Bill; AEC Erased

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has signed a bill abolishing the Atomic Energy Commission and putting all energy research efforts under a new Energy Research and Development Agency.

Its goals will include development of new energy sources to make the country less dependent on foreign oil and methods of extracting energy resources which will not harm the environment.

"I think it's a tremendous step forward," Ford said yesterday as he went through 11 ballpoint pens to sign the Energy Reorganization Act of 1974.

The new agency will operate side by side with the present Federal Energy Administration, headed by John C. Sawhill, which will continue to be in charge of energy policy matters, particularly allocation of supplies.

The AEC, created in 1946 to continue the World War II atomic research program, will cease to exist. Most of its functions will pass to one of six departments in the new ERDA headed by an assistant administrator for nuclear energy development.

The bill also establishes two other bodies, a five-member Nuclear Regulatory Commission to license and safeguard nuclear reactors and radioactive materials, and an Energy Resources Council.

On top of all these energy bodies will be the National Energy Board, which Ford created last week, headed by Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton. Morton thus appears to be emerging as Ford's top energy official. He also will hed the Energy Resources Council.

AEC Chairman Dixy Lee Ray was handed one of the ceremonial pens at the signing Friday and mused: "Is this the pen that helped abolish my job?"

A genuine "bay window."

The view is just as fine inside Shelter Bay's condominium homes.

They're just plain enormous! From one to four bedrooms in size, and from $43,000 to over $70,000 in price.

And with the heated swimming pool, tennis court and clubhouse, the homes at Shelter Bay are really worth a second glance. The speedy five mile commute to the Golden Gate Bridge is just another bonus.

Come see for yourself.

PURSUIT, BUT NO ARREST

Officers from Belvedere, Tiburon, Mill Valley, Corte Madera and the California Highway Patrol gather on Lyford Drive in Tiburon, before they set off in pursuit of two men thought to be burglarizing a home in the area last night. After officers chased the two by car through the area, the men fled on foot into the brush, and were not found.

Body Found Near Beach

The body of a 36-year-old San Francisco man who apparently shot himself to death several days ago was pulled from a crevice below a bluff northwest of Cronkhite Beach at Fort Cronkhite yesterday.

Frank Esposito Rila, managing editor for a San Francisco travel guide, apparently climbed down the cliff and then shot himself in the chest with a revolver, according to the Marin County corners office.

Two hikers found Rila's body on Thursday, but Coast Guard and Army crews were unable to retrieve it until yesterday, a spokesman said.

An Army helicopter crew yesterday hooked a line to the dead man's belt and attempted to lift the body away, but the belt snapped and the body plunged 300 feet into a ravine. The body was finally recovered by a land crew.

Rescuers found a note in the form of a poem dated Oct. 5, indicating despondency.

The 5-foot-8, 24-year-old former model seems to have suffered no ill effects from the rigorous labor except for some broken fingernails and a few callouses on her hands.

Robert Quitmeir, a Utah State student taking time off from studies to earn some money, said having the girls around makes more of a social atmosphere.

"They do everything we can do, except maybe lifting the really heavy equipment," he said.

Project supervisor Jerry Wigens of Fort Worth, Tex., said hiring the women was a necessity.

"Sometimes it is hard to find enough workers," he said, "and the girls are dependable and do a good job, sometimes better than the men."

Indians Plan Harvest Fete

An acorn harvest moon celebration will be staged by the Dry Creek Pomo Indians from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. tomorrow to raise funds for the legal effort against the Warm Springs Dam near Healdsburg.

The festival, on the Westerbeke estate at 2300 Grove Street in Sonoma, will include an Indian-style deep pit barbecue dinner, dancers, drummers and singers from several western tribes, according to a spokesman.

Traditional and contemporary art and craft goods, including pomo basketry and Navajo rugs, will be exhibited and sold.

The Dry Creek Pomo band is one of the plaintiffs in a lawsuit which resulted in a U.S. Supreme Court order temporarily stopping work on the dam.

Admission will be $25 per couple or $15 for each adult, $5 for children 13 to 18 and free for those 12 and under.

Larkspur Ferry Permit Issued

The last permit required to start construction of the Larkspur ferry terminal has been issued by the Army Corps of Engineers.

The only permits still pending approval are from Marin Municipal Water and Ross Valley Sanitary districts. They will be needed before the opening of the $17.3 million terminal, scheduled in the spring of 1976, two years behind schedule.

The Golden Gate Bridge District's engineer, Harry D. Reilich, reported to district directors yesterday that the permit authorizes dredging as well as construction of the terminal.

District directors also accepted a $3,706 bid by Ziegler Steel Service Corp. of Union City to supply 4,000 high tensile strength galvanized bolts with nuts.

Black Point Plan Presented

A preliminary plan for embellishing the entrance to Black Point was given last night to the Black Point Improvement Association by committee chairman Dr. Richard Gabel.

The plan calls for concrete work and plantings in the area between the grocery store and the Northwestern Pacific Railroad. There may possibly be benches and a picnic table, according to secretary Kathleen Taylor.

The members also voted to ask the county to patrol the Petaluma River to enforce the five-miles per hour speed limit. Boats are going faster than the limit and their wakes are eroding the banks, she said.

San Quentin Convict Dies

A San Quentin convict was found hanging in his honor block cell yesterday, apparently having taken his own life.

The body of John Garcia, 46, was found dangling at the end of an electrical cord at 12:40 p.m. yesterday, according to William D. Nyberg, prison information officer.

The cord came from a set of earphones, he said.

Garcia, serving a life term for first degree murder in Los Angeles, had been imprisoned since 1961. He left a note saying he was despondent about a scheduled appearance before the California Adult Authority Board.

He was a native of New York.

One of Marin's best resources is Alan Hill... let's all use him.

"I believe Marin and Sonoma Counties need continued strong representation in the Assembly. Experience in state government is essential to effective representation. I have such experience and would not need to spend the first six months in office in on-the-job training. Our assemblyman must be available to the people on a regular basis. I intend to have two district offices . . . one to serve Marin and the other to serve Southern Sonoma. In addition, I would hold periodic meetings in local areas to assure the citizens an opportunity for discussion of problems and issues."

Marin's Holdings Up $5.6 Million

The net worth of Marin County government holdings rose $5.6 million during the last fiscal year to a new total of $40.4 million, county auditor-controller Michael Mitchell reported yesterday.

According to Mitchell, some $36.2 million is in capital assets such as buildings and land and the remainder in cash and reserves.

He arrived at the county's net worth by subtracting the county's liabilities from its assets arriving at a net worth of $40,402,615.

The major county liability is $7,208,455 in principal and interest owed on the Hall of Justice bond issue, he said.

Major assets include $22,176,114 for the Civic Center and grounds, and $4,614,809 for parks and open space.

"From a fiscal standpoint, the County of Marin is, indeed, in a strong financially solvent position which requires constant and meticulous fiscal controls by this office," Mitchell wrote to supervisors.

He said the county, school district, special district and district under the control of county supervisors have a total bonded indebtedness of $64,293,077, including future interest.

The auditor-controller did not list the total assets of the agencies other than the county.

Flood Control Session Set

CAMPAIGNS '74 —

Oil Tanker Regulations Urged

Sen. Peter H. Behr of San Rafael, Republican nominee for reelection in the Second District, has proposed that the state's new energy commission regulate oil tanker traffic to protect the North Coast from oil spills.

Construction of the Alaska pipeline soon will mean far more oil will be shipped along California's coastline, Behr noted. Most will move in supertankers averaging 135,000 deadweight tons, and tankers appraoching 250,000 tons are being considered.

Behr contrasted these figures with the San Francisco Bay spill in 1971 by two tankers of 17,000 deadweight tons.

The commission, he proposed, should regulate planning and construction of new mooring spots along the coast, related new pipelines, onshore tank farms and new refineries.

The commission also should regulate the safety and structural features of the supertankers, the senator said.

On another issue, Behr announced he will introduce legislation, if reelected, to finance field reserach on a program to train coyotes not to eat lambs.

The research by the University of California, to coast about $50,000, would be done at the university's field station at Hopland in Mendocino County, according to Behr's proposal.

The system, lacing lamb meat with a substance which makes coyotes sick without harming them, worked in laboratory tests. Experiments have shown that after several exposures to the treated lamb meat the coyotes will not attack live lambs, Behr said.

The test would be aimed both at the problem of coyote attacks on sheep and the presently inhumane system of killing coyotes with explosive devices, a spokesman for the senator said.

BAGLEY — Assemblyman William T. Bagley of San Rafael, GOP nominee for state controller, has been endorsed by the California League of Conservation Voters. It said "his record of legislative accomplishments in environmental matters makes him the obvious choice." The league praised Bagley for carrying its first legislative attempt in 1967 to establish a coastal commission and for creating in 1971 the Bagley Conservation Fund. The fund has paid for purchase of more than 42,000 acres of parkalnd, the league noted. It also praised him for his legislation to impose a moratorium on offshore drilling for oil, and said he "continues to maintain a strong environmentalist position on this vital issue."

GAY — The Gay Activists Alliance of San Francisco has endorsed both Rep. John L. Burton and Rev. Ray Broshears, Democratic and Peace and Freedom nominees respectively in the Fifth Congressional District. The alliance said "both were found equal."

CAYLOR — Thomas O. Caylor, Republican nominee in the Fifth Congressional District, has proposed federal funding to registrars of voters so that local voters can be mailed "a comprehensive campaign manual of candidates and their positions." Each candidate should be allowed space in the manual for a photograph, biography and platform statement, Caylor said.

SLEEPY HOLLOW — The Sleepy Hollow Homeowners Association will hold a candidates' night for contestants in Assembly, Senate, Marin Municipal Water District and county clerk races at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 28 at the association's clubhouse. Candidates to speak are Democrat Michael Wornum and Republican A. Alan Hill in the Ninth Assembly District, Democrat Ernest F. Banker and Republican incumbent Peter H. Behr in the Second Senatorial District, Richard J. Boylan and Betty Forry in the water district's Division 1, and county clerk candidates Peter C. Meyer and John F. Musser Jr.

Lucas Valley Ranch Plan To Be Aired

A master plan and related rezoning for development of the Luiz and Grady ranches in upper Lucas Valley will be considered Monday by the Marin County Planning Commission.

The master plan, more than a year in the works, calls for 472 dwelling on about 244 acres of the ranches' combined total of 1,615 acres.

The dairy ranches are located on the north side of Lucas Valley Road below Big Rock.

They are currently zoned for one unit for every two acres and are proposed for one unit for every three-and-a-half acres.

The master plan calls for 40 single-family ranchettes, 296 townhouses and 136 garden apartments, plus recreational facilities and a fire station.

The planning department staff has recommended adoption of the rezoning and master plan subject to a number of conditions dealing with preservation of Miller Creek, roads, traffic and availability of water and sewage services, among other things.

The planning staff also has recommended that at least 15 per cent of the townhouse and apartment dwellings be reserved for moderate-income families and sold at the equivalent 1974 sales price of between $32,000 and $36,000.

The commission, meeting at 9 a.m. at the Civic Center, will hear the matter at about 10 a.m.

Manson Figure Loses Suit

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — William E. Garretson, the only survivor of the Manson Family's slaughter at the Sharon Tate mansion, yesterday lost his $108,000 suit against the city for false arrest.

Garretson, a houseboy on the Tate-Polanski estate, was held for two days on suspicion of the five killings there, until it was established that he was innocent.

A Superior Court jury yesterday unanimously absolved the police department of improper conduct in arresting Garretson.

"I am very disappointed. Defeat is too much," said Garretson, now 25.

MUSIC REVIEW

Cleo Lane: Chameleon Of Rock

By BLAKE A. SAMSON

Cleo Lane.

Put her name in bold, capital letters, for last night the Paramount in Oakland was all hers. Soul, pop, be-bop, English drawing room song (Noel Coward, that is), even British vaudeville, jazz and hard rock — she covers it all.

She's a chameleon of versatility, having sung opera at the Edinburgh Festival, soloed and recorded symphonic works, given recitals of leider and jazz . . . together, acted Titania, Hedda Gabber and Andromache and won polls and album awards and a London Times tribute as the best popular singer "in the world."

Like an Alfa Romeo, she takes off and cruises with a purr of power.

She is backed by John Dankworth, her saxophonist, clarinetist and husband and a band of piano, drums and bass, electric bass and electric piano.

Most often, last night, though she carried the melody alone, as the band played embellishments. It was a classic performance.

John Dankworth played a shimmering sax in most of the songs, particularly in "That Certain Feeling," where jazz met popular music, but Dankworth is an even better clarinetist.

The clarinet accents he gave "Matelot" were other worldly and the base he set for "London Pride" was pure virtuosity. This song took on a British vaudevillean tone with a twist of Cockney thrown in. Hardly all drawing room song, there was a host of Gershwin, some of it modernized, and a most popular medley of songs just off this morning's charts.

Miss Lane's show had great humor, partly due to the Noel Coward wit. There was also a marvelous spoof on British "heritage," sung totally to a man's teeth.

"Sing a song of praise to them," said one line of the lyrics to this rousing, funny, funny march.

I could fault only one interpretation, her "Someday I'll Find You." It is a nostalgic love song. She sang it tongue-in-cheek, while it will stand fine if played straight.

This was, however, purely a difference of interpretation, not style. She seemed as if not to have style — that word that too often translates into artifice. She sang with an open sincerity that gives her intimacy, even in such a large auditorium. And the way she gave her songs space, elongating the notes, let them live.

Hers is not a gifted, natural voice. She has obviously had to work at it. To avoid the high soprano, she'll flip into the falsetto, momentarily effective, but harmful to the voice physically.

In the open notes placed far back in the throat, there was just a touch of hoarseness. By the second half it was lubricated out, but I think she cut "I Loves You, Porgy" from the program to protect her throat for tonight's repeat concert at the Masonic Auditorium in San Francisco.

However, what the voice lacks in nature's gift, it has made up in control and intellect.

Hers is the popular music sound but much of her lyrics were set to poetry — by e. e. cummings, the British poet laureate Sir John Betjeman and Shakespeare (to the Eighteenth Sonnet).

The lyrics were so profound, one regrets that sound goes by so fast. She made the sonnet seem a letter and takes complicated Shakespearean logic and makes it toughingly simple.

Miss Cleo Lane, "shall I compare thee to a summer's day?"

The show will be repeated at the Masonic Auditorium in San Francisco at 8:30 p.m. today and a few tickets are still available. I would stand myself just to hear her sing again Sondheim's classic, "Send in the Clowns."

Affluent Families Have Problems, Too

By PAT BALMES

Driving through some of the beautiful neighborhoods in Marin, which are among the nation's most affluent residential areas, one wonders if the people there have indeed found paradise.

Psychologist Frances Clark of Tiburon says No — affluent families have problems, too.

She shared her impressions of these problems at her office at the Ross Valley Psychological Services where she does counseling. Dr. Clark also teaches at the California School of Professional Psychology in San Francisco.

PROBLEMS BROUGHT about by affluence often surface in the children who suffer emotional deprivation, a lack of intimacy with their often absent parents. These children have more trouble identifying with their fathers; they don't understand what business executives and stockbrokers do.

The parents put pressure on their children to excel and go to a prestigeous college, to achieve "because that is what I did." Children are pressured to act grown-up, making it necessary to skip normal developmental stages such as an adolescent girl's tomboy phase.

WIVES OF AFFLUENT men, tending to be separated from their husbands a lot, are sometimes lonely and bored. Husbands and wives have little time together for activities they both enjoy.

The more affluent the family, the less likely the wife is to find paid employment. The more sheltered she has been, the less experience she has had working in the world. It is hard for her to find things that interest her and give her self-esteem. Volunteers are usually at the bottom level of authority. Even having a college degree does not enforce her self-esteem.

When a family is committed to an affluent life style, it can become a trap if they are living beyond their means. Even if not, high costs still make the husband feel trapped into making more and more money. He is absent a lot because of work pressures.

THE AFFLUENT couple may find themselves caught up in social relationships which are faintly competitive and superficial, not supportive. A sense of identity may be derived from material possessions, with an accompanying anxiety. They wonder, "if I were to lose my possessions, would I still have my standing and my friends?"

In today's nuclear family, the psycologist believes, one has no real sense of belonging, no extended family, no intimate friends. A mutual suppory system seems lacking. People are trying out the idea of community with groups like Open End.

These problems contribute to Marin's high rate of suicide, alcholism and divorce. A good education and a high paying job do not mean you know how to deal with emotional and spiritual problems.

THE ANSWER is more education, according to the psychologist, such as preventative mental health programs to educate people to take care of their own and their children's emotional needs.

Recommending meditation for psychological and physiological reasons, the psychologist said, "take a look at things that are important to you. What are the things that are really satisfying in your life? When you get in touch with what gives you most satisfaction, then you can help your chilren find what would most satisfy them."

Pointing out that affluent families put less focus on family activities she believes that a busy business executive, upon reflection, may realize that he will later wish that he had taken time to enjoy his children more rather than putting pressure on them to achieve and act grown up.

Foster Parent Finds It Rewarding

By DOROTHY NEWELL

"I can't think of a thing I'd rather do," said Ronald W. Stratton of Novato, talking about having two foster sons in his home.

Stratton, a bachelor, is the new president of the Marin County Foster Parents' Association and has been a member for two years.

Brad, 14, has been with Stratton for one month and Matt, 13, (he preferred not to use his real name) has been with him since February. Stratton has had two other boys in his home. One of the boys went back to live with his father, but calls Stratton every day, he said, and they visit frequently.

The boys were placed in Stratton's home through the Department of Public Social Services. His original idea was to adopt a boy, and he still hopes someday to adopt children. "I hope the rest of my life will be like this," he said, as he talked in his neat two bedroom townhouse. "Eventually I hope to build a home out in the country and have eight boys with me," he continued.

The Marin County Association recently received an $18,000 federal grant for education for foster families. Phase one is "Parent Effectiveness Training." Administrative services of the probation department and College of Marin set up the project. Stratton is among the foster parents who meet once a week at Redwood High School to share ideas regarding the foster children and discuss legislation affecting the foster children programs.

Most of the foster parents in the group are young and dedicated, said Stratton. "They really care."

(Children are placed in foster homes for varying lengths of time and for various reasons when circumstances in the natural home make it desirable — e.g., traumatic illness or divorce or troubled relationships among family members.)

A typical day in the Stratton home begins when he gets up at 5 a.m. to go to work in San Francisco as a stockbroker at Lawson, Williams and Stern. He is home by the time the boys are out of school. They attend San Jose Junior High School. They make their own breakfasts and sometimes take their lunches. They also make their own beds, put their own dishes in the dishwasher and take turns washing the pots and pans. "I don't give them too much responsibility, as I want them to have some fun," Stratton said.

He plans the meals for about two weeks, but the day of this interview he was taking the boys out for clam chowder, Brad's favorite.

Allowed to choose their own elective classes, Brad is now taking guitar and Matt elected typing, because "I can make use of it in college." Both boys like to read the newspapers, and Matt plays with the Pop Warner Football League in Novato.

Of course there are arguments, as in any family, and there is slamming of doors sometimes, Stratton said. He lets the boys decide if they feel he is a father image, big brother or a friend.

The boys and Stratton like sports cars, and Stratton enjoys racing, camping, reading, cooking, model trains, painting and going to parties. Stratton and the boys attended the Laguna Seca auto races last weekend in Monterey.

To make extra money Brad and Matt wash and polish Stratton's Porsche automobile and also paint any little nicks that might be on the car.

Stratton was born in Ross, was graduated from Honolulu High School, attended Honolulu Academy of Arts and Pacific Lutheran University in Tacoma, Wash.

He is a member of the Sports Car Club of America, a charter member of California Foster Parents Association and National Foster Parents Association.

Officers serving with Stratton are Susanna Lowry of Mill Valley, vice president; Glenn Murray of San Anselmo, treasurer; and Marge Ferretti of Fairfax, secretary.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Governmental 'Give And Take' Is Hard To Figure Sometimes

RAP:

Sometimes I think our government is nuts. For instance, Federal agencies spend millions trying to educate us about the health danger of tobacco; and more millions on lung disease research. Yet tobacco growers get big farm subsidies and other government help to keep them in business!

About a month ago I read that, in case of a new oil shortage, tobacco producers will have priority over such other users as ambulances, police cars and medicine makers; this because farmers are given first dibs on gas and oil (right along with the military) and tobacco is a "farm product."

Even though tobacco is one of our biggest industries, seems to me the government should be consistent: not slap down and offer aid with the same hand. — JUNIOR ECONOMIST

JUNIOR ECONOMIST:

Crazy, isn't it, this governmental "give and take?" — something like the parent who howls over how rotten his kid is, then gives him a car and whatever else he demands, so he can go out and get into more trouble.

By the time your letter reaches print, however, a change will probably have been made. At the urging of Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Casper Weinberger, the Federal Energy Administration may decide not to lump tobacco growers with food farmers in its ruling about oil priorities. — HELEN

JUNIOR ECONOMIST:

Mom's answer points up the advice columnist's biggest problem: time lag! Since it takes three weeks or longer for a letter to reach print (mail delivery, reading, syndicate processing all eat up the days), our comments can't keep up with fast-breaking news.

Rap's senior resident guesses Mr. Weinberger will win on this one. I'm not quite so sure. By the time your good letter appears in local newspapers, one of us will know who was right. Probably. — SUE

RAP:

I'm 15, my husband is 18. We've been married four months and now I'm back home with my folks because my inlaws ran me off. We were living with them and his mother hates me; I don't like her so well either.

My parents say they're going to tear my husband apart if he comes near me, but I want to go back with him. (We met secretly and made up.)

Since both sets of parents signed for our marriage, can they annul it just because they're mad? We bought a house trailer so we could live by ourselves, and Dad won't let me take it off his land. — ALMOST A PRISONER

ALMOST:

If your parents signed for the marriage, you're legally married and they can't renege just because of a two-family quarrel (or whatever). If you or your husband has the bill of sale for the house trailer, your father can't impound it except for debts (and that takes legal action).

Marriage gives a teenager rights she doesn't ordinarily have. The district attorney will tell your parents they can't "imprison" you against your will. Call him! — HELEN AND SUE

PERSONAL to "Wants To Pick My Own Clothes": When you go shopping with your mother, all the prices go down! That's a fact of life: bargain-hunting moms! — SUE

But look at it this way: the high cost of keeping a family clothed these days makes bargain shopping vital. If you're too extravagant, expect a bit of monitoring. — HELEN

SEW SIMPLE

Interfacing Needed In Buttonhole Work

By EUNICE FARMER
Distributed by Register and Tribune Syndicate

DEAR EUNICE,

I just finished a sweater-type cardigan and put my machine buttonholes in the front banding as the pattern suggested. The buttonholes are pulling out of shape and are twice the original size. What should I have done to keep the shape nice and even? — DEBBIE D.

DEAR DEBBIE,

You apparently didn't use any interfacing in the fronts of the sweater; thus, there was nothing to prevent the buttonholes from continuing to grow larger and larger.

Years ago, it was popular to place a strip of grosgrain ribbon on the wrong or the right side of the front edge of sweaters that were hand knitted. This would keep the front edges in shape and would provide a nice sturdy background for the buttonholes.

Since your pattern didn't call for grosgrain ribbon, you should have used interfacing under the buttonholes. This could have been separate pieces placed under each buttonhole instead of a long strip. Another solution would have been to press on a square of press-on interfacing on both the wrong side of the sweater and the facing. This would also have provided the firmness necessary for the buttonholes.

DEAR EUNICE,

I have had such difficulty stitching on the sewing machine with the new polyester buttonhole twist that I have given up in despair. I have tried everything possible. Is there something wrong with my sewing machine, the thread, or me? — MRS. W. H.

DEAR MRS. W. H.,

Many women have written me that they simply can't use the new polyester buttonhole twist with their machines. There could be a combination of reasons, but because there are so many sewing machines around, I will have to generalize.

We have found that the difficulty is usually the tension of the machine — it simply doesn't want to feed the thicker thread through the machine evenly. Sometimes you will find that you aren't using a large enough needle; we suggest a size 16 or 18. Try using the regular thread in the bobbin, also use a larger stitch length. Whatever you do, please experiment with scraps of your fabric, using at least two layers to assimilate your garment.

If everything fails, you may have to resort to using two layers of your regular thread to create the heavier effect. This will usually work without any change in tension, but again, use a longer stitch length for most decorative stitching.

I have noticed that so many garments today are topstitched everywhere — hems, collars, pockets, seams, — and they are usually done with the regular thread in a contrasting color. If one technique won't work, forget it, and try to achieve the same effect by other means.

DEAR READERS,

I have always tried to keep you informed about new products that have proven to be important sewing aids to help you gain perfection in your home sewing. Today's product is called "Tissue Tape" by Belding.

This new tape prevents slippage. Unlike the sticking tape that guides ornamental topstitching, this non-sticking Tissue Tape is for plain, basic stitching of seams, when the difficult material is likely to slip, stretch, creep or snag.

The "Tissue Tape" can be pinned over the seam line, and knit, sheers and open weaves (including laces, pile fabrics, velvets, etc.) are easily stitched. There are guidelines for seam-stitching with the seam allowances clearly marked.

When stitching is completed, the tape is gently pulled off in large strips, leaving no tiny tissue specks to bother with.

Bazaars for the holidays will be starting soon. Get ready by creating gifts from the booklet, "Boutique Gifts." For your copy, send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Eunice Farmer, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

Honeymoon On 50th Anniversary

HAPPY COUPLE — Preparing to take off in their golf cart from their Hillside home in Novato are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Lindauer, who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Sept. 26.

Fifty years after their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Lindauer of Marin Country Club Estates took a "honeymoon" trip to Niagra Falls.

They were staked to the trip — at least partially — by the 150 guests who gathered for a cocktail party and buffet at Hamilton Air Force Base Officers Club to help them celebrate the golden anniversary of their wedding in San Francisco in 1924.

Invitations to the party read "no gifts," but the guests tossed money in a barrel with the understanding it would be used for trip to Niagara.

The party was hosted by the Lindauers' son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Lindauer of San Rafael, and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pritchard of Upper Lucas Valley.

The Lindauers left San Francisco Sept. 23 for the trip east. They toured the falls in the company of Shirley Martin, sister of Mrs. C. W. McColpin of Marin Country Club Estates. From there, the Lindauers went to Washington, D.C., where they stayed at the famous Watergate Hotel, and Williamsburg, Va.

The Lindauers — she is the former Selina Bateman — met when both were 15 years old and students at Polytechnic High School in San Francisco. They were married the year after their graduation from high school in 1923.

Residents of Country Club for 12 years, their home was designed for them by their son Stewart.

Now semi-retired, Lindauer is co-owner with his son-in-law of Redwood Garden Products, with businesses in San Francisco and Santa Rosa. The company was started by his grandfather in 1884, when sawdust was delivered to San Francisco saloons by horse and wagon.

A homemaker active in volunteer work, Selina Lindauer was publicity chairman for the Marin Country Club Homeowners Association for 11 years, and now both Lindauers are membership chairmen for the association. Mrs. Lindauer was the first president of the Marin Country Club Garden Club.

She is publicity chairman for the Oleander Unit, Marin Foundation, Friends of Arequipa, and served many years as the Marin Country Club Golf Association social publicity chairman.

Her hobby is bonsais, their oldest being 35 years. Lindauer is a member of Islam Temple of the Shriners and they are both members of the Eastern Star.

Golf, traveling and people are among the couple's many interests. In their travels they have experienced bombings in Hong Kong, a revolution in Panama, and were caught in an elevator for 45 minutes in Sweden.

The Lindauers have six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Asked how they have gotten along these many years, Lindauer said, "Selina is a sounding board for me."

Program Set By YWCA

The Marin Young Women's Christian Association is sponsoring three youth service programs for young girls.

The Young Y's of Marin City meet on Mondays at 4 p.m. at the Manzanita Center in Marin City. Fourth and fifth grade girls from Bahia Vista School in San Rafael meet on Tuesdays, and Davidson Middle School girls meet on Thursdays. Both San Rafael groups are picked up after school and have activities at the YWCA in San Rafael.

Each group plans its own activities, according to YWCA youth program director Sally Albanese. Activities include studies of foreign countries, crafts, cooking and sewing projects, gymnastics, field trips and fund raising for the yearly campout.

All programs have openings for girls, and volunteers are needed to help with the projects.

Ms. Albanese can be reached at the YWCA.

IN SAN RAFAEL VICTORY

Conversion Kick Is Difference

By DAVID DEL GRANDE

An extra-point kick can mean the difference between victory and defeat. This was demonstrated last night when San Rafael High School edged Terra Linda, 7-6, in Marin County Athletic League football.

The Bulldogs mounted a 46-yard, third-quarter touchdown drive. Keith Sovig booted the decisive extra point before almost 1,500 fans at Miller Field.

After a scoreless and relatively actionless first halfin which neither club came within 30 yards of scoring, both teams came out fired up for the third quarter.

Midway through the third period, San Rafael (1-0-1) started its drive. The touchdown came two plays after a pass interference call against Terra Linda and a 22-yard pass play from Dave Steele to Jim Sherman. Steele climaxed the march with a 15-yard scoring pass to Mike McGrath. Sovig's kick made it 7-0.

The score stood until Terra Linda (1-1) took over with 3:20 left in the game. Following a short Bulldog punt which left Terra Linda at San Rafael's 34, reserve quarterback Brian Wark took over for his third consecutive series. Put into scoring position on first-down runs of nine and 12 yards by Dick Labarthe, Wark passed to receiver Dave Sanderson in the corner of the end zone. Now, it was 7-6.

But what were the Trojans to do? With only 1:14 left Terra Linda could either go for the tie (by kick) or the win (by run or pass). After a time out, the Trojans sent Labarthe on a sweep around right end, but defensive back Eric Wheeler felled him one yard short with a diving tackle. San Rafael had the win.

"Our whole defensive unit has really been remarkable thus far," exclaimed Bulldog coach Bob Muster. "But we are going to have to start moving the ball. You don't win a league scoring seven points a game."

Well, thus far it has seemed to be successful so why not.

TARS' PIRINJIAN SCORES SIX GOALS

PITTSBURG — All-American Misak Pirinjian scored a school-record six goals as College of Marin routed Los Medanos, 10-1, yesterday in a Camino Norte Conference soccer game.

In winning their second league game without a loss and running their overall record to 5-4-1, the Tars had 39 shots on goal. Mike Linder, Bob Gaddini, Mark Schlobohm and Dave Hardin each scored to support Pirinjian's effort.

"Los Medanos is a first-year school, and they're just getting soccer together," said Tar coach Vic Petreshene. The 10 goals were not really indicative of how strong we are."

The Tars traveled north today for a non-league game against Santa Rosa. Marin defeated the Bear Cubs earlier in the season, 5-1.

A real test of Marin's strength will come next Friday, when the Tars host Camino Norte favorite Canada of Redwood City, currently the No. 1 ranked junior college team in California.

"What we awer able to do yesterday we won't be able to do against Canada," Petreshene said.

World Series: Special Time

ON BASEBALL

By GARY HUGHES

Starts Today In 'City Of Angels'

It started today in the "City of Angels." Baseball's premier attraction, the World Series. In this day and age where everything is labeled at the very least, super, the World Series still stands out.

This year's two finalists are representatives of organizations steeped in baseball lore — the Athletics and the Dodgers. No, they no longer play in Shibe Park or Ebbetts Field. They don't represent the City of Brotherly Love nor the borough of Brooklyn but neither are they the Astros or the Rangers or the Expos.

THE WORLD SERIES. What memories it brings to mind! Don Larsen striking out Dale Mitchell to finish his perfect game. Willie Mays racing into deep centerfield to catch Vic Wertz's drive with his back to the infield. The same Mays in his last time around on his knees at home plate begging umpire Augie Donatelli to change his call.

Who can forget 1962 at Candlestick Park when Willie McCovey hit a ball as hard as it could be hit. Bobby Richardson caught it and the Giants still wait. Brooks Robinson didn't get into this year's Series but his defensive play in others was unrivaled. Bob Gibson, in his effortless way, striking out 17 batters for a record.

WHEN I WAS A KID it always seemed like the Dodgers were playing the Yankees and I was too sick to go to school. Duke Snider. Carl Furillo. Roy Campanella. Carl Erskine. Jackie Robinson. Do you remember? Whitey Ford. Mickey Mantle. Yogi Berra. Gil McDougald. Boy, those were the days.

How about Bill Wambsganss? He once made a triple play all by himself. In 1955, Jackie Robinson stole home against the Yankees. In 1947 an obscure outfielder named Al Gionfriddo robbed Joe DiMaggio of a home run. Can you image that! Al Gionfriddo.

THERE HAVE BEEN so many many thrills, so many great plays, so many heroes and just as many goats. And yet one man rises aboveit all, the most dominating figure the game has known — George Herman Ruth.

Babe Ruth was simply the greatest player ever to play the game. It can't be argued. Sure you could say that many of his records have been broken. While he was a very good fielder, you might be able to come up with better. Not noted for his speed, the Babe was nonetheless an excellent baserunner. In World Series play, he stood out. His series average was .326 with 15 home runs. Fifteen home runs! In 1921 he hit .378, scored 177 runs, hit 59 home runs and drove in 170.

I'M SURE MANY STILL would argue for a favorite player as Ruth's superior. Well, here is the clincher. In addition to his many hitting records the Babe was the finest pitcher of his day. In 163 major league games, he won 94 and lost only 46. In the World Series he pitched in three games, won them all and pitched 29 consecutive scoreless innings.

Time goes on and this afternoon in Brooklyn on Flatbush Avenue I'm sure a guy cracked a cold one and yelled across the street to his neighbor, "Hey! How'd dem bums do today in da Series!"

Latest Fight May Be Costly

A's Odom Is Ailing; Fingers Set To Pitch

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Oakland A's latest fight may have cost them a pitcher for the World Series.

The A's, as renowned for their skirmishes off the field as they are for their abilities on the diamond, had two of their relief pitchers, Rollie Fingers and John "Blue Moon" Odom, square off with each other in the lockerroom yesterday and it resulted in a head wound for Fingers and an injured ankle for Odom. (Other World Series story and pictures on page 13)

Odom, who triggered the fight with a remark about Fingers' wife, was limping noticeably after the fracas and it was not known if he would be able to pitch in the Series, which begins today with the American League champion A's meeting the National League champion Los Angeles Dodgers.

JOHN ODOM
Injured ankle

Fingers, who required six stitches to seal a cut in the back of his head, showed no ill effects from the incident, however, and was expected to be ready for his familiar role as the A's No. 1 relief pitcher.

"I'm fine, I'm ready to pitch," Fingers assured Wes Stock, the A's pitching coach.

The fight between the two men lasted less than a minute. Odom's remark about Fingers' wife infuriated Fingers and the in favor of a Rhodes Scholarship at Oxford and Maurice Lucas returned to Marquette.

Besides Walton, the NBA signed 12 other first round choices and 15 second round selections.

Among the names to follow in one of the best rookie crops in recent seasons are Tom Burleson (Seattle), John Shumate (Phoenix), Mike Sojourner (Atlanta), Keith Wilkes (Golden State), Brian Winters (Los Angeles) and Gary Brokaw (Milwaukee).

Several Oakland players immediately jumped in and the whole thing was over inside a minute. Jim "Catfish" Hunter got some cotton and applied it to the cut on Fingers' head and Joe Romo, the A's trainer, administered preliminary treatment to Fingers, who subsequently was taken to the hospital and given six stitches.

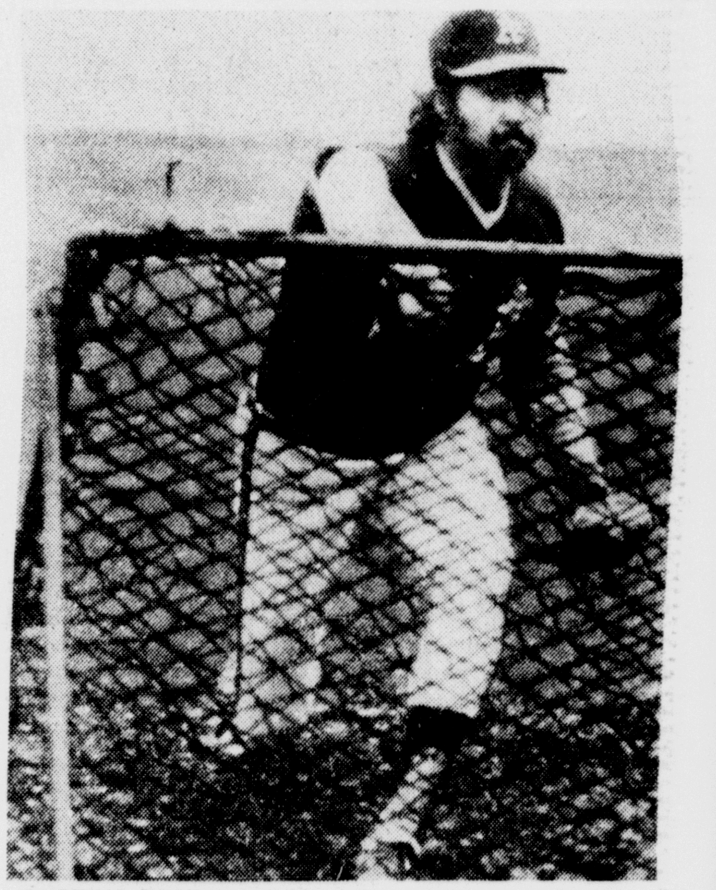
When Fingers returned he pitched batting practice and also insisted on doing his running chores, almost along side Odom.

Manager Alvin Dark said he did not know the extent of Odom's injury. Dark was in his office when the fight occured.

Owner Charlie Finley immediately put in a call when he heard about the fracas.

Asked what his reaction to the fight was on the eve of the World Series, Dark shrugged and said, "Que sera, sera, what will be, will be."

Fights are so common among the A's players that the other members of the team dismissed the episode as "just a friendly little thing."



GETTING READY — Oakland's ace pitcher Jim (Catfish) Hunter worked out yesterday at Dodger Stadium in Los Angeles for the World Series, which starts today. Published reports say Hunter will quit the team after the series and become a free agent because of a salary dispute with A's owner Charles Finley.

WHILE WAITING FOR MONEY

Unhappy Florida Just May Say: 'No Pay, No Play!'

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Florida Blazers, unhappy about missing salary checks for a month, are talking about issuing a "no pay, no play" ultimatum to the World Football League.

Quarterback Bob Davis, Florida's player representative, indicated that today was the informal deadline for the financially woe-stricken WFL to deliver the checks. He promised decisive action if the team was not paid.

"If we don't get paid Saturday, I'll have a team meeting and my vote will be not to play the next game," said Davis.

The Blazers, leading the WFL Eastern Division with an 11-4 record, are scheduled to play next Wednesday at Memphis.

"The league is already in default on its contract with the players," said linebacker Billy Hobbs. "If we don't get the money Saturday there are going to be definite problems."

The WFL, which has already given each Blazer $200, said enough money had been sent to Orlando, Fla., to provide each player with half of his back pay. But the money did not arrive yesterday as planned.

The league, which has taken over the Blazers from managing general partner Rommie Loudd, also was having problems with two other weak franchises it owns — the Jacksonville Sharks and the Detroit Wheels.

WFL Commissioner Gary Davidson — who says the two teams are not folding — has ordered that Jacksonville and Detroit be removed from the league's 1974 scheduled. They each had five games remaining.

Miami builder Maston O'Neal Jr., said yesterday he was ready to take over the Sharks as soon as WFL officials arrived to close the deal.

Sharks players have begun looking for jobs to tide them over until the franchise situation can be resolved.

And if weekend conferences to revive the Jacksonville franchise for 1975 are successful, the players will own a share of the Sharks, says player representative Ike Lassiter.

"There's never been a deal like this before," Lassiter said. "The players, the whole roster including the taxi squad, will own shares in the team."

Unlike Detroit, which has no significant jumpers, Jacksonville had signed a host of well-known National Football League players to future contracts. And their status also has become indefinite.

"It was my understanding that if the club folded, we'd be paid anyway," said tight end Chip Glass, uncertain about leaving the New York Giants in 1975 as scheduled to join the Sharks.

NATIONAL FOOTBALL LEAGUE

Are Cardinals For Real?

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The Cardinals are 4-0 and have given up only 29 points this season, the lowest total in the National Football League, and Sunday they play host to the Dallas Cowboys, who have lost three straight games after opening with a 24-0 rout of Atlanta.

You'd think the Cardinals would be favorites. Well, you'd be wrong.

The oddsmakers apparently think the Cardinals' bubble will burst this week and have established the Cowboys as three-point favorites.

A loss to St. Louis would put Dallas four games back and even the annual Cowboy closing rush might have trouble making up a deficit like that.

While Dallas' offense has had trouble getting untracked, the Cardinals have been explosive. Terry Metcalf has a 75-yard run from scrimmage and a 94-yard kickoff return for touchdowns to his credit and seven of St. Louis' 11 TDs this season have come from 56 yards or longer.

And the Cardinal defense, almost non-existent last year, suddenly has come to life, dropping opposing quarterbacks 13 times while giving up an average of only seven points a game.

The other surprise team this season, the unbeaten New England Patriots, also face a big task but they still rank as three-point favorites. The Patriots are in New York to face Joe Namath and the Jets and they haven't been able to beat Namath since his rookie year of 1965.

Wait Ends For Seals' Rookie Goalie

OAKLAND (UPI) — "I've waited 10 years for this moment," said 30-year-old rookie goalie Gary Simmons after recording a shutout in his National Hockey League debut.

The big California Seals netminder stopped 24 Atlanta shots in leading the rejuvenated Seals to a 3-0 win over the Flames, who absorbed their first defeat of the season, including a string of exhibition triumphs.

The game, the only one in the NHL last night, was a lot closer than the score indicates as Flames goalie Phil Myre also turned in two shutout periods.

But things exploded in the third stanza when Ron Huston took a pass from defenseman Ted McAneeley at 11:14 and scored from 10 feet out.

It was still only 1-0 when the night's most controversial play occurred. Jacques Richard drove in on the left side from 10 feet and fired a shot which the Flames thought had tied the count.

Simmons asserted later that "the puck hit my shoulder, bounced off the crossbar and landed in front of me. I picked it up. The referee saw it all the way."

Simmons played for Phoenix of the now-defunct Western Hockey League where he won frequent all-star honors. He was signed in the off-season by the Seals.

"My men played super in front of me," Simmons said of his impressive debut.

California scored its final two goals in the last minute of play as Morris Mott and Stan Weir registered goals. That gave Weir three goals in two games as the Seals improved their record to 1-0-1.

Petaluma May Be On Way To Title

By DIANE FISHER

Petaluma High School may win its third straight North Bay League football championship if last night's game against Hogan was any indication. The Trojans (2-0 in league) won, 28-19, on Durst Field.

Petaluma quarterback Sam Piezzi and wide receiver Rick Schroeder proved to be the winning combination, hooking up for touchdown passes of 27,12, and 25 yards. Paul Ramatici ran 17 yards for the other Trojan touchdown.

Hogan rallied in the fourth quarter, recovering a Trojan fumble at the Petaluma five. Running back Joe Smith then ran it in for the six points.

With five minutes left in the game, the Spartans tried to catch up as Derwin Boyd caught two touchdown passes from quarterback Armand Chiono covering 52 and 40 yards, but time ran out.

Reggie's Pals Aren't So Nice

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — "Gee, you're nice," a woman told Oakland outfielder Reggie Jackson when he gave her his autograph after several other A's had ignored her while getting on a bus to head for a workout at Dodger Stadium.

"But some of your friends on the bus aren't so nice," she said.

Jackson replied, "Lady, this is the Oakland A's. There are no friends on the bus."

Mays: Robinson To Make Good

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Willie Mays doesn't have any doubts that Frank Robinson, baseball's first black manager, will do "a helluva good job" for the Cleveland Indians next year.

The only problem Willie foresees for Robinson is his decision to take on the designated hitter chores for the Tribe along with the many responsibilities of a big league manager.

"Just managing is enough pressure on him I think," said Mays. "I can't see him holding up all season doing both. If he does, he'll be a super manager.

"I just hope he surrounds himself with some good coaches. I mean guys who'll be for him 100 per cent. What he'll need is one coach who'll be almost a second manager."

Willie said he figured Robinson would get the Indians' managers job when he was sold to Cleveland by the California Angels.

"But, if you'd asked me, say five years ago, who'd be the first black manager, I'd said Junior Gilliam. He's quiet, observing and has had years of schooling while serving as a coach under Walt Alston with the Dodgers."

Does Willie see any special problems for Robinson?

"Most of Robby's problems are behind him," Mays said. "He has mellowed. He has learned you can't hollar at people. You gotta play it cool.

"But, I don't envy him. Managing isn't for me. I never gave one thought to managing.

"You gotta handle 25 players who are all different. I didn't want the aggravation. Twentythree years as a player was enough for me. Now, I want my independence and freedom to do anything I want.

"Hell, you're more locked up as a manager than as a player. Its a lonely job."

Novice Swimming Program Offered

Marin Aquatic Club will conduct a novice swimming program beginning Monday and running through Dec. 20 at the Terra Linda and San Rafael high school pools.

Classes of 45 minutes each will be held Monday through Thursday, beginning at 5:30 p.m. at Terra Linda and 6 at San Rafael. The program, designed as an introduction to competitive swimming, is open to children from six to 12 who can swim.

The program costs $15 per child. Preregistration is not necessary.

Terra Linda Soccer Team Triumphs, 1-0

Terra Linda High School scored early and then depended on the goalkeeping of Jim Carew to preserve a 1-0 victory over Novato yesterday that kept the Trojans undefeated in Marin County Athletic League soccer.

The win was the fourth for the Trojans against two ties and kept them right behind the Redwood Giants, who ran their record to 6-0 with a 6-1 triumph over Marin Catholic. In other MCAL games, Drake downed San Rafael, 4-2 while Tamalpais and San Marin tied, 2-2.

Ken Tompkins scored Terra Linda's goal with 15 minutes gone in the first half. Carew, who stopped two penalty shots Tuesday against Marin Catholic, recorded his third straight shutout.

Standings — Redwood, 6-0; Terra Linda, 4-0-2; San Marin, 3-1-2; Drake, 3-2-1; Novato, 2-3-1; Tamalpais, 2-3-1; Marin Catholic, 0-5-1; San Rafael, 0-6.

Warriors Accentuate Decline In S.F.

THE TIPOFF:

San Francisco's decline as a major league sports market will be further accentuated when the pro basketball Warriors, who call themselves Golden Gate, pull complete stakes out of the city and even take their business office over to Oakland where they play their games anyhow.

Q. If a good hitting pitcher such as Ken Brett was traded from the National to the American League, could he be inserted as the designated hitter even though he's pitching? Could Brett be inserted as the DH if someone slse was pitching? — Fred Burns, Westerly, R.I.

Of course, on both counts. The American League rule on designated hitters wasn't intended to discriminate against pitchers. Guys like Catfish Hunter of the Oakland Athletics are perfectly capable of swinging their own bats but because pitchins is so important, AL managers prefer they concentrate all their attention on that specialty and leave the hitting to others, except during the World Series when pitchers of both teams must bat. That's why you still see AL pitchers taking batting practice. Only the opposition of Chub Feeney is keeping the NL from falling into line on the designated hitter syndrome.

Q. I want to know who won the NFC rushing title last year, John Brockington or Calvin Hill? Who came in third and how many yards did Larry Brown have? — Sebron Russell, Oakland, Calif.,

Brockington of the Packers, topping the 1,000 mark for the third straight year (the only man in NFL history to achieve that in his first three pro seasons), led the NFC with 1,144 yards, a scant two yards more than the Cowboys' Hill. Lawrence McCutcheon, the nominal rookie of the Rams, was third at 1,097. Larry Brown, limited by injuries, gained 860 yards, low point of his five-year career. If Brockington played in a more publicized situation, he'd be right up there with O.J. as an attraction — his record with the up-and-down Packers is phenomenal.

Q. I maintain that Don Larsen, of perfect no-hit World Series fame, never beat the Cleveland Indians while pitching for the Yankees. Am I right or wrong? — Anthony J. Hess, Brooklyn, Ohio.

You maintain right. In fact for all his fame, old Goony Bird, who now lives and works quietly in San Jose, Calif., shows a career deficit as a major league pitcher — 81 won, 91 lost — his high mark being the 11 games he won in 1956, the year he pitched his Series classic against the Dodgers. Quick, who was the final batter in that game? Answer: Dale Mitchell.

Q. Can you tell me how many times Sugar Ray Robinson fought Jake LaMotta and did he win them all? Where is Sugar Ray now? — T.L., Rahway, N.J.

Over a period of 10 years, 1942-51, Sugar Ray and Jake fought five times. Jake won only the second bout, a 10-round decision in Detroit on Feb. 5, 1943, an upset which Sugar Ray reversed exactly three weeks later. Their last bout, for the middleweight title, was stopped with defending champ Jake out on his feet after 13 rounds. Sugar Ray is now located in Los Angeles doing youth rehabililitation work.

Q. How much more is the NBA and ABA planning to expand? Will there be a merger? If so, when? — Richard Patterson, Urbana, Ill.

The NBA is expanding into New Orleans this season and Toronto next year, giving them an unwieldy total of 19 teams — and making San Diego, which had been rumored for a franchise, the likely 20th. The ABA is fighting like hell to hold on to what it's got. Merger prospects, which go up and down like a yo-yo, are currently in a state of suspension.

PARTING SHOT:

The strongest overall squad in pro football still belongs to the Oakland Raiders but they'll miss being a Super Bowl team until they pick up a super back — the ones they have are good but in football today you need a Mercury Morris, a Churck Foremann or a Franco Harris to put you over the top.

Defense Keys Rancho Victory

FORESTVILLE — An impressive display of defensive strength gave Rancho Cotate High School its first Sonoma County League football victory of the season. The Cougars (1-1) blanked El Molino here, 10-0, last night.

Although El Molino (2-2) threatened three times, the strong Cougar defense held at the Rancho 10.

A 25-yard field goal by Mike Balliett opened the scoring in the fourth quarter. John Curtin later sprinted 35 yards for a touchdown. Balliett's extra point kick concluded the scoring.

Rancho — Balliett 25 field goal.
Rancho — Curtin 35 run (Balliett kick).

DANNY ABRAMOWICZ
Big, big game

ABRAMOWICZ

Worried Sick Over Record

DETROIT (UPI) — For eight years now Danny Abramowicz has caught everything except the flu and a shutout. Now he's worried sick about being thrown a blank.

Monday night's nationally televised offering is just another National Football League game to the participants, the host Detroit Lions and the San Francisco Forty Niners. (The game will be televised at 6 o'clock on Channel 7.)

For Abramowicz, wide receiver of the Forty Niners, it's a big, big game.

One pass. One catch. That's all Abramowicz needs to go down in the agate print of the NFL record book beside Lance Alworth in the category: "Most Consecutive Games, Pass receptions, 96."

Alworth was denied the opportunity to extend his streak to 97 games because no passes were thrown his way in the 97th. There is a distinct possibility of that happening to Abramowicz Monday night.

The Xavier University product has oozed his streak along by the barest of margins so far this season — exactly one catch in each of San Francisco's four games.

But this time coach Dick Nolan is starting left-handed first-year quarterback Dennis Morrison in place of the recently ineffective Joe Reed.

That doesn't necessarily mean no passes. But couple Morrison's inexperience with a statistical tendency of the Forty Niners and you get one worried wide receiver. The team leads the conference in rushing but is dead last in throwing the ball.

"I'm very concerned about breaking the record," Abramowicz said prior to the game. "This thing goes back eight years now.

"I'm very proud of the streak," said San Francisco's 1973 acquisition from the New Orleans Saints, "but it brings a lot of pressure each game. I try not to think about it but I can't.

"One a game isn't the way I want it, but what bothers me even more is that I'm not able to contribute more to get our offense going," he said.

Even more remarkable about Abramowicz's streak is that his speed more resembles a truck than a bullet. Were it not for his snake-like moves over a pass route he would never have been around long enough to catch a pass in one game, let alone 95.

The Lions, still looking for their first victory while the Forty Niners are 2-2, give further statistical credence to the probability of a San Francisco game plan grounded on running. Detroit rates last in defense against the rush.

A's, Dodgers Are Worlds Apart

Clubs As Different As Owners

By KEN RAPPOPORT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers and Oakland A's play baseball in the same state, but live in two different worlds.

Their organizations, top to bottom, are as different as Walter O'Malley is from Charles O. Finley.

O'Malley, a member of the old-line establishment, rules the Dodgers with an iron hand but lets competent lieutenants run the show on the field. Finley, a maverick owner who walks to his own music, not only pulls the strings at Oakland but keeps a meddlesome thumb in every area, including managing the team.

These striking differences were dramatically apparent as the National League champion Dodgers and American League champion A's met in the 1974 World Series opener today. (The second game will be televised tomorrow at 1 p.m. from Los Angeles on channel 4.)

(UPI Telephoto)

O'Malley, the Dodgers' chairman of the board, has structured perhaps the most powerful organization in baseball. After moving the Dodgers to Los Angeles from Brooklyn in 1958 O'Malley has built a solid, gold empire. Millions flock each year to Dodger Stadium, a palm-lined sports palace known as O'Malley's taj Mahal.

Finley, who left Kansas City in a hurry because of no support, got little more at Oakland when he moved the A's there in 1968. While the Dodgers have presented a solid, united front in their years in California, Finley's reign has been often tumultuous.

The Dodgers have rarely washed their dirty linen in public. Internal fueds are kept to a minimum, and rarely publicized. With the Dodgers, everything is a family affair.

With the eccentric Finley in charge of the A's, such harmonius rythym has not been possible. The A's family brawls are widely known. Players talk freely of their disenchantment with management. Finley himself has been the target of their roadside blasts, especially his penchant for ordering strategic moves by his manager on the telephone from the stands.

The Dodgers hold onto their good people, while Finley has gotten rid of a lot of his often on whim. The classic Dodger example is manager Walter Alton, now in his 21st season. The Dodger heriarchy is structured with family members and longtime friends. O'Malley even abrought an announcer with him from Brooklyn and Vince Scully is still the "Voice of the Dodgers" after all these years.

Finley has not only had a lot of different managers in his time, but has shuffled people in and out of his organization like a Mississippi gambler.

CHARLES O. FINLEY
Different approaches

The Mike Andrews Affair has been one of Finley's most notorious and celebrated cases. The former Oakland infielder, apparently dropped by Finley for making errors in the 1973 World Series, has filed a $2.5 million law suit against the Oakland boss for defamation of character.

Observers don't expect it to be the last bit of trouble for Finley. Then there's the case of Jim Hunter . . .

Raiders 15-Point Favorites Over San Diego Tomorrow

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The Oakland Raiders, despite the questionable status of their leading passer and leading rusher, loom as 15-point favorites when they visit the San Diego Chargers tomorrow at 1 p.m. (The game will be televised on Channel 44.)

Quarterback Ken Stabler and running back Clarence Davis suffered knee injuries in last week's win over Cleveland. Charlie Smith, who has been out two weeks with an injury, was expected to replace Davis.

Stabler's injury was not as severe and he was expected to start with Daryle Lamonica, who always beats the Chargers, waiting in the wings.

San Diego has not beaten the Raiders since 1968, but Oakland coach John Madden does not feel overconfident.

"They had different offensive ideas last year but now they're pretty solid," he said of the Chargers. "They're running more and better, particularly to the outside."

The big man for San Diego has been running back Don Woods, acquired from Green Bay for the waiver price. In two games plus one play in a third, Woods has gained 311 yards and has averaged 7.6 yards a carry. He trails American Conference rushing leader O. J. Simpson by only nine yards.

"It's guys like this that have turned San Diego around," Madden said.

Woods, augmented by fullback Cid Edwards, has made the Chargers first in the conference in rushing. The passing of Dan Fouts to league-leading receiver Gary Garrison also should cause the Raiders trouble, but Oakland defenders already have intercepted 13 passes, and San Diego may prefer to stick to the ground.

Oakland showed a balanced attack last week, running for 222 yards and passing for 223. Small but speedy Cliff Branch has replaced Fred Biletnikoff as the team's leading receiver.

Market Scores Its Best Gain

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, with a new economic program to ponder and signs of easing monetary pressures to appreciate, rallied this week for the best gain in history in the heaveist trading of the year on the New York Stock Exchange.

President Ford's detailed prrogram to fight inflation and boost the economy stirred Wall Street hopes and provided some of the spark that ignited the rally at a time, as one analyst put it, "when the market was ripe."

Market Scores Its Best Gain

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 73.61 points for the week, its best gain ever. The previous record was 51.55 points gained in the week ended last June 7.

The Dow scored the sixth biggest daily gain in its history — 28.39 points — on Wednesday, the day after Ford announced his "Whipping Inflation Now" program.

Ford's program included a 5 per cent surtax on corporations and middle-income Americans, some relief for the poor, incentives to business, and proposals to reduce oil consumption by one million barrels a day in 1975.

Skeptical investors stayed on the sidelines at first, but when they saw the reception to the program was not overly critical, they plunged into action and produced an upswing that carried through yesterday. The 26,360,000 shares traded Thursday marked the fifth heaviest turnover in Big Board history.

Volume for the week totaled 95,729,225 shares, heaviest of the year compared with 73,189,970 shares the week before and 100,888,007 traded during the same week a year ago. The increased volume was welcome news for financially strapped brokerages on Wall Street.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Some 2 Million Persons Don't Know They Have Glaucoma

Some 2 million people who have glaucoma and don't know it could lose their sight unless they get immediate treatment.

Although glaucoma is easy to diagnose and good remedies are available, the condition is responsible for 13 per cent of all blindness in this country.

What happens when a person develops glaucoma?

In the normal eye, there is a continuous flow of fluid through the chambers of the eyes. This secretion has sufficient enough pressure to keep the eyeballs from collapsing. Glaucoma occurs when the outflow is blocked and the excess fluid overdistends the visual compartment.

The increased pressure damages the delicate retinal nerve cells unless the tension can be reduced by allowing the fluid to escape. Several medicines and surgical procedures are capable of doing this.

Pressure within the eyeball is easily determined with a tonometer, an instrument with a blunt plunger on one end and a scale at the other. The plunger measures the tension of the chamber flow. Other tests give clues to the possibility of glaucoma, but none is as effective.

VIOLENT PAIN

Since it causes violent pain and redness in the eye, acute glaucoma is almost always treated in time. But this chronic type of glaucoma can escape dectection until vision is impared even though there are several noticeable symptoms.

Glaucoma is suspected whenever foggy vision or discomfort in or about the eyes develops.

Proposition 17 Would Benefit Few

In almost every California election, one ballot measure draws the major headlines, diverts attention from other proposals that may be more important, and becomes so emotion-packed that rational discussion of it is difficult.

Such is the case with Proposition 17 on the Nov. 5 ballot.

PROPOSITION 17 is an initiative measure, titled "Wild and Scenic Rivers Initiative." It would place two sections of the Stanislaus River, totaling 64 miles, under protection of the California Wild and Scenic Rivers System.

The effect would be to stop construction of the New Melones Dam, a major flood control-irrigation-electric power facility.

Friends of the River, an organization which gathered the signatures to put the initiative on the ballot, claims that the Stanislaus "is the most popular whitewater recreation river west of the Mississippi" and therefore should be kept in its natural "wild" state. The New Melones Dam, says the ballot argument by the proponents of Proposition 17, would leave the Stanislaus "only a memory."

WHAT ARE the facts?

Fact one is that the Stanislaus is not a wild river. There already are 11 dams on it. Moreover, the nine-mile white water stretch which Proposition 17 proponents want to save as a "natural" asset is in fact fed by a Pacific Gas and Electric Co. pipeline from one of those 11 dams.

The white water is indeed popular with raftsmen. The federal Land Management Bureau estimates that more than 22,000 people will take the raft run down it this year. This is 9,000 more than take the much longer trip by raft down the Colorado River above the Grand Canyon.

Completion of the New Melones Dam would create a 12,500-acre reservoir where the white water now exists.

THE OTHER section of the Stanislaus which Proposition 17 would place in the "wild rivers" cateogry is the 54 miles from Goodwin Dam (one of those 11 existing dams) to its confluence with the San Joaquin River. This is not the scenic part of the stream — nor, of course, its wild part.

The lower river now becomes a mere trickle four months out of the year. Sometimes it dries up completely.

Basically, then, Proposition 17 would protect nine miles of existing (though largely artificially created) white water. And it would protect lower stretches of the river which now carry too little water for either irrigation or fishing. To do both, it would prevent construction of the New Melones Dam.

CONSTRUCTION of the dam was approved by Congress in 1944. It was not started, however, largely because of arguments over whether the dam proposed was large enough to do the job needed.

It was finally decided that a larger dam would be required. In 1962, new federal legislation was passed which increased the size of the authorization and specified that propagation of fish and wildlife and operation of public park and recreation facilities should be parts of the project.

Construction was started in 1966, but blocked by a series of law suits. Eventually, the environmental challenges posed by the suits were rejected by the U.S. Supreme Court. Then Friends of the River was organized to put over the ballot measure, to do by legislation what could not be done by court action.

WHILE 22,000 may make the raft run this summer, many more thousands could fish the stream and reservoir and enjoy boating on the manmade lake.

The water impounded by the dam would be of major benefit to California's Central Valley, the state's "bread basket." The dam would permit even discharge of water to prevent those dry summer months on the lower stretch of the Stanislaus, benefitting fisherman and boaters along with the farmers.

Additionally, the dam would provide flood protection for many thousands of acres of agricultural land. Those who do not think this is needed simply have never lived in the San Joaquin Valley.

Further, the project would generate 430 million kilowatt hours of electricity each year. While this is a small part of the state's electric power needs, it is a worthwhile addition. This electricity would be generated without either air pollution or nuclear hazard. And production of hydro-electric power does not use up any natural resource, since the water supply is self-renewing.

ALTHOUGH FRIENDS of the River has made a strong campaign for Proposition 17 on the basis of environmental protection and wildlife preservation, some organizations concerned with conservation and wildlife are on the other side.

Signers of the ballot argument against Proposition 17 represent the Stanislaus River Flood Control Association, South Delta Water Agency, and Associated Sportsmen of California. The California Wildlife Federation has gone on record against the proposition. The State Department of Fish and Game supports the dam project as beneficial to fishermen both on the Stanislaus and in the San Joaquin River Delta. Also opposing the proposition is the California Federation of Labor, AFL-CIO.

Signing the ballot argument for the proposition were representatives of Friends of the River, Los Angeles County Energy Commission, and Calaveras County Chamber of Commerce. Also supporting the proposition are the Sierra Club and Planning and Conservation League.

Analysis of the proposal's effects leads to the conclusion that passage of Proposition 17 would benefit a relatively few rafting enthusiasts to the detriment of many, many thousands of agriculturists, boaters, campers, and lower valley residents — not to mention depriving the state of a pollution-free electrical energy source. And labeling the two stretches of the Stanislaus a "wild river" would be a farce and a falsehood.

We recommend a NO vote on Proposition 17.

Meeting Place Valuable To Women's Caucus

I would like to commend the Core Committee of the Women's Center for their generosity with regard to the use of the center facilities.

As other organizations can attest, it is extremely difficult to find a meeting place that is conveniently located and suitable for club and public activities, and especially so in the case of politically oriented groups.

We can attribute the success of our recent endorsement meeting at least in part, to the cooperative attitude of the Women's Center.

Doctor Seeks To Avoid Confusion Of Names

In your issue of 2 Oct. on page 13, there appeared in the column headed, "Dieter's Guide," an article entitled, "Overweight Diet Said Unhealthy." It is noted at the start of the article that this was the fourth of several articles on dieting emanating from the Dairy Council of California based on research by the California Dietetic Association.

I am in total accord with the statements made in the article in your paper with respect to the Simeons Weight-loss diet. What is disturbing is the statement that this diet is "proposed by Southern California Dr. Harold Harper." Obviously there may be confusion in the minds of some as to the identification of this individual in Southern California with myself. The Doctor Harper referred to is, I believe, Harold W. Harper, M.D., whose office is located in Los Angeles. I am a member of the faculty of the University of California at San Francisco and have for many years been active in teaching and in research in nutrition and can only hope that I will not be confused with an apparent namesake . . .

Moving Bon Air Road Called 'Last Straw'

I hope the voting public accepts recent misbehavior by the Marin General Hospital directors as the last straw. What with the threat of having to pay federal income tax surcharges, we taxpayers have to pony up $400,000 to move Bon Air Road. As a former Marin General Hospital employee, I know how incompetently these elderly directors operate. However, I would never have suspected that they would be brazen enough to sue the County of Marin to force the county to move that road. Those old folks did just that! That costly maneuver means that a hospital employee can go to his parked car in the future without crossing Bon Air Road. Wouldn't a stop light or a foot bridge have been sufficient?

Henry Has His Little Pout, Then Plays Superman Again

WASHINGTON — For several years now, Secy. of State Henry Kissinger has been portrayed in magazines and books as Superman. Whenever there was trouble in the world, Henry would dash into a phone booth near the White House, change into his blue bodystocking costume, and fly off to settle the matter.

It came as a shock the other day to hear Henry admit he was no longer Superman.

I WAS PASSING the phone booth and I saw Henry inside. "Good," I said to myself, "Henry's going to settle the oil crisis." I waited to see him fly out of the booth on his mission, but he just remained there.

"Henry," I finally said anxiously, "why haven't you changed into your costume?"

"I'm not going to be Superman anymore," Henry said. "I'm sick and tired of working miracles."

"But, Henry, if you won't be Superman, what will we all do?"

"That's not my problem. Being Superman means you have to travel a lot. I want to spend more time with Nancy."

"I CAN APPRECIATE that," I told him, "but you have an image to uphold. The media made you what you are today. You just can't go into a phone booth and say you're not coming out."

"Why should I come out?" Henry replied. "The House is picking on me. You know Supermen have feelings, too."

"You can't pay attention to criticism, Henry. If everyone loved you, you wouldn't be doing your job."

"Everyone used to love me," he said.

"YES, BUT THAT'S because they didn't like Nixon. You always looked so much better compared to him. Once he resigned, you were more or less on your own, and some people decided they loved you and some people decided they didn't."

"I think Superman should be loved by everybody," Henry said. "I don't mind criticism, if it's fair. What I don't like is unfair criticism."

"Nobody likes unfair criticism," I told him.

"I'm the first one to admit," he added, "that I'm not perfect. What I don't like is other people telling me I'm not perfect."

"Nobody likes to be told they're not perfect, Henry. The thing to do is to rise above it and prove they're wrong. Now get into that silly costume and fly off to the Middle East and straighten out our problems."

"I'm not going to do it unless I have assurance that people will stop picking on me."

"You have my word, Henry. I'll make sure that there is not one line in the newspapers questioning any of your past actions."

HENRY STARTED taking off his pants.

"Okay," he said, "I'll do it one more time. But if I hear any squawks from anybody about what I did, it's the last time I go into this phone booth.

I held his pants while he took off his shirt.

"I don't know if I ever told you this, Henry," I said, "but you have lovely legs."

"Don't try to change the subject," he said as he took off his shoes and socks. This is everybody's last chance. If they don't like what I'm doing, let them get another Superman."

"They'll like it, Henry," I assured him. "They'll like it."

And so last Tuesday, as people looked up into the sky, they saw a weird object. One person said, "It's a bird"; another person said, "It's a plane," and then everyone cried out at once, "NO, IT'S KISSINGER!" And we all slept better that night.

Minority Vote Bloc Inhibit Making Of U.S. Foreign Policy

The recent vote in the United States Senate on cutting off American aid to Turkey is about as graphic an example as we have had in a long time of the special difficulty a government suffers under in Washington in making foreign policy. No other major country in the world labors under exactly this kind of difficulty.

There was every objective reason for the Senate not voting the way it did vote. And the reasonable leadership of both Republican and Democratic parties did its best to prevent the vote. Yet the Senate did vote by the lopsided score of 57 to 20 against Turkey — and against the wise council of the leadership.

CONSIDER FIRST the merits of the matter.

Turkey is vital to the survival of a western military position in the eastern Mediterranean. Without Turkey in the NATO alliance, there is no flank to NATO. Turkey is the front line of the West against the advance of Soviet influence into the eastern Mediterranean.

If Turkey defects to the Soviet side, Moscow gets free, gratis, for nothing, everything Moscow's czars and commissars have dreamed of getting on their southern flank for two centuries. Turkey is vital to the alliance.

Greece also is a highly desirable member of the alliance. Withdrawal of Greek units from the NATO military command is a definite and painful loss. But there is still a NATO flank in the eastern Mediterranean because Turkey is still in the alliance.

TURKEY HAS DONE in Cyprus things which injured the interests of Greek Cypriots and offended mainland Greeks. Washington would have much preferred if Turkey had not sent its troops into Cyprus. But there had been provocation.

It was not for Washington to pass judgment on the merits of the fighting in Cyprus, which was, in fact, triggered by the folly of the former regime in Greece when it engineered the overthrow of Archbishop Makarios.

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, majority leader of the Senate, did his best for Secy. of State Henry Kissinger in the debate preceding the vote by making the two most important points bearing on the matter.

The vote against Turkey will not get one single Turkish soldier out of Cyprus. On the contrary, it will only weaken Secretary Kissinger's position as a mediator.

So the Senate made it more difficult, not easier, for Dr. Kissinger to work out a solution of the Cyprus problem acceptable to the Greeks. His leverage on the Turks was undermined. The presumed intent of the senators was to help Greece. The effect is to injure Greece.

SO WHY WAS it done?

Obvious. There are many Greek votes in many congressional constituencies. The Turkish vote in American elections is as negligible as is the Egyptian or Lebanese vote.

So here is a foreign policy decision which injures the net interests of the United States in the Middle East, which burdens American foreign policy unnecessarily, and which fails of its actual purpose. Yet it happened inevitably because Congress inevitably responds to the emotions of organized and emotional minorities.

These minorities, consisting often of people two or three generations removed from their homelands and grossly out of touch with conditions back there, sometimes even dictate to the home government. The professional Irish of the United States are a case in point — still shouting for policies contrary to those of the government in Dublin.

Vociferous and organized minorities of course exist in other countries and sometimes influence foreign policy. But nowhere else are there so many vigorous ethnic minorities who so often get emotional about matters they really don't understand.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Democrats Recovering Euphoria After Temporary Setback

NEW YORK — The free-wheeling euphoria of the Democrats, set back by the Nixon resignation and the accession of Gerald Ford in the role of Mr. Clean, is rising again. It is manifest here, where Republicans have been dominant in state and national offices.

Rep. Hugh L. Carey, who won the Democratic nomination for governor over the choice of the old-line organization, is an odds-on favorite to defeat Gov. Malcolm Wilson. Wilson inherited the office when Nelson Rockefeller resigned in his fourth term. Having lived so long under the Rockefeller shadow, Wilson has a slightly bleached look, and his campaign is said to be lackluster.

With Carey, a Roman Catholic with 12 living children, ethnics comprising a sizeable proportion of the vote have one of their own at the top of the ticket. That veteran firehorse of politics and foreign policy, W. Averell Harriman, did a lot of the spade work to put Carey over in the primary against the organization candidate, Howard Samuels. For Harriman, this was a gratifying reversal of the back-of-the-hand treatment he received from McGovernites in 1972.

SO STRONG is the upsurge of euphoria that it laps over into the Senate race, where Jacob Javits had been considered a shoo-in for re-election to a fourth term. His Democratic opponent is Ramsey Clark, the controversial former U.S. attorney general who took up residence in the state to make the run. A barefoot candidate, Clark has limited contributions to $100.

At the urging of Sen. Claiborne Pell of Rhode Island, Javits visited Cuba. The first high officials of the United States Government to go there since Fidel Castro took over, they got short shrift from the bearded dictator. But at least Javits got on television and increasingly that is the name of the game — identity established on the tube.

This explains why fanciful crystal ball gazers are predicting a ticket for 1976 of John Glenn for president, Hugh Carey for vice president. Glenn is expected to win big for the Senate in Ohio over Cleveland's Mayor Ralph J. Perk.

If the ticket sounds like science fiction, anything is possible in the television era.

As the first astronaut, Glenn has instant identity. In his second run for the Senate, he has proved a vigorous and effective campaigner. And as a sure-fire serial, it can be billed as "Son of Ike."

WHILE ROCKEFELLER in his long spell in the governorship made enemies among conservatives, his departure left a large hole in the Republican organization. Of the thousands of letters coming into the Senate Rules Committee in opposition to his confirmation as vice president, a sizeable share are from the highly vocal Right to Life advocates denouncing him for his stand on abortion.

In a forthright message two years ago, Governor Rockefeller vetoed a bill passed by the Legislature repealing New York's liberal abortion law. Defending the right of a woman to make her own choice, he noted that the well-to-do could find ways to pay for an abortion regardless of the law. To close the clinics operating under the New York state law would condemn the underprivileged to unwanted children or to the hazards of an illegal abortion.

Carey has said that as a Catholic he is, of course, opposed to abortion. But he cited the Supreme Court ruling against state laws seeking to abolish or control the right of a woman to abortion as the law of the land.

IN A TIME of cynicism and indifference, identity is a problem for political candidates at every level. With Sen. Edward Kennedy having removed himself, it is particularly acute for Democratic presidential hopefuls, who in all probability can anticipate running against Gerald Ford as incumbent unlimited television identification.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, ahead in the field at present, claims name recognition of more than 50 per cent. The others trail far behind both Jackson and Alabama's Gov. George Wallace. Sen. Walter Mondale, one of the ablest and most personable of the potentials, has a 2 per cent recognition.

Jackson owes a lot of his margin to the fact that he made a pass at the presidency in 1972 and got some television coverage. What instant identity means, as in the example of John Glenn, is that the prime requisite of television, with its fantastic cost, can be circumvented.

RELIGION IN AMERICA

Church's Impact Hard To Gauge

By DAVID E. ANIERSON
UPI Religion Writer

A lot of debate goes on in denominational headquarters and in local congregations about the impact of church involvement in political and social questions.

But it seems quite clear that no one knows for sure how to measure the influence religious leaders or organizations might have in policy decisions various government officials or agencies make.

Two recent events are worthy of note is this regard, one of them suggesting churches may have influence, the other suggesting that influence is less than many think.

The first involves the issue of organizations and individuals working to make corporations more socially responsible.

In a survey conducted by the Opinion Research Corporation of Princeton, N.J., churches and various groups active in the corporate reform movement came out slightly more influential than either Senators Kennedy, Muskie and Humphrey and about as influential as the AFL/CIO.

On the other hand, Ralph Nader and his affiliated organizations were far and away considered the most influential, followed by environmental groups and Common Cause.

While one might conclude then, that church groups can marshal their forces to have some influence, the amnesty debate would appear to be an issue where the church's impact seems to have been negligible.

Before President Ford announced his earned re-entry and limited clemency program for draft resisters and military deserters of the Vietnam era, most major churches and agencies were on record for a universal and unconditional amnesty.

Churchman after churchman appeared before the House Judiciary subcommittee holding hearings on the amnesty question in March of this year, and nearly all of them argued that in moral terms, only a universal and unconditional amnesty would meet the demands of justice.

When President Ford announced his intention to consider some effort at national reconcilliation with Vietnam war opponents, thereby renewing the national debate over the question of amnesty, several prominent churchmen suggested that religious opinion, as well as the ideas of the Justice and Defense Departments should be included in the date Aofr used to come to his conclusion.

There is no indication that Ford listened to the religious leaders.

Indeed, for religious leaders, Ford's earned reentry program probably did more to end his honeymoon than did his pardon of former President Nixon.

Dr. David W. Preus, President of the gnerally non-political, middle-of-the-road American Lutheran Church, in one of his first political comments, expressed "disappointment" in the Ford program.

He said, for example, there should be "no implication of disloyalty" because some chose to refuse to participate in a war they felt was immoral.

"I still hope, however, that those who truly desire to return to full participation in our society can receive a more genuine welcome than is demonstrated in this program," Preus added.

Like the unions, like Common Cause or the Ralph Nader organizations, the churches, if they seek to be effective on the national level of politics, have to marshal more than spokesman.

Pariticpating in the special service will be four choirs from the congregation — the Shepherd's Chorus, the children's choir, the youth choir and Christ Love In.

Pastor Arthur W. Sorensen of All Saints' Lutheran Church in Novato will act as installer and visiting clergy also will participate in the event.

Pastor Bankson and his wife MarJean and their four children have moved to Novato from Dana Point, Orange County, where he served at Gloria Dei Lutheran Church for nine years.

Pastor Bankson was born and reared in eastern South Dakota and graduated from Augustana College in Sioux Falls. He also is a graduate of Luther Theological Seminary in St. Paul, Minn., and has served parishes in Mitchell, S.D., and Auburn.

Ordination Of 11 Women Triggers An Argument

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A theological argument cutting across denominational lines has developed over whether 11 women ordained last summer as priests of the Episcopal church were validly invested with that office.

Most of the church's House of Bishops have said "no." But the theological rationale on which they acted is now challenged by the scholar on whose work their decision was mainly based. He's a Roman Catholic.

The Rev. Frans J. van Beeck, noted theologian at the Jesuits' Boston College, says that although the ordinations were irregular so far as church discipline goes, "they were true ordinations."

"There is a good case for considering them not only true, but also de facto valid . . . that is, recognized by the church," he says, adding they are "at any rate implicitly valid and recognizable."

What gave drama to Father van Beeck's intervention is that his writings on the issue had been cited by Episcopal Bishop Arthur A. Vogel of Kansas City in an analysis guiding Episcopal bishops in acting on the matter.

Bishop Vogel, of the church's theological commission, concluded in the advisory, in which Father van Beeck was cited as an authority for the position, that the women had not undergone ordination, but "only service, only a rite."

Father van Beeck, terming himself a reluctant witness because of hesitancy as "an outsider to engage in armchair quarterbacking," says he did so as an ecumenical duty and that Bishop Vogel had misinterpreted him.

On another point, he challenges the finding of the Episcopal bishops that the ordinations were invalid because the bishops performing them defied communal processes of the church.

This "reasoning comes dangerously close to making the bishop a mere delegate of the community," Father van Beeck says. He says it also fails to recognize church "conflict and division" — as exists among Episcopalians on the issue.

The position "goes against the tradition" not only of the Anglican communion of which the Episcopal Church is a part, but against that of Roman Catholicism and Eastern Orthodoxy, Father van Beeck says.

Substitute Speaker To Address Board

Ed Smith, a member of the Unity in Marin Church board, will conduct the 11 a.m. service tomorrow at church headquarters at 24 H Street, San Rafael. The subject of the service will be "God provides."

Rev. Candida Wright, minister of Unity in Marin, is out of town at a retreat.

By SHEILA MARSEE
Copley News Service

SACRAMENTO — "In some, I detect the sharp odor of the ripoff."

When state Sen. Mervyn Dymally, D-Los Angeles, made that remark, he was referring to the growing number of religious cult groups and allegations that some of those groups in California "are using religion as a facade behind which to carry on illegal activities."

Following a recent committee hearing, Dymally turned to an aide and said, "I'm shocked by what I have heard here today."

What the senator heard was testimony from dozens of witnesses — mostly parents — about religious cults and their influence over some of California's youth.

No legislation has been formulated as an outcome of the hearing, but following that hearing by Dymally's Senate Select Committee on Children and Youth, a flood of letters, telegrams and telephone calls has inundated his legislative offices here.

"It is a larger problem than I realized," Dymally said in an interview.

"I fear that things are going on in a few of these groups that would not be tolerated if they were going on in groups that didn't have religious overtones."

Dymally said he was received "scores" of letters from distraught parents "and it is a saddening experience to read their accounts of their young people lost to these cult groups."

The committee received testimony during its hearing in late August which included:

A brother's account of how his sister has been "turned against her parents and been taught that God is fear and hate."

A mother who was beaten by members of one of the cults when she tried to extricate her daughter from the organization.

A man who "de-programs" young people taken from the cults.

A young woman, the daughter of a religious cult leader, who said her parents are making "a raving fortune" of the cult business.

Dymally, who stressed the fact that his subcommittee is not an investigative subcommittee, said that he will "probably turn the materials we have gathered over to the Senate Rules Committee for further hearings, or to appropriate law enforcement agencies."

Beans Sent To Honduras

Two full freight cars of split beans — more than 100 tons — have been sent to Honduran victims of Hurricane Fifi from the Church World Service.

The shipment will provide approximately one million high protein meals for refugees, according to the service.

Other medical and food supplies were also sent, a spokesman said.

Police Acts Defended By Chief Kelly

Charges that the San Rafael Police Department used excessive force to break up a teenage beer party in Terra Linda have been dismissed as "generally unfounded" by Police Chief Lawrence R. Kelly.

Kelly's conclusion is contained in a letter to the Marin County Human Rights Commission and is based on a departmental investigation into allegations made by a number of the involved youths.

The commission received the letter and investigative report Thursday and set a special session for Oct. 22 to discuss the report.

The issue stems from last month's commission meeting during which a number of the youthful party-goers complained that police officers raided the party on Skyview Drive in August without cause and brutally treated a number of youngsters.

They charged that the officers blocked exits from the Williams home, systematically pushed girls down a flight of stairs, used Mace liberally, pulled a pistol inside the home, used a shotgun in a threatening manner and refused to identify themselves.

Kelly responded that officers were called by two neighbors complaining of drag racing, youths urinating on lawns and generally disturbing the neighborhood.

He said the two officers were met with abusive language when they asked that the party end and that one youth who answered the door took a punch at one of the officers.

A fight ensued with the youth escaping, the chief continued, adding that officer Walter Kosta admitted drawing his revolver during the struggle because he thought that youth had a weapon.

Kosta, the chief said, put away his gun and took out his can of Mace when he saw the youth was unarmed. At this point, the chief said his investigation showed, the two officers were pelted with beer bottles. They retreated and called for assistance from fellow officers.

Minutes later, with support, the officers returned to the house and entered.

Kelly's letter details a series of offenses his men maintain the youths committed leading up to and including the brawl which followed.

The offenses range from assault with a deadly weapon (a beer bottle) to disturbing the peace.

While several youths were arrested at the time, none has been formally charged with a crime by the district attorney.

Kelly said his officers were acting within the law in entering the home and cited a penal code section allowing officers to break down a door to make an arrest.

Today is Saturday, Oct. 12, the 285th day of 1974 with 80 to follow. This is Columbus Day.

The moon is approaching its new phase. The morning stars are Venus and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Libra.

Elmer Sperry, American inventor and electrical engineer, was born Oct. 12, 1860.

On this day in history:

In 1492, Christopher Columbus discovered the new world known as "America." The first landing is believed to have been made in the Bahamas, southeast of what now is Florida.

In 1960, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev removed one of his shoes and pounded on his desk with it during a speech before the United Nations. General Assembly President Frederick Boland lost his Irish temper and split his gavel trying to restore order.

In 1971, President Nixon announced plans for a summit meeting with Soviet leaders in May. Also that day, former Secretary of State Dean Acheson died.

In 1973, President Nixon nominated House Minority Leader Gerald Ford for the vice presidency to replace Spiro Agnew who resigned two days earlier.

A thought for the day: The Roman poet Virgil said, "A fickle and changeful thing is woman ever."

Even If The Fish Is Poor, You Can Still Bait The Hook

Why should you avoid showing a hook to a poor fish? Consideration for the feelings of the fish? Not at all. It's just that even a fish may be smart enough to lose his appetite when he sees the nice present you have for him.

West leads the eight of hearts, and East takes the queen and ace. East then leads a third heart, and you hold your breath until West follows suit.

What are you going to do to avoid the loss of two club tricks? The first step is to lead a low club from dummy. Right away! Quick! And be sure to look innocent.

STRIP FOR ACTION

East plays his low club, and you win with the ace. The fish is now on the hook.

Take two top spades and two top diamonds. Then lead a low club and hold your breath again.

East must win with his king of clubs and must return a red card. This permits you to discard the last club from your hand while dummy ruffs.

Very lucky, of course, that East had only two cards in each black suit. True, but at least you gave yourself the best chance to take advantage of the luck.

There would be a different story to tell if you began by taking the top spades and the top diamonds. East would see what was coming and he would play his king of clubs on the first round of that suit. He would save his low club to get out.

That would get him off the hook, and you'd be on it instead!

Attorney Says Agencies Filing Unnecessary Suits

Directors of both Marin County's housing authority and redevelopment agency are "overzealously spending a fortune" to litigate matters that should be resolved outside the courts, it was charged yesterday. (Related story on page 1.)

Douglas H. Bosco, director of the human relations department, wrote county supervisors that the two agencies have hired a "bevy of lawyers" who are propsoering through this diversion of housing and redevelopment funds.

Bosco, a member of the state bar himself, said he was concerned with a growing tendency by some to use the courts as a means of usurping the political process in reaching a decision.

He suggested the county counsel's office be assigned to handle the two agencies' legal matters since that office is "not dependent on protracted legal proceedings for income" like private attorneys.

Bosco also proposed that supervisors replace directors if they are unable to resolve their differences without running to court.

"If public officials are so impotent in dealing with the constituencies that they must pay lawyers and others to ask judges to solve their problems, I feel these officials should be replaced and replaced again until the public is served by those who can make fair and equitable decisions on their own," he wrote.

The rights director cited two recent court cases involving the two agencies and said the "antics (of the directors) have cost the taxpayers thousands of dollars and have diverted money that is badly needed for providing housing."

He noted that last May, Chairman Collie Gaines of the redevelopment agency authorized a suit against the housing authority without approval from her board.

"The sole purpose of this lawsuit, in my opinion, was to preserve the job of Wllace K. Shepherd as executive director of both agencies," he said.

The redevelopment agency board subsequently ratified her action but "I was able to ascertain that most members knew little or nothing about the nature of the suit and seemed to be perplexed why one public agency should be suing another."

He continued: "While I have respect for Mr. Shepherd and have always been impartial as to his ability to perform his job, this lawsuit was foolish and frivilous by any standard and represented a 'last ditch' maneuver to force the housing authority to retain him against its wishes."

(That suit, now awaiting a trial date, involves a contention by the redevelopment board that the housing board acted improperly in dumping a joint policy statement that Sherpherd served at the pleasure of the two boards.)

So far, Bosco said, the suit has cost the redevelopment agency $2,000 and the housing authority $650 in legal fees and "it is only a matter of conjecture as to when this or other suits may reappear to soak the taxpayers even more money."

The right director also cited a recent federal court suit by Marin City residents, represented by Legal Aid, against the housing authority related to the public housing improvement project.

Despite offers of an early settlement by Legal Aid the housing authority ran up legal bills of more than $23,500 before accepting Legal Aid's original offer, Bosco said.

"In my opinion, these boards have abdicated their responsibility to the public by overzealously spending a fortune to send their laywers scurrying to the courthouse rather than committing the same time and money toward improved relations with their constituencies, he concluded.

After-School Recreation Slated

The Larkspur Park and Recreation Commission has set an after-school recreation program to be held at Henry C. Hall and Larkpur-Corte Madera schools, beginning next week.

Sheldon Zatkin, parks and recreation director, said that the program, to be from 3:30 to 5 p.m. will probably be under way by Wednesday. He said that it would be held Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at Larkspur-Corte Madera School and Tuesdays and Thursdays at Henry C. Hall School through the school year, if successful.

ART REVIEW

Young Bay Area Photographers Exploring Surreal Fantasy

By ADA GARFINKEL

Two young Bay Area photographers, Wanda Hammerbeck and Gail Skoff, explore the realms of surreal fantasy and nostalgic romanticism via game and role-playing and introspective reverie, in an exhibit at the Lamkin Camerawork Gallery in Fairfax.

Miss Skoff, a graduate of the San Francisco Art Institute, who was selected to show in the recent San Francisco "Introductions '74" series, invests both black and white and hand-tinted color shots with vicarious flashbacks in time.

The former, shot amidst the formal gardens and weathered ornamental architecture of older mansions in the Berkeley hills, serve as a suitable staging for the nymph-like "Spirit," "Erica Spinning" and her own waif-like self-portrait.

Miss Skoff's friends figure largely in her work. She poses them in exotic clothing and theatrical environments in a fin-de-siecle and art-deco mileu which creates an ambivalence of time. The photos could have been taken 40 years ago; actually, they were shot within the past three years.

"Suzanne" in flowing satin peignoir and long cigarette holder; "Barbara" as the tragic Ophelia; "Dassie," the gay, top-hatted equestrienne in a botanical conservatory; the chiffon-decked "Golden Nude," and nude, chalk-faced "Dimitrius in the waterfall" are potent examples.

"Paris Wedding," "Picnic at Versailles," and "Letsey and the Boys" (shot in Paris in the fall of 1972) are more natural, with sensitivity and humour emerging out of the situation, rather than imposed upon it.

Wanda Hammerbeck's photos are all within tonal grays. Their preoccupation with visualizing interchanging of sexes, with gun-play, and with mytho-poetic symbolism undoubtedly stems from Miss Hammerbeck's work for her degree in psychology from the University of North Carolina.

Her intriguing dualities in several scenes shot at Dry Lake in Death Valley show a nude young woman and man standing on a vast expanse of parched earth. Each takes a turn at holding a small mirror in front of him in which is reflected the genitals or breasts of the partner. There is an aura of timelessness and innocence which adds to the bizarre quality of the scene.

A gun is the foil in another repertoire a deux, this time in a possible love-hate ambivalance. Again the mirror reflects the partner's image — the cocked gun at his chest, and the startled expression of her upflung hands. Elsewhere, on the expansive sand dunes of Oregon, each partner is photographed in a back view with the gun lying casually at an innocuous distance, raising the question: "What's it all about?"

Huge synthetic flies and a variety of lizards (also synthetic) convey primal relationships as they seem to glide over a young woman's nude figure. Her companion, concealed by an aquatic mask crouches over her in a quasicrab-like position in these psycho-drama scenes.

These are probing investigations with out-of-the-ordinary visual enactments.

This exhibit will continue through October and may be seen from noon to 6 p.m. Friday through Monday, and to 9 p.m. on Thursday. Lamkin Camerawork Gallery is in the Fair-Anselmo Center, in suite two.

This Pig Is A Cola Nut

BEARDSTOWN, Ill. (UPI) — When it comes to cola, Pinky simply makes a pig of herself, though if offered other soft drinks, she's likely to snort and waddle away.

Mrs. Eleanor Hendricks of nearby Pleasant View adopted Pinky when Pinky was born nearly two years ago.

Since then, Pinky has been bottle fed, corn fed, hand fed and table fed and has grown into a 463-pound sow, the prize pet of the Hendricks household.

But Pinky has a drinking problem. She's hooked on cola, and it takes an 8-pack a week to support her habit.

Mrs. Hendricks says Pinky also is particular — so particular she refuses "uncola" soft drinks.

LOOTENS PLACE PARKING LOT

Cotati Formulates Citizen's Code

A new procedure for processing complaints from citizens has been formulated by the Cotati Police advisory committee.

The long-dormant advisory group was reactivated two weeks ago after several residents told the city council a member of the police force had brutalized several other residents.

Under an earlier complaint procedure, the committee insisted on complaints from the aggrieved parties themselves.

But the committee this week changed its policy so that anyone can file a complaint within 30 days of the incident in question.

The committee, under its new procedure, will appoint members who will investigate incidents and then report back to the other members.

At the point, a hearing is to be scheduled and held in the presence of the officer accused of wrong-doing.

Afterward the committee is to meet in closed session to determine the validity of the accusation.

Finally, if the committee believes it is warranted, the committee recommends action to the city council.

In this week's meeting the committee decided it still lacked evidence of misconduct by city officers. A similar decision was reached in a Sept. 24 session.

Police Seeking Shorthand Notes Of Water Suit

I-J Special Report

EL CERRITO — Police in this East Bay community said yesterday they have no clue in the disappearance of shorthand notes of testimony in a Marin developer's suit challenging the county's water moratorium.

The notes were stolen from the car of court stenographer Annemarie Olding Sunday night when she made a stop while enroute to another stenographer's house to confer on the case.

If the notes are not recovered, said Douglas P. Ferguson, attorney for the Marin Municipal Water District, the three-day trial may have to be repeated.

(Such notes are the personal property of the court stenographers and customarily are taken home by them for dictation and transcription because court schedules do not permit the work to be done during the day.)

Mrs. Olding said she was planning to dictate the notes — verbatin accounts of all testimony in the trial — when the theft occurred.

Because of delays in completion of a formal judgment from Judge E. Warren McGuire and in filing of appeal papers, a trial transcript was not ordered from Mrs. Olding until September, she said, though the trial took place in February.

The case, in which the McCarthy Co. of San Rafael won a ruling that the water moratorium is illegal, was appealed by the water district to the state court of appeals.

Without a trial transcript, no appeal can be heard, said Ferguson.

You can save enough money at this adult community to retire on.

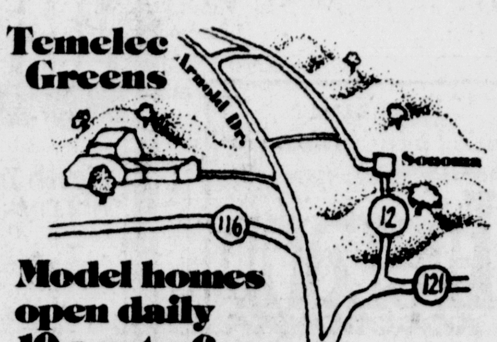
If the cost of living is putting a dent in your retirement plans, relax. There are still a few great home bargains, if you know where to look. Temelec Greens is one of them.

It's near Sonoma, just 40 miles north of the Golden Gate Bridge. And it has just about everything you could want in a home and in a place to live.

The 2-bedroom, 2-bath villa homes are built in the Spanish tradition, with tile roofs and private garden courtyards. The kitchens have built-in appliances and crafted hard-wood cabinets. The spacious living rooms come with custom masonry fireplaces. The master bedroom suites have elegant dressing areas. There's wall-to-wall carpeting, and sliding glass doors to the patios. Every home has a separate garage. And the Homeowners Association takes care of the landscaping and maintenance of the grounds.

At our price of $29,950 to $32,950, the homes would be great bargains anywhere. But when you consider what comes with them, you'll want to come see everything for yourself.

Because when you move into Temelec Greens, an entire, historic estate is yours to enjoy. And unlike some other adult communities that charge you stiff monthly fees for clubhouse facilities, here it's all covered by the Homeowners Association fee of $30 a month.



Model homes open daily 10 am to 6 pm.

There's a swimming pool, a picnic place, colorful formal gardens, fountains, lily ponds and old stone gazebos. Inside Temelec Hall (built in 1858), you can play billiards, browse through the library, meet friends for bridge or attend a social gathering. And only five minutes up the road, you can tee off at the Sonoma National Golf Course.

So if you or your spouse are over 45 (and your children living with you are over 18), take a drive to our part of the Wine Country and stroll through our model homes. Then visit Temelec Hall.

You'll find that the good old days of reasonable prices, fine workmanship, clear air and secure surroundings are not very far away after all.

Take the El Verano exit (Arnold Drive) off Highway 121 near Sonoma, and look for our signs.

GORDONS RENOVATE OLD HOMES

By DON KEOWN

"We like the old Victorian and brown-shingle houses, and we just hate to see them torn down and lost," says Mrs. Richard Gordon.

Thus she explains what has become virtually a second profession for her husband — the purchase, restoration and re-sale of old houses and apartment complexes that have fallen into disrepair.

Virginia Gordon fully shares her husband's interest in these often-historic places, and his enthusiasm for saving them from the wrecker.

AND THE practice has proven to be not only esthetically satisfying, but also financially rewarding.

Restored to an immaculate condition that it probably did not even know in its younger years, the mansion at 248 Laurel Place is now on the market.

And restorer Gordon expects the handsome place to bring a price of $129,950.

This from a house that until Gordon acquired it earlier this year, seemed doomed to demolition.

Richard Gordon's interest in old homes has been lifelong.

Born in Los Angeles, he came to Marin County as a first grader, and to a San Rafael that was still enriched by many handsome old mansion homes of the early pioneers — structures that in many cases have since been lost.

AS AN adult, a career as a carpenter heightened his appreciation of these finely-constructed showplaces.

Nine years ago, he entered the general contracting and structural pest control field.

And as owner of Hinkley & Gordon, licensed both for contracting and termite control, he found himself face-to-face with one of the facts of life of his business: Winters were just not as busy as other seasons.

And thus there was the problem of how to keep the employees on his payroll occupied during the colder, wetter months, when there were lulls in the demand for Hinkley & Gordon's services.

Eight years ago, with Virginia's help, he hit upon a solution. Why not acquire old homes and buildings in a state of disrepair, use his own skills and the manpower of Hinkley & Gordon employees during the slack winter period, and fix them up for re-sale?

THEY TRIED out their idea first on a modest scale on a Spanish style house in Ross.

Following restoration, they rented the house for a year, then sold it at a profit that made their efforts and investment well worthwhile.

That success led to other similar ventures.

One such project was the restoration of a Victorian house in San Rafael that is now the Gordon family home.

Three older and rundown apartment complexes were acquired and rehabilitated into attractive properties. One has been sold. The Gordons still own the other two and benefit as landlords.

But the Laurel Place mansion is for the Gordons the most satisfying example to date of their hobby-occupation.

Along with the exceptional quality of its materials and the spaciousness and stateliness of its design, the big house has an interesting history.

AS RESEARCHED by Gordon and by Betty Blumenfeld of Fox & Carskadon, Realtors, San Rafael, who is handling the showing and sale of the property, the recorded history of the land begins in 1873 when it is listed on a map dated Oct. 14 of that year in the recorder's office as one of the parcels making up the exten-

Marin County Honor Farm: A Feeling Of Openness

By DOROTHY KELLY

Stan Mitchell had been cooling out in the Marin City County Jail for several months. One long day stretched into another with nothing to do but talk to his cell mates, play cards and eat.

His total environment consisted of a barred cell shared with five other men, five metal tables and stools bolted to the floor, and an open toilet and washbowl.

Ennui was interrupted only by the nerve-jangling slams of giant steel doors separating one cell block from another and the constant rattle of keys used to open them.

STAN HAD been determined eligible for transfer to the Marin County Honor Farm, and he was ready for almost any alternative the day the deputy sheriff came to unlock his cell and lead him down the long concrete hall that connected the cell blocks. One door after another clanked behind the two men until they finally arrived at the booking desk.

Overhead swung greedy eyes of a closed circuit television camera, one of many in the building that transferred all activities of the jailed prisoners to a bank of T.V. screens on the wall opposite the desk.

Stan was given back belongings that had been confiscated upon entering and informed that he could take his own clothes to the Honor Farm and any other personal articles including radios, books, pictures and his guitar.

HE WAS driven out to the hills of Terra Linda where the Honor Farm is by a member of its staff. The place was nothing fancy, just a cluster of pale green concrete block buildings, but the best thing about it to Stan was a feeling of openness. There was only a five foot cyclone fence around the area, left over from the days when it served as a military base, and no bars on the windows. Here there were no prisoners, only residents.

At this booking desk nothing was taken away from Stan. He was issued linens, given special duties and assigned one of the seventy bunks in the barracks. It was pointed out to him that the gate was always open, but to escape usually meant a year back in the county jail.

The Honor Farm was not like any type of correction Stan had experienced before. Its staff is aware that lack of meaningful job opportunities is a major cause of our rising crime rate and they encourage the resident to become a member of the work furlough program; to continue working or find employment within his own community while serving his sentence. The men are also encouraged to go to school to improve vocational skills, and for those who want it, there is an educational program allowing them to attend the College of Marin for credit.

VISITING sessions at the farm are much longer and more frequent than at the county jail. Residents are free to visit with their families in the dining room or on the lawn and sometimes during these hours they have picnics and hold their own rock concerts.

Group therapy meets several times a week led by staff and trained volunteers, a yoga class is held every Saturday, and there is an art class. One of the most interesting programs is a videotape workshop organized by Judy Lynn, a volunteer.

In the workshop, residents learn to operate video equipment, use it in therapy groups and make their own tapes. Underway now is a thirty minute tape on TASC, a program for drug addicts. So far, most of the VTR equipment has been borrowed, but it is hoped that the class will have funds for its own training, repair, maintenance and operation facility.

NONE OF the activities or workshops is compulsory, but Town Hall is. Staff and residents meet twice each month and the program is turned over to the men who are encouraged to express any complaints they may have. There is an on-going resident committee that meets weekly to discuss them and make recommendations to the staff.

One of the complaints most often mentioned by the residents is the lack of conjugal visits with their wives. Another is jurisdictional discrimination against offenders who cannot afford to hire their own attorneys. In such cases, the accused is assigned an attorney by the Public Defenders Office, but the office is too overworked to adequately help them.

They resent the fact that people with money committing similar offenses usually do not serve time. The men also feel that they are being punished for doing things that a large segment of the free population does with regularity; smoking marijuana, being intoxicated and incurring parking fines.

ALL OF THE residents have been convicted of misdemeanors or felonies and are serving sentences for from forty-five days to one year, and fall into one of four categories:

1. Men with jobs at the time of sentencing who are automatically placed on a work furlough program by a Probation Officer specializing in approving work-school releases.
2. Those who are allowed to serve time only on week ends so that they will not sive holdings of pioneer William T. Coleman.

The parcel then measured 288 feet by 519 feet, extending from what is today Laurel to Mission Avenue, then called Sixth Street.

Sometime after that 1873 date the first unit of the house still standing at what is now 248 Laurel Place was built.

Gordon says he has been unable to fix the date or the original occupants, although one former resident described it as "the Cheda place."

Coleman built his own house on the lower southwest corner lot fronting on Sixth Street or Mission Avenue, and it, too, still exists.

The years have reduced the 1873 parcel to approximate dimensions of 70 by 210 feet, shown in the assessor's Book 11 on Page 17 as Parcel Number 11-173-34.

THE YEARS in between have seen a series of changes in the ownership.

On June 1, 1884, as shown in Book Q, Page 370, the parcel, then measuring 288 feet by 340 feet, was deeded to Carrie M. P. Coleman. The northern portion of the property apparently was sold to a James S. Porteous of San Francisco who reconveyed that land to Oberend G. Rose on Jan. 28, 1884, for $2,000 (Book Z, Page 448). On Nov. 13 of that same year, Rose passed the property on to Cornelius A. Hoyt from New York (Book I, Page 318).

After Hoyt's death the property was sold at auction on Oct. 23, 1895 to Dr. Samuel M. Augustine for $1,693.65.

There are photographs in the Marin County Historical Society Museum in San Rafael's Boyd Park that show Dr. Augustine as an associate member of the county's medical association.

Dr. Augustine proceeded to have the original house already located there raised to become the upper floor of the building. Under it he had constructed an area that provided a living room, a dining room, a kitchen and a library.

It was this addition that lifted the home to the status of mansion and one of the town's showplaces.

DR. AUGUSTINE retained ownership of the property until Oct. 3, 1924, and during the 29 years he was the owner he acquired additional property from Eliza and Vincent Neal on Sept. 9, 1906, and sold one lot on Dec. 9, 1907, to E. F. Broman.

At that time an easement eight-feet wide was provided to give access between Laurel Place and Mission Avenue, an easement that still exists today.

In 1924 Dr. Augustine sold the property to Hazel M. and James F. Peattie, a transaction recorded in Book 56, Page 119. The Peatties borrowed $5,280 from William P. Murray and M. J. Pedrotti to make their purchase.

The land and home passed from the Peatties to May S. Armando on Nov. 18, 1927, (Book 133, Page 395 and 396), for the sum of $1,927. And from the Armandos it passed on May 29, 1928, into the hands of Harriet R. and Maj. George H. White for $4,500.

The Whites used the big house not only as a residence, but also as a school for boys for a number of years.

THE WHITES lost their house in a Depression year foreclosure proceeding to American Trust Co. on Feb. 7, 1933 (Book 259, Page 95).

On Dec. 5, 1935, Queenie M. and James W. Haynes became the new owners (Book 243, Page 355). Haynes was a teacher at San Rafael High School. He and his wife sold two lots, one on the west side of the property to Robert M. Coman on May 17, 1949, the other on the southeast section of the parcel to Carl D. Yeakey on May 17, 1949.

An additional lot beyond the now existing property line was given by the Hayneses to their son who later sold it.

On Nov. 7, 1956, the Haynes reconveyed title to the remaining bulk of the one-time Coleman parcel to Alice B. and Vernon Heir.

An apartment unit beneath the main house had been added in 1949, making of the brown-shingle place a three-story structure.

But the years had taken their toll of the old house and it had fallen into serious disrepair.

GORDON says he was attracted to the house by the potential he saw in it. And he and his wife determined to act after he was told by city officials that the deteriorating structure was scheduled for demolition.

The transaction was completed March 22, 1974.

Without waiting for winter, Gordon proceeded to put his own carpentry skills, and those of his Hinkley & Gordon work force, to the task of restoring the original charm of the old home, while adding modern conveniences, particularly in the antiquated kitchen.

"We are looking specifically for another old apartment building to which we can bring new life," Gordon says. "But we are also on the watch for another house — a Victorian or a brown-shingle."

The house contains 4,629 square feet of floor space, plus the 700-square-foot one-bedroom apartment, and two sweeping verandas of 1,060 square feet.

The mansion contains 13 rooms, including five bedrooms, a solarium, a large formal living room, a breakfast room, a library, formal dining room, informal dining area, laundry room, one and a half baths, storage room and basement.

In the living room, dining room and library built by Dr. Augustine nearly 80 years ago, the Gordons preserved the fine old white cedar and redwood paneling.

THE DINING ROOM and living room each have their own brick fireplace, and there is a third fireplace in the home.

An unusual feature are the four pink Venetian marble wash basins in three upstairs bedrooms and the bath.

Sliding pocket doors permit a complete separation of key rooms.

The major "updating" accomplished by the Gordons came in the kitchen where not only electrical appliances, but new hardwood cabinets of New England design were installed.

Another major modernization was the installation of three new forced air furnaces.

The electrical system was revamped to meet modern standards.

But throughout the project the Gordons carefully avoided anything they felt clashed with the spirit and history of the mansion. The paint for both the interior and exterior was chosen to fit the original colors and style of the building. Mrs. Gordon selected wallpaper for the bedrooms that also harmonized with the history of the place and the period for which it speaks so eloquently.

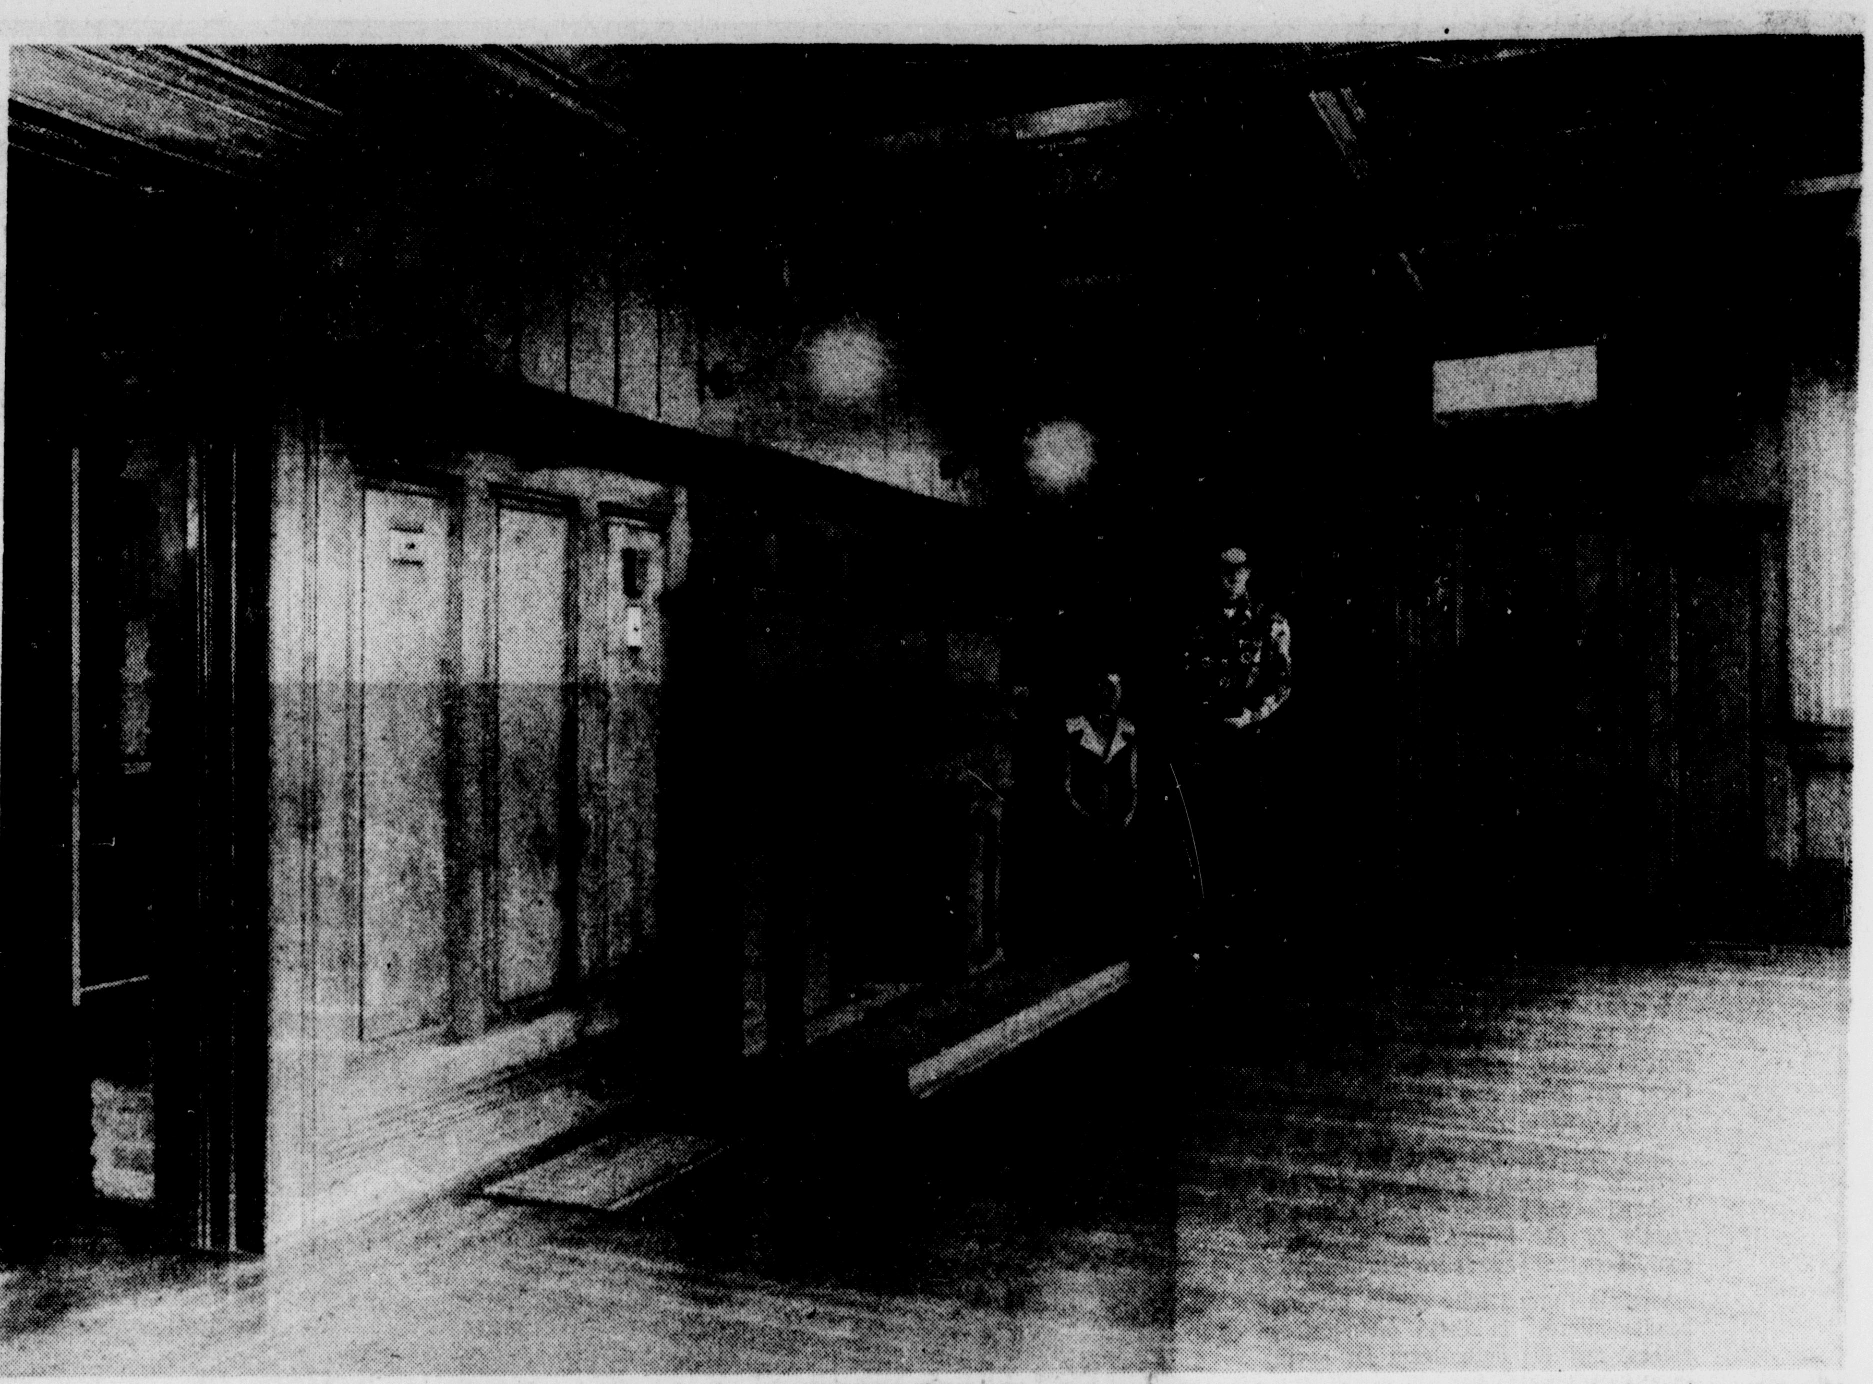
It is, say the Gordons, the epitome of the type of buildings they had in mind when they decided to begin their "operation rescue" for Marin showplaces threatened by time or progress. And they have more in mind.

GORDON, whose company has done such renovations as the much praised Lark Creek Inn in its Victorian mansion in Larkspur, says he and his wife are looking closely now for something that will keep them and their co-workers occupied this winter.

"We are looking specifically for another old apartment building to which we can bring new life," he says. "But we are also on the watch for another house — a Victorian or a brown-shingle."

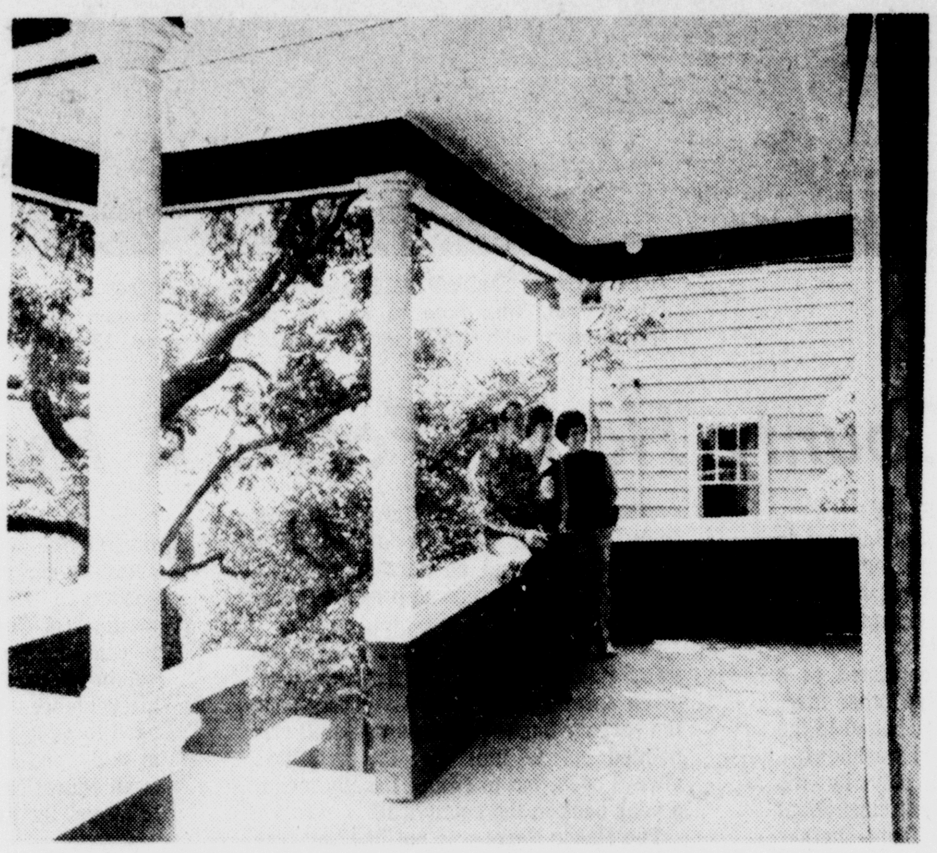
And particularly the Gordons have in mind some fine old place, or places, over which is hovering the dooming shadow of the wrecker's iron ball.

MARIN LIVING

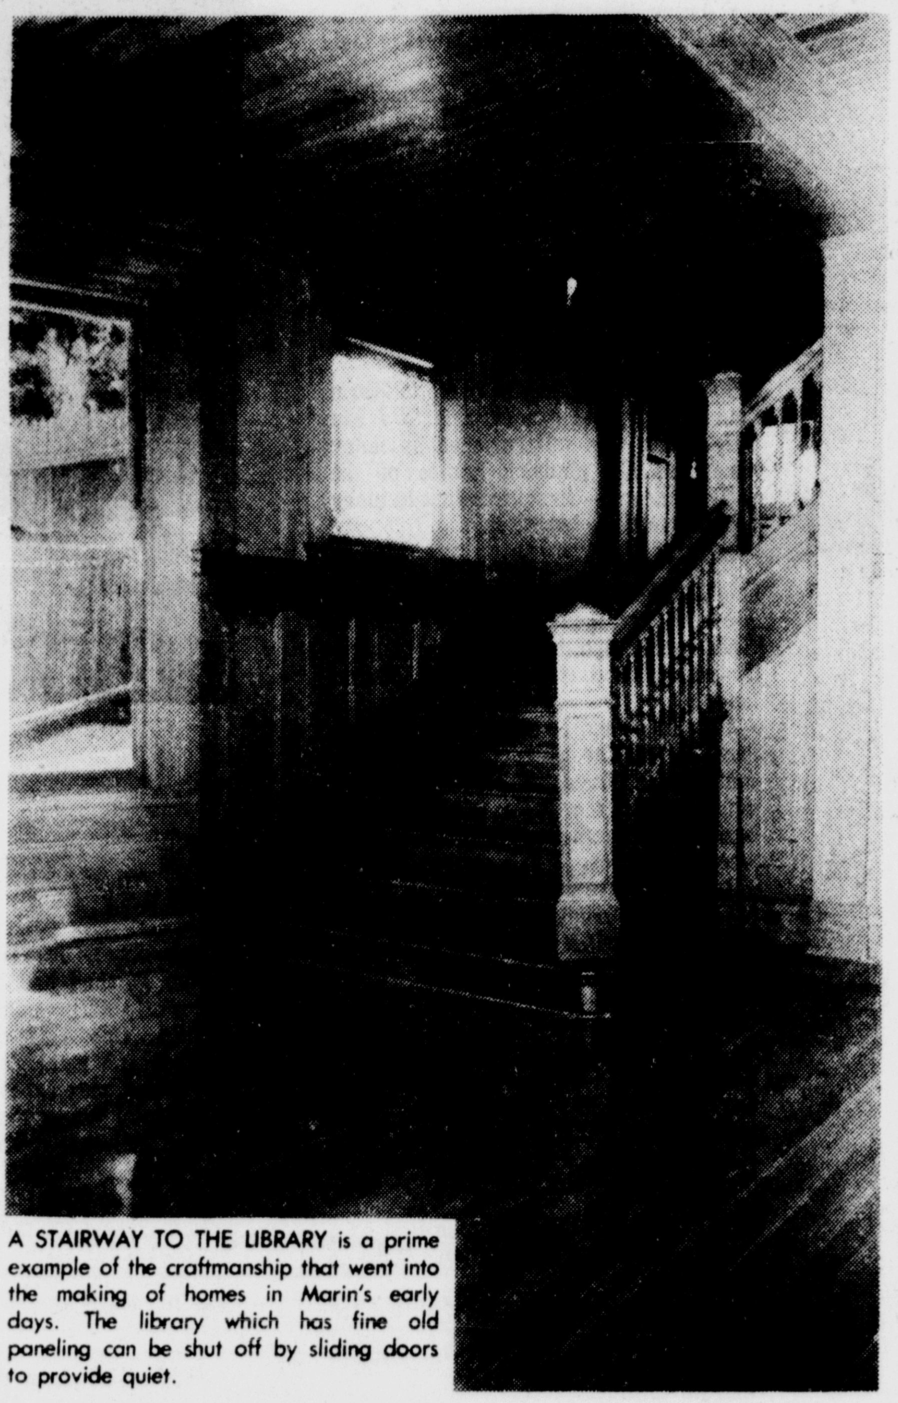


A RED BRICK FIREPLACE and original white cedar paneling bring a warmth to the large living room, 36 by 26, which is enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gordon, who have plunged into the hobby-occupation of restoring fine old homes.

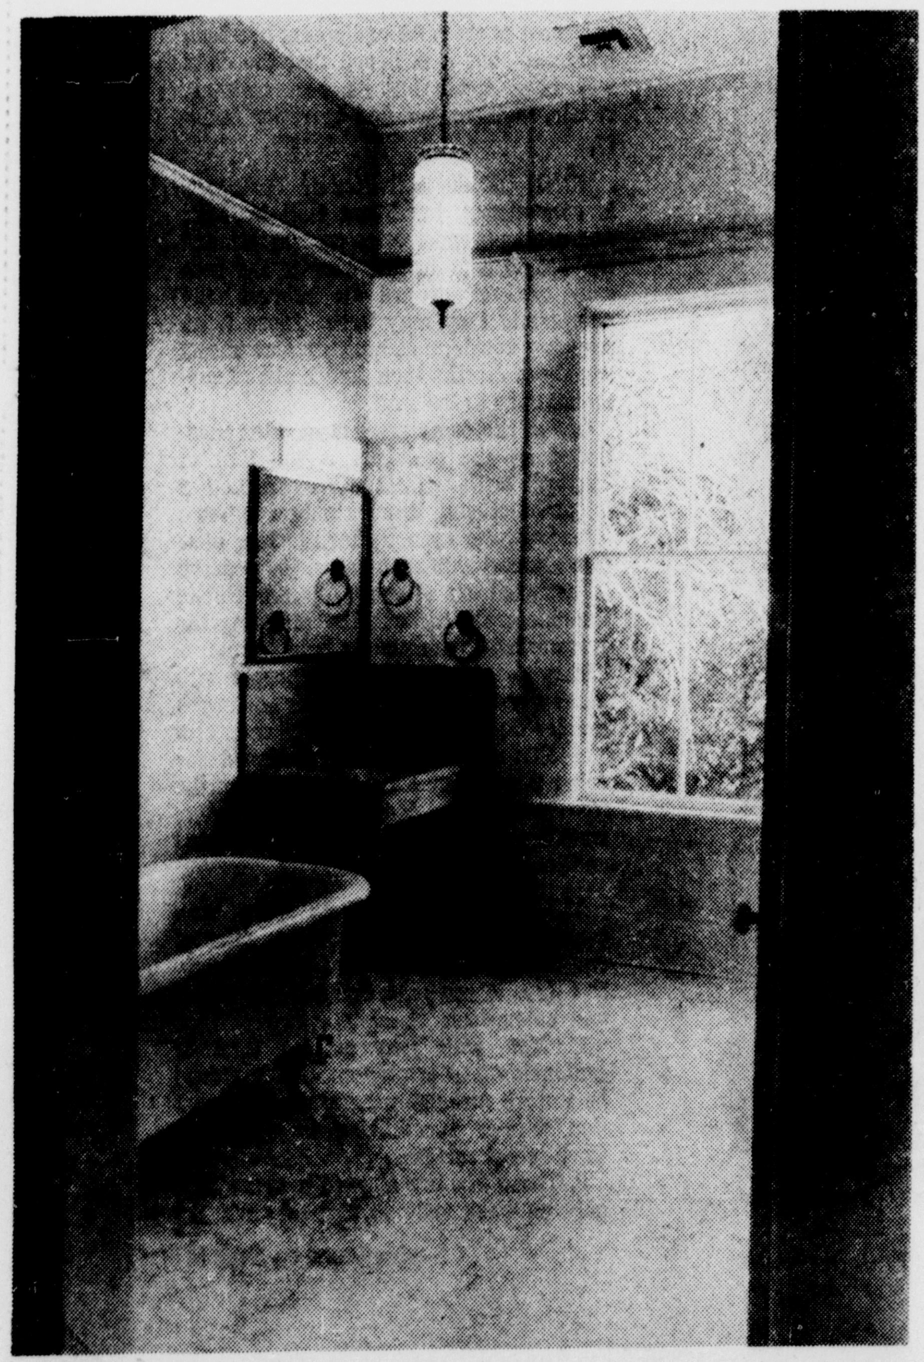
(Photos by Jim Kean)



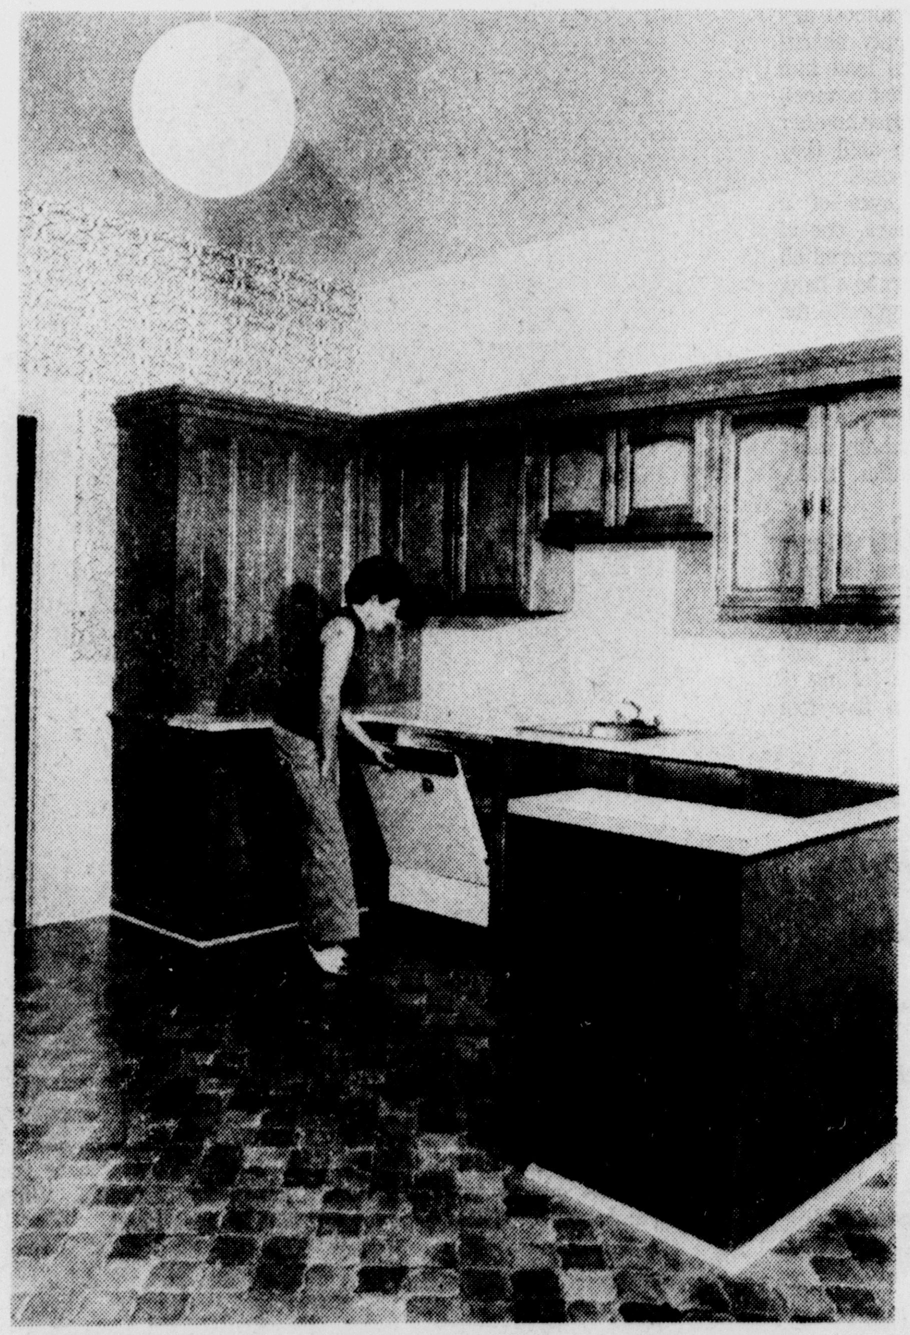
THE FRONT PORCH with both upper and lower verandas is enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. Gordon and Betty Blumenfeld of Fox and Carskadon, real estate brokers. The two sweeping verandas cover a total of 1,060 square feet.



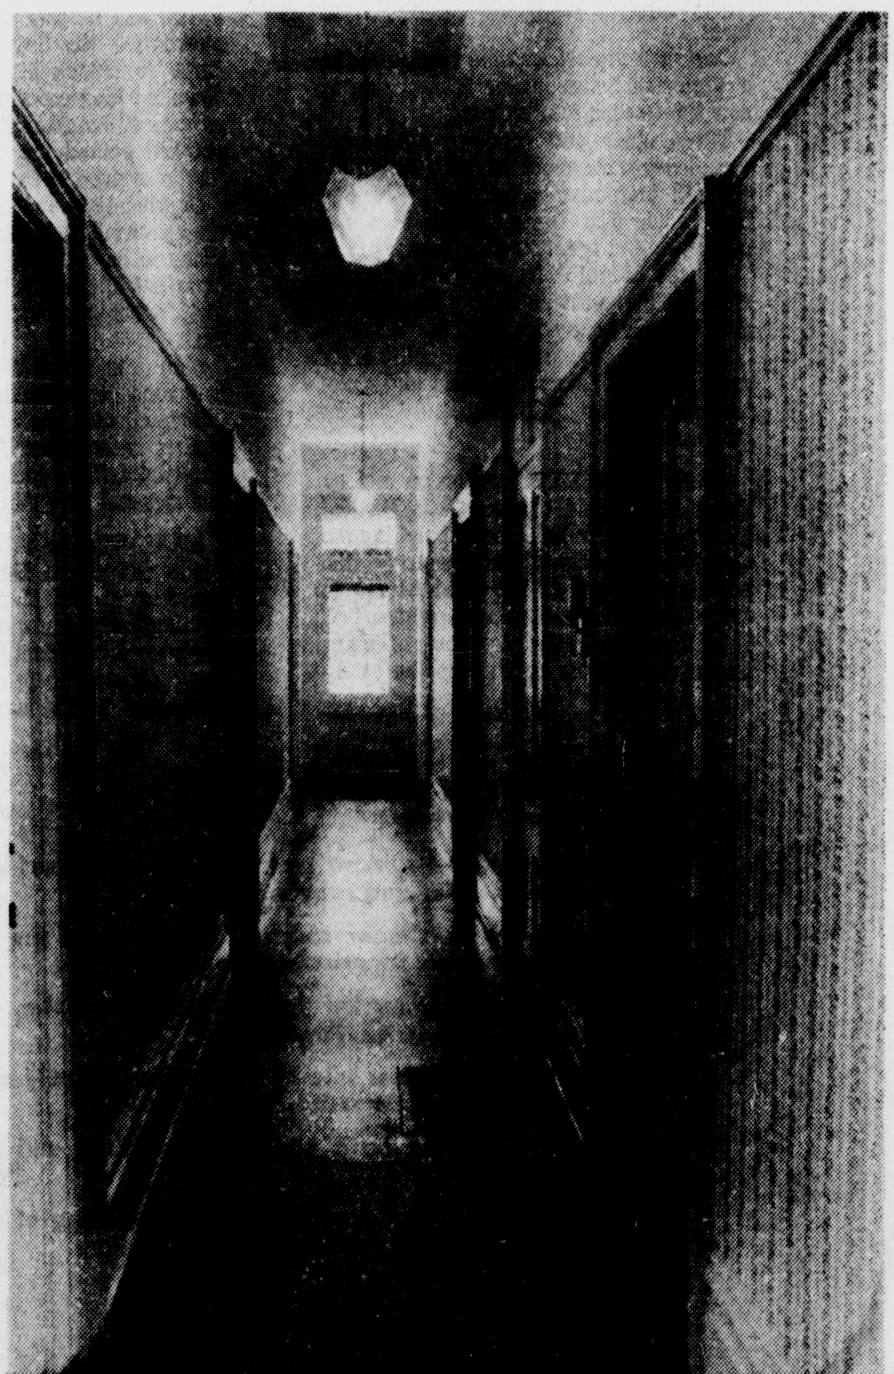
A STAIRWAY TO THE LIBRARY is a prime example of the craftmanship that went into the making of homes in Marin's early days. The library which has fine old paneling can be shut off by sliding doors to provide quiet.



A PINK MARBLE wash basin in an upstairs bathroom is another unusual feature at the Laurel Place mansion, which has a total of four pink marble basins, including three in upstairs bedrooms.



MODERNIZATION was accomplished with the installation of electrical appliances in the kitchen and new hardwood cabinets of New England design. Examining the kitchen is Betty Blumenfeld of Fox and Carskadon, realtors, who is handling the showing and sale of the property.



THE SIZE OF THE HOME is exemplified in this view down the long hallway and the doorway at the end probably originally was the front doorway.

CHOW TIME finds Stan in a reflective mood, perhaps thinking over the differences between life at the Marin County Jail and life at the Marin County Honor Farm.

RELAXING ON THE GROUNDS of the Marin County Honor Farm, Stan Mitchell, now a Petaluma musician, and his wife, Karen, enjoy the system at the farm which has longer and more frequent visiting hours than at the Marin County Jail and permits residents to visit with families in the dining room.

Educational Programs, Family Visits At Farm

have to leave their families and jobs.

3. Men who are part of a federally funded program who are without jobs and therefore ineligible for work furlough. They may be selected to receive educational and vocational training and counseling by a special three-person team of counselors.

4. Trustees: Those who choose to work in the Honor Farm kitchen or on grounds maintenance and thereby receive five days off their sentence for each thirty days worked.

There is a staff of thirteen at the Honor Farm. They are chosen for role models as well as for their ability to enforce rules. Dual roles can cause conflict because it is difficult to be both a confidant and disciplinarian but that is considered preferable to having both guards and counselors as in the case of conventional prison systems.

Out of the thirteen, nine are Marin County Department Corrections Staff and three, Federal Project Staff members. There are three ex-offenders, two of whom are former heroin addicts.

DIRECTOR AND life force of the institution is Ralph Merola, a straight forward, articulate man who wears a conservative Poncho Villa mustache and drives a Honda 550 to work every morning. He is a sociologist and prior to the Honor Farm, served with the California Youth Authorities and the Los Angeles and Marin County Probation Departments.

"These are not dangerous men out here," Merola explained. "Most of them have committed property and drug offenses and about 40 per cent have juvenile records. We try to keep them out of prison by offering new, more constructive behavior patterns."

Merola isn't known for diplomacy at board meetings and refuses to play politics with county officials. He walks a tightrope between giving his men as much freedom as is practical and struggling to satisfy "law and order" advocates that he is not running a loose operation. It is a lonely job and one without much appreciation from either side.

When I was in his office he was on the phone objecting to his immediate superior about a new rule requiring handcuffs to be worn by any resident being returned to the county jail due to misconduct. "We've never had a problem, and I see no reason for such an unnecessary and degrading precaution," he was saying.

"These are not dangerous men out here", he explained to me. "Most of them have committed property and drug offenses, and about 40 per cent have juvenile records. We try to keep them out of prison by offering new, more constructive behavior patterns. The alternate to this is spending time in a prison where the inmate has no opportunity to change and no constructive means of releasing anger and tension that build up in such circumstances. He is made to feel that society has locked him up and thrown away the key."

WORKING CLOSELY with Merola is Leon Le Gant, Senior Coorective Worker and an experienced drug treatment counselor. Mr. Le Gant points out that only 30 per cent of the county jail inmates are employed when convicted, and therefore eligible for work furlough. The Honor Farm finds work for the other 70 per cent that would otherwise be sitting in cells doing "dead time" and re-enforcing negative social attitudes.

Lorraine Box is one of the three women on the staff. She is black, tall and svelte and was once a high fashion model. She tests residents in order to analyze their abilities and shortcomings and counsels them to determine what educational curriculum to pursue. Sometimes they need special tutoring before entering college and she arranges this. Lorraine was anxious to impress the fact that there is no similar community correction facility in the county for women.

The Honor Farm has been open not quite a year. Inspiration for such an institution was formed in the Kelgord Report commissioned by Governor Reagan. The report denounced the conventional (and unsuccessful) type of prison, recommendedthat the Adult Authority be abolished, and criticized the State Department of Corrections. This displeased the Governor and he sought to stifle its findings. In spite of his efforts, it was read by the Committee for Prison, Humanity and Justice, 1414 Fourth Street, San Rafael, a non-rpofit organization that strives to inform the public of existing prison conditions and seeks to offer alternatives to our present penal system.

MARIN LIVING

As a result of pressure from the C.P.H.J., a Task Force was assigned to study the Keldgord Report and January 1974, the Marin County Honor Farm became a reality. Today it operates under the jusirdiction of the Probation Department.

THE HONOR FARM is offering opportunities that some of the men have never had before. It gives them a sense of responsibility and self respect in a learning, positive atmosphere. There is hope for change, but more funds and community involvement are needed. At this point, job opportunities are one of the Farm's greatest needs and there are more men looking for work than there are jobs available for someone serving time.

Almost as important to the men as jobs is the knowledge that people on the outside care and have not forgotten them. So far, volunteers have been few, but Ms. Lynn already sees the need for a community board of directors to co-ordinate them with the staff and residents. Interested persons can contact Lorraine Box at the Honor Farm.

Stan Mitchell is now living in Petaluma with his wife and children where he is busy fulfilling engagements with his own band.

ENTERING THE HONOR FARM with Leon Le Grant, senior corrective worker, was the start of a change for Stan Mitchell from his life in Marin County Jail cell where inactivity was deadening to a place where he lived as a "resident" rather than "prisoner."

"He (Merola) walks a tightrope between giving his men as much freedom as is practical and struggling to satisfy 'law and order' advocates that he is not running a loose operation."

VISITING BY TELEPHONE through a glass partition at the Marin County Jail stands in stark contrast to the open, more satisfying visiting periods at the Marin County Honor Farm.

Renaissance Sounds Ringing In Sausalito

By LARRY C. BAKER

Hurdy-gurdies, lutes, psaltries and rebecs in various stages of completion line the walls of the Lyn Elder Workshop in the Industrial Center Annex in Sausalito's Gate Five.

These Renaissance musical instruments are made and sold by Elder and two apprentices, Mark Holsman of San Francisco and Herb Hendrickson of Sausalito.

ELDER, a Mill Valley resident since 1959, was introduced to instrument making when he was drafted into the Army. He was stationed in Atlanta, GA, where a violin maker took him on as an apprentice. He also learned the art of making renaissance instruments there.

After being discharged from the Army, he moved back to Marin County and opened his own shop, first in Mill Valley, then moving to Sausalito in 1973.

"The competition in this field is limited, even though there are a number of good lute makers in the world," Elder said. "The competition is more quality oriented than quantity."

Elder said his instruments are purchased by both private players and college music departments. "Most of our individual customers are historical musicians," he said.

THERE IS a great body of renaissance and baroque music available, especially for the lute, according to Elder. There is also a revival of interest in music from this period.

"The 15-strong lute will probably be our main instrument for sale, once we are established as lute makers and build a reputation for quality instruments," he said.

MARIN LIVING

"The lute held the place during the renaissance of the piano today," Elder said. "It was the principal instrument for composers and accompanists. Any group of historical musicians must include a lute player (lutanist).

The lute is made with various numbers of strings, but Elder makes primarily 15-stringed models. The sound board has a hole in the center which is covered by a carving known as a lute rose.

THE LUTE ROSES are carved directly from the sound board. Elder uses designs which are copies of the roses used on authentic pieces. The most famous rose is from a design by Leonardo DaVinci.

The hurdy-gurdy, also known as a "wheel fiddle," is a three-stringed instrument having two drone strings and a melody string. The strings vibrate with the turning of a crank on one end of the instrument and the melody is created by playing a small keyboard.

The psaltry is a small harp with sixteen strings and the rebec is a small three-string fiddle. Elder makes all of these instruments in the shop.

Most of the instruments are made from a variety of woods, using spruce for the sound board and good hardwoods for the back. Walnut, maple and rosewood are favorites among the hardwoods. The fingerboards are made of ebony and the peg box is usually of maple or a hardwood to match the back.

The instruments are trimmed in rosewood and the pegs and veneer are boxwood.

The plans and specifications for the instruments made in the Workshop are the result of a European tour. Elder visited museums throughout Europe taking photographs and measurements of authentic Renaissance instruments to give his work additional authenticity.

Elder not only makes the instruments, he also plays them.

HE IS presently a member of San Francisco Pro-Musica, a serious professional group of five instrumentalists and three singers.

This group plans an Alaskan tour in November and appears often on campuses throughout the Bay Area. They are also joined by a corps of dancers from the East Bay for the Renaissance Faire held annually in Northern Marin.

Elder is also the principal string instrumentalist in Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary's Renaissance Consort, a new group being brought together by Dr. John Johnson, the director of the Seminary's music program.

The Consort will include Max Lyall, concert harpsichordist and new assistant professor of church music at the Seminary, and several instrumentalists and singers.

Elder also teaches guitar and plays guitar and recorder with a folk singing group.

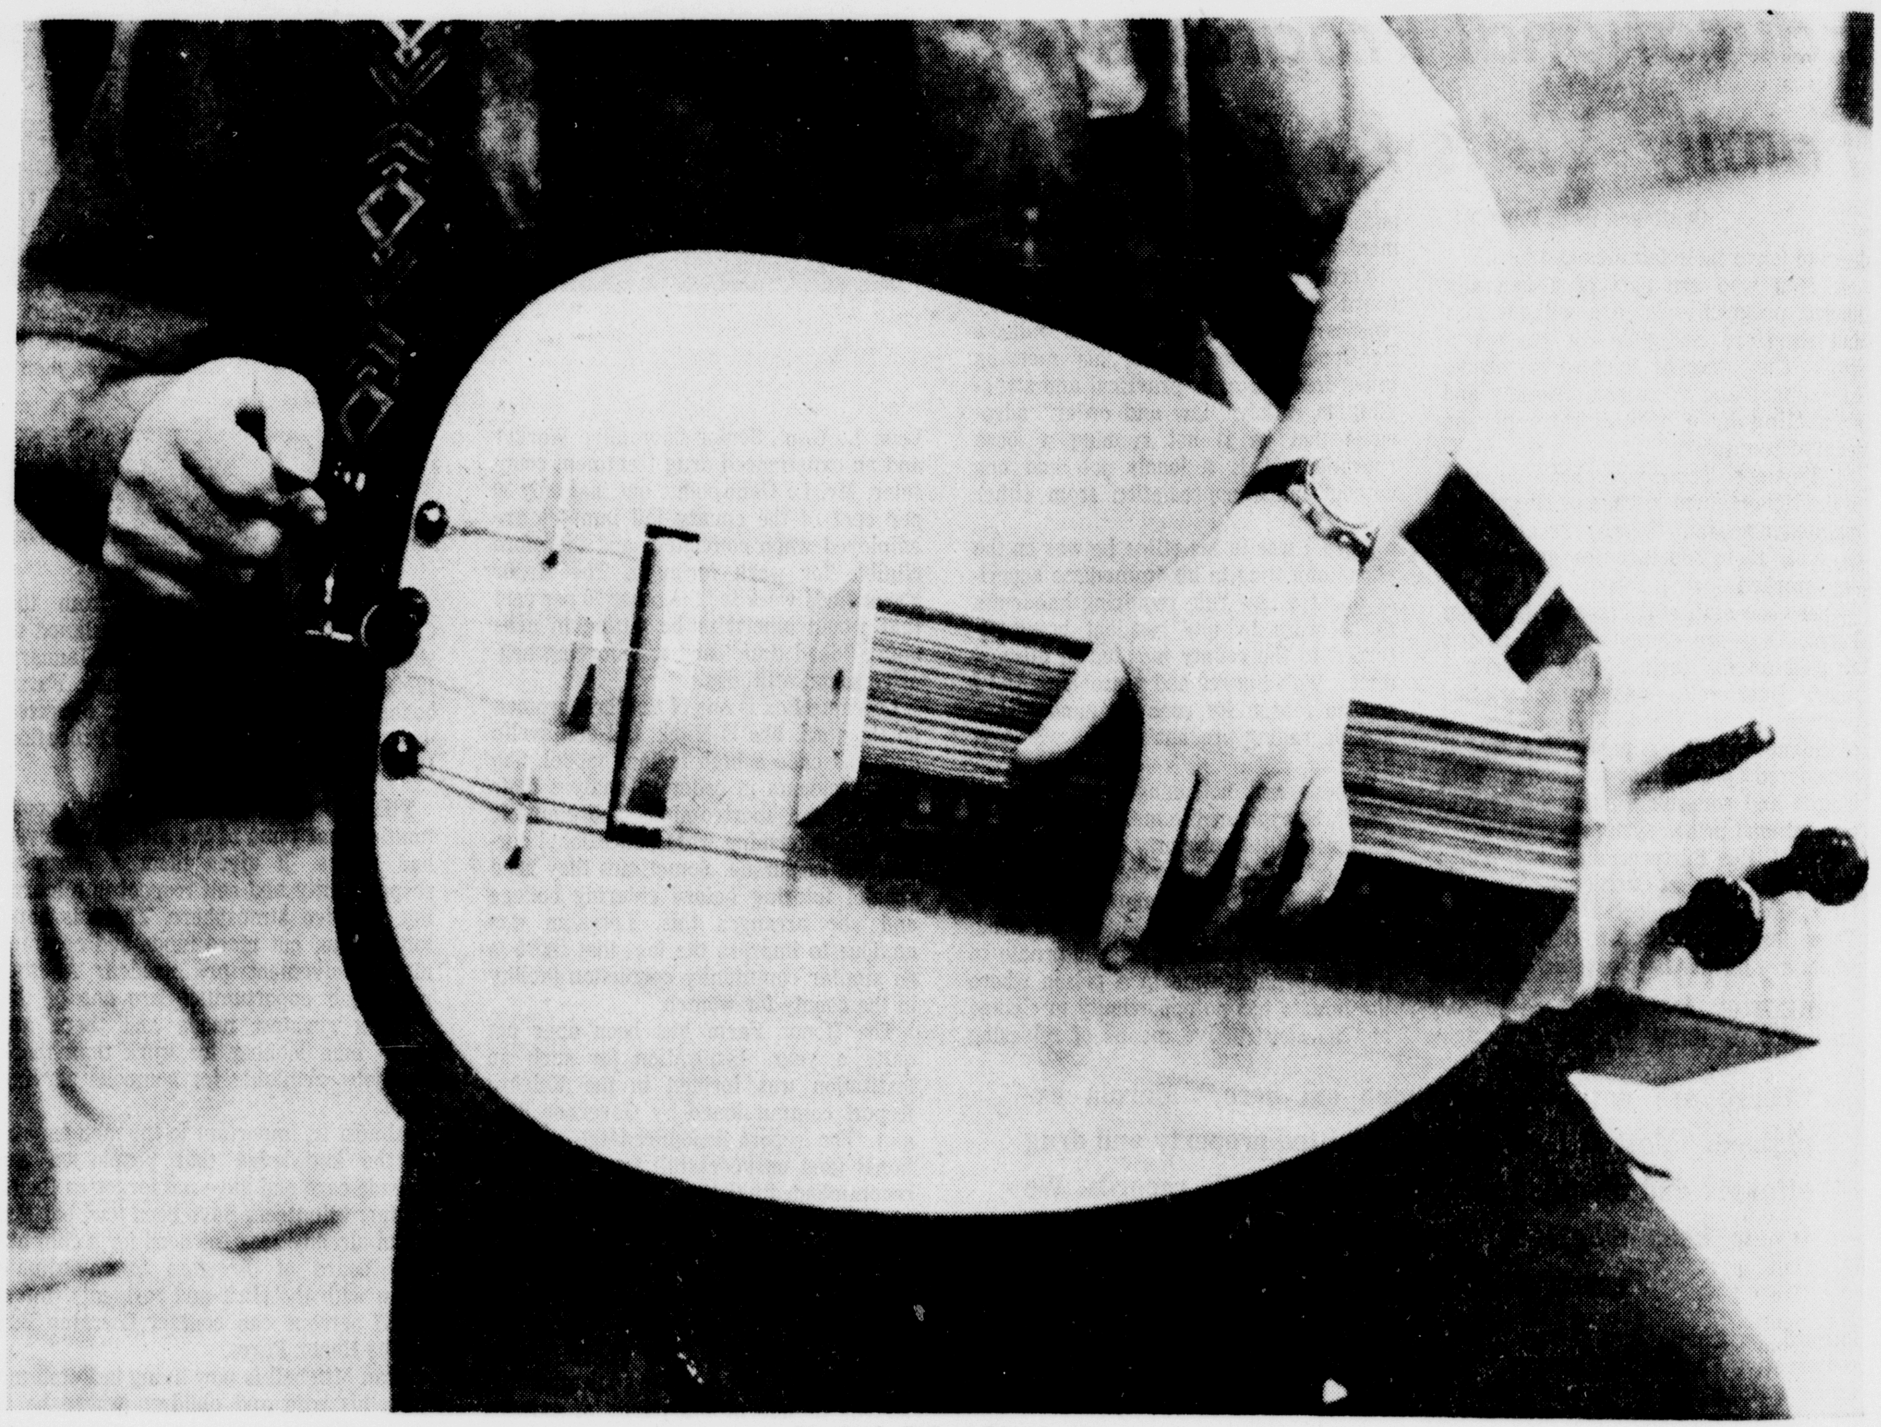
SANDING A tuning peg for a lute is but one of the steps in the painstaking task of fashioning fine instruments.



PLAYING THE HURDY-GURDY provides additional enjoyment for Lyn Elder of Mill Valley, who makes renaissance instruments at his Sausalito workshop. The three-stringed instrument is played by turning a crank with one hand and a keyboard with the other.

CONCENTRATION IS THE KEYWORD as renaissance instrument maker Lynn Elder makes tuning pegs for lutes, which were the principal instruments for composers and accompanists during the renaissance.

IN SEARCH OF THE AMERICAN DREAM: Settling In America

Editor's Note: This is the third of 18 articles exploring the theme, In Search of the American Dream. This article discusses the settling of America and the surprises encountered by colonists. The series is designed as a study course, with or without college credit. And the other 15 articles or lectures will follow each week in the I-J's Marin Living section.)

By WINTHROP D. JORDAN
Distributed by Copley News Service

When Englishmen first began to scent opportunity in America, they were told two contradictory "facts" about the new land. They were told, on the one hand, that it was a "desert," a "waste firmament." They were told, at the same time, that "savages" lived there.

For Englishmen and Anglo-Americans both statements remained correct for centuries: America was both empty (an opportunity) and filled (with problems).

AMERICA'S apparent emptiness can be explained by considering English perspectives at that time. The native Indians were not numerous by European standards, especially not in comparison to the enormous expanse of territory they lived in. What we would call a relatively low density of population, Englishmen were then perfectly justified in perceiving as "few." More importantly, Englishmen thought the Indians had no "settled habitations."

"What we now know to have been eastern woodland Indian cultures which rested on a combination of agriculture and hunting were perceived by Englishmen as a thoroughly uncouth (i.e., un-English) sort of people who neither occupied the land (properly) nor would stay put."

What we now know to have been eastern woodland Indian cultures which rested on a combination of agriculture and hunting were perceived by Englishmen as a thoroughly uncouth (i.e., un-English) sort of people who neither occupied the land (properly) nor would stay put.

Initially, therefore, Englishmen had no notion of exterminating the native peoples, nor even of sweeping them aside; even though people already lived in America, Englishmen thought, such an immense land had plenty of room for more.

THE WARPED perception that caused the English to see Indians as unsettled wanderers was in large measure a function of how they saw society at home.

The severe, almost catastrophic dislocations which accompanied the English Reformation and Henry VIII's fluctuating tempers had resulted in large numbers of displaced persons.

Thrown off the land onto English countryside and villages, they became the "wandering beggars" to whom Hakluyt, the "trumpet" of American colonization, had referred in his "Discourse Concerning Western Planting." Social dislocation and what we would call "underemployment problems" persuaded many Englishmen that England was overpopulated in general and especially overpopulated by "undesirables."

Given the assumptions of the day, America was seen not as a dumping ground for these undesirables (as Australia was to seem much later) but as an empty and fertile ground for the settlement, employment, and hence moral and social reformation of the offscourings of English society.

AT THE same time, as the Protestant Reformation took increasing hold on English society, certain religious fringe groups came to think of America as a refuge from a mounting threat of persecution. They were not immune, any more than Englishmen generally, to the scent of opportunity which by the early 1600s was so very much in the air.

The various streams of attraction to America and propulsion from England were thoroughly mixed.

In retrospect, the early "great migration" (1620-1650) of the English to America is particularly striking in terms of the number and variety of people and motivations involved. Relative to the population of Europe, probably more persons left Europe for the New World during those decades than at any time before or since.

The English went principally to three areas: the eastern Caribbean (Barbados and the few small Leeward Islands), the Chesapeake Bay (Virginia and Maryland), and eastern New England (the Massachusetts Bay and the Plymouth Colony).

SOME WENT against their will, especially the Scots and Irish, victim-prisoners of the English Civil Wars, who migrated to the West Indies. Many went for better fortunes and better times: such people probably predominated in the Chesapeake area and were certainly prevalent everywhere else.

Some went in the hope of fulfilling the faith we describe as religious, and while it would be right to ascribe "religion" as the predominating motive of those who came to New England, it would be radically incorrect to assign thereby a lack of otherworldly faith to those not fortunate enough to have joined God's special project there.

However sure various breeds of Englishmen were about God's intentions, the various English communities in America turned out to be different sorts of places. In the islands, sugar and the slave labor it seemed to require took over almost totally.

THE CHESAPEAKE settlements, with a diffuse population, spilled all over the eastern, watered portions of the area. After almost being wiped out by the native inhabitants, the colonists eventually succeeded in establishing a populous but sparsely settled community in Virginia, devoid of real villages and devoted mainly to staple agriculture. (They hunted but mainly they farmed; ironically they went, unintentionally, part way toward reproducing the Indian woodland cultures their forebears had disliked.)

Only in New England (and this development was to persist for a very long time) did the English manage to reproduce in the New World what they thought valuable, as a social mode, in the Old.

"The Pilgrims in Plymouth and the Puritans in Massachusetts have long attracted attention because they were so articulate about their own goals."

The Pilgrims in Plymouth and the Puritans in Massachusetts have long attracted attention because they were so articulate about their own goals.

THOUGH THE Puritans were a much larger, wealthier, and better educated group, they shared with the Pilgrims a powerful sense of mission. In England, their own low-church, modified-Calvinist Protestantism seemed to be on the defensive against the forces of the Crown, the closely allied Church of England, and, not least, the numerous legions of ungodliness.

Determined that their "true religion" and the Lord's will should prevail in the wilderness, they set about to establish "Bible Commonwealths" where families, society, the polity, and the churches would all be harmoniously ordered according to God's Word.

All this required inner discipline and inevitably (given their view of the essential nature of man) outer discipline as well. They sternly punished lying, drunkenness, fornication and all the myriad other sins to which men and women, and even children, seemed so wickedly inclined.

THEY ENFORCED orthodoxy and discipline in the churches; they harried out religious dissenters and went so far as to hang two Quakers. The Puritans were indeed pious, intolerant moralists, but they were not prudes. They punished sexual offenses but they were not in the least surprised by them. They wore colorful clothing, suitable, of course, to their social stations.

When Harvard College thought it necessary to limit drinking at commencement, the authorities restricted degree-takers to three gallons of wine per man.

"When Harvard College thought it necessary to limit drinking at commencement, the authorities restricted degree-takers to three gallons of wine per man."

Whether the Puritans succeeded or failed in their mission is a matter of definition and they were themselves ambivalent on the matter. Even as they railed at the prevalence of wickedness among them and at the decline of true piety, they remained acutely conscious that their society and churches were superior to England's.

WHILE THEY were keenly aware of men's tendency to disperse to new, empty lands, they prided themselves on their regulated pattern of settlement, ordered town by ordered town. They were, indeed, the most realist of utopians. They expected to establish a New Israel in the wilderness, and they demanded godly thoughts and behavior of its members; at the same time they knew that Adam's fall from grace meant that men were inherently and perversely wicked.

WINTHROP D. JORDAN
Professor of history

People who demand perfection yet do not expect to achieve it are inevitably condemned to ambivalence about the results.

There were other such experiments in America, but with major differences. The most notable and undeniably successful was Pennsylvania. There William Penn and his fellow Quakers (whom the Puritans hated, partly because they had so much in common) deliberately founded a colony that would welcome all varieties of Protestants.

THE IDEA was a relatively new one, but it led quite directly, as things turned out, to populousness and prosperity even beyond the dreams of the founders. It led also to an even greater novelty-ethnic diversity, a development of such critical importance in all the colonies that it deserves separate attention in another lecture.

MARIN POET'S CORNER

GOLD THIEF

O clumsy bee! with miser's heavy load.
You robbed a squash flower close beside the road.
And unashamed, your pollen fashioned crest
Is no more burdened than your swollen breast
As you fly onward to your sweet abode.
With dreams of well filled hives a pleasant goad.
The time and distance never discommode.
With diligence your life is doubly blest,
O clumsy bee!

Your buzzing industry becomes your code
And summer claims a honeyed episode;
A fruitful harvest yield is half unguessed
While triumph rules with artful trait confessed
In liquid gold concocted a la mode,
O clumsy bee!

CORTE MADERA — MYRTLE ALICE McCARCY

LONELY COYOTE

Through the hush of a desert night desert night
Came a mournful, eerie cry —
A lonely coyote baying his woes
To a frosty, moonlit sky.

"Oh, Little One, are you lost from home,
Were full of the moon that hung above
your kin?
Do you weep for the friends you used to I sing to my friend
up there, in the sky;
For the warmth of your mother's den?"

In the stillness, he turned and looked at me
And grinned, and his yellow eyes
Were full of the moon that hung above
In the wintry, midnight skies.

"Oh, foolish one, I do not weep!
What you heard was a lovely tune —
I sing to my friend up there, in the sky;
I sing to the Man in the Moon!"

Tale Of Espionage Gory

THE RHINEMANN EXCHANGE by Robert Ludlum; Dial, 460 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Well before its appearane in print, Robert Ludlum's "The Rhinemann Exchange" was assured of a secure nook in the best-seller lists by three factors:

1. Its selection for distribution by the Literary Guild.
2. The success of Ludlum's earlier thrillers, "The Matlock Paper" and "The Scarlatti Inheritance."
3. The seemingly insatiable public appetite for spy fiction, particularly when it comes from an author well-known in the genre, and/or when the book is sufficiently thick to separate it from the general run of suspense novels.

"The Rhinemann Exchange" is not really undeserving of the success it is already enjoying. In fact, at least for this reader, it is markedly superior to "The Matlock Paper" that first made Ludlum a name writer.

The time is World War II. An American agent-assassin operating independently in Spain is suddenly withdrawn from there for a new assignment in Buenos Aires. In Argentina, David Spaulding finds he has been drafted as a cog in a ruthless, cynical and ambitious international machine that is trying to pull off a trade between the two warring sides. It is a deal that can further or save the careers of both its U.S. and German exponents. But it is also a deal that can be hideously costly in terms of human lives.

ROBERT LUDLUM
Master of intrigue

Not surprisingly, both sides are willing to pull out all the stops to protect themselves, even if it means the murder of other men, including Spaulding. And there are interested third parties with a stake.

To Ludlum's credit, he does not engage in the cryptic, elliptic narrative style now practiced to excess by some of the best known writers of spy thrillers. His plot, while complicated, is spelled out for the reader all the way, and does not require him to fill in gaps or to make surmises.

But this reader questions what seems to be an excess of sadism and gory detail in Ludlum's story. Perhaps a certain amount of this can be excused and attributed to the cause of realism, but Ludlum seems to lay it on much too thick, leaving his reader bathed in torn flesh and splattered blood.

As to whether one prefers the more cerebral approach of a Le Carre or Deighton, or the hellbent action of Ludlum's novels, that is probably a matter of personal preference.

Apparently both sides have their supporters in goodly numbers, as espionage continues to market well upon the literary marts.

Hollywood Story Lags With B Movie Touch

It's the film industry vs. artistic integrity in Fitzroy Davis' novel of Hollywood in the late 1940s, "Through the Doors of Brass." Though author Davis worked in Hollywood as a screenwriter during the '40s, he has not been able to get much life into his novel. The story is hackneyed, the characters one-dimension, and the writing limp.

There are two main narratives.

The first concerns an aging actress who has bucked the system and hasn't been able to get a job for two years. The second deals with a frustrated director who wants to do a film of artistic merit. Not only are the plot lines weak, but the development of them gets lost among sub-plots and minor characters.

In the cast of minor characters are such recognizable creations as: the helpful friend, the homosexual teen-age idol, the aspiring starlet, the inebriated gossip columnist, the understanding agent, the hen-pecked studio head, and on and on.

Davis' means of character development consists of contrived conversations and full-sentence, uninterrupted thoughts. And each of the characters are presented in the same manner, so that even though we see more of some than of others, none really stands out as being particularly essential to the book.

The novel has no center. The elements of character and plot hold together only through repetition. And the Hollywood setting is no more than a painted backdrop.

Still, in spite of all this, there is something appealing about "Through the Doors of Brass." Reading it is rather like watching an old "B" movie, one that manages, in spite of all, to be somehow entertaining.

Did South Join Union Or Union Join South?

THE AMERICANIZATION OF DIXIE by John Egerton; Harper's Magazine Press, 218 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

Has the South "joined the Union" after its long intransigence, as the title of "The Americanization of Dixie" suggests? Or has the Union joined the South, as suggested by its alternate title, "The Southernization of America?"

Both, suggests author John Egerton, a Georgia-born reporter who has written for Southern Educational Reporting Service and the Race Relations Information Center. The New South has adopted much that is typical of the rest of the nation; but the rest of the nation seems to have adopted attitudes typical of the Old South.

This series of essays in book form suggests that the latter is typical of the rest of the nation; but the rest of the nation seems to have adopted attitudes typical of the Old South.

This series of essays in book form suggests that the latter is typified by Nixon's "southern strategy," by the powerful vote-getting appeal of George Wallace in northern industrial states, and by the rise of anti-busing sentiment among northern parents of school children. And the former may be typified by urban sprawl around southern cities, by Disney World, and by Holiday Inn signs where Spanish moss used to drape cypress limbs.

"So much has changed, and for the better," muses Egerton. "And so much hasn't, and probably won't. And a lot has changed for the worse. We're losing what's worth keeping, and spreading what we ought to lose . . ."

The New South, to this southern author, is not familiar. But for that matter, neither is the New West.

Advertising Business Basis Of Entertaining, Deft Novel

THE ROSEMARY TOUCH by Lois Wyse; Doubleday, 258 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Lee Hopkins.

The advertising business is Rosemary's baby, and this new novel, "The Rosemary Touch" tells how she leaves a big New York agency and starts her own. Author Lois Wyse, herself an experienced creative director, spins a good story which will remind many of the rise of Mary Wells.

In the generic vein of "Hotel" and "Airport," "The Rosemary Touch" tells the reader what advertising agencies are like, a background familiar to this reviewer. While honestly describing the elephantine strainings that bring forth so many mousy commercial messages, the author has the integrity to point out not only the correctives to ineffective and nauseating advertising, but also the formidable obstacles to improvement.

Lois Wyse's writing is crisp and incisive. Her characterizations are excellent, even when handling stock (though universal) figures like the conniving, cloying assistant to the boss. Whether detailing the symbiotic relationship in an advertising agency between the creative people and the up front new business salesman, or day to day operations, the action and interest keep cresting. Unexpected turns of plot in believable context are deftly handled, as if Alistair MacLean had turned his typewriter toward one of these executive shark tanks.

"The Rosemary Touch" is highly recommended. It is a spry, entertaining tale in its own right, and all the better because it skips the foolish cliches and whining paranoia of most advertising novels.

High Rise Fire Makes Hair Raise

THE GLASS INFERNO by Thomas N. Scortia and Frank M. Robinson: Doubleday, 435 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

The horror of a fire raging through a high rise building is recounted in nerve wracking sequence, virtually flame by flame.

The authors capture the human drama with impact through a full gamut of characters, but perhaps more importantly they underscore it with searching thought.

The story has been sold to a movie studio because of its dramatic and scenic value, but one hopes it can gain equal attention for its safety ideas.

Is it same to build a building so tall that a fire department isn't equipped to handle a fire in it?

Should a developer be allowed to deviate from an architect's plans to cut costs and expedite the job?

These are but two of the questions raised by the authors, but events move at such a rapid pace that the story doesn't bog down in such matters.

At some points, the story does slow down in technical descriptions, which are essential to full understanding, but carry the tone of reporting rather than fiction.

While books by two authors lack the personal stamp of an individual author, Scortia and Robinson manage to integrate their work without harm to the story.

Tribes Hard To Chronicle

"Sioux Trail" is a compilation of the known histories of 56 Siouan Indian tribes in North America, from the first chronicles mentioning them until their disappearance.

Many of these tribes were little more than families or family groups. Also, even such a thorough student as John Upton Trrell cannot always be sure whether two different names apply to the same tribe. So in many cases, the chronicle is short, sketchy, and admittedly incomplete and subject to guesswork.

Terrell, however, has done a painstaking research job. His little volume should be of inestimable value to students of the American Indian seeking to identify tribes and groupings. And since various Siouan tribes, during the course of their known history, ranged over much of the United States, the study provides clues for researchers in most regions.

Their ultimate contest with one of the giants in the realm of supermoney will keep you on edge till the conclusion.

A Guide For Listening To Music

By WILBUR G. LANDREY

The best way for the layman to learn about the music he enjoys is to listen to it with an intelligent guide explaining something of what the composer intended and how his music fits into the overall musical tradition.

Vanguard-Bach Guild is trying to make the whole thing more systematic and coherent with a "Historical Anthology of Music" on records at budget prices.

The first 11 have just been released.

MARTIN BERNSTEIN, professor emeritus of music, Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, New York University, has performed the difficult task of classifying the anthology by period and category.

The program notes are better than most-knowledgeable and relevant without being overly dull and stuffy. The packaging is attractive.

Most of all, the performances are generally excellent. A real bargain. The first to be issued are:

THE MUSIC OF Nicola Vincentino, Italian Madrigals from the late Renaissance performed by the Jaye Consort of Viols and the Academia Monteverdiana Consort (HM 34 SD).

Purcell's Ode for St. Cecilia's Day performed by the Ambrosian Singers and the Kalmar Chamber Orchestra (HM 33).

Bach's Four Concerti for Organ played by Anton Heiller (HM 35 SD). Anton Heiller (HM 35 SD).

Vivaldi's L'Estero Armonico, the 12 concerti grossi complete on three records played by the Chamber Orchestra of the Vienna State Opera (HM 37-38-39 SD).

Rameau's Pieces de Clavecin en Concert played by Gustav Leonhardt Nicolaus Harnoncourt and Lars Fryden (HM 36).

The Virtuoso Oboe, concertos by Mozart, Handel and Albinoni played by Andre Lardrot (HM 40 SD).

Haydn's quartets Opus 71, played by The Griller String Quartet (HM 41 SD).

Haydn's quartets Opus 74 also played by the Griller (HM 42 SD).

Boccherini's Quintet No. 2 for Guitar and Strings in C Major and String Quintet in E Major (HM 43 SD).

THERE ARE FADS and movements in classical music just as in anything else and they influence and are influenced by the releases of classical records.

Mahler was rescued from near oblivion this way, and in the past year, there has been a lot of Chopin and Rachmaninoff around.

Vivaldi has been very fashionable for several years, and for some reason there has been a spate of records over the past few months. Here is a partial listing of the recent Vivaldi offerings from my pile of review records.

The four concertos for two orchestras played by the soloist group of Milan and Brussels conducted by Angelo Ephrikian (Das Alte Werke Sawt 9600A) — This import is one of the more interesting since it is the only recording of these concertos in the current catalogue.

The Four Seasons played by Yoshio Uano and the NHK String Ensemble (Odyssey Y32884) — These first four concertos of Vivaldi's Opus 8 are the most frequently performed and recorded of all Baroque masterpieces. An excellent sound and performance from Japan.

Zuckerman Plays and Conducts Vivaldi Concerts — Opus 8 in all contained 12 concertos and the last eight are seldom recorded. Having done the Four Seasons sometime ago, the young Israeli violinist-conductor continues with the other eight on two separate records. (Columbia M 32693 and M 32840).

Stevie Wonder Ends First Phase of Career

By ROBIN WELLES

Stevie Wonder's new LP on Motown's Tamla label, "Fulfillingness' First Finale," has been described as the closing chapter of the first phase of Stevie's musical career.

And what a career it has been! Stevie is living proof of the old proverb — when one door closes another opens. He has been unable to see from birth but it seems inaccurate to call him blind — he has such musical insights and "Innervisions" that he must have perceptions denied to most of us.

STEVIE broke into the music business when he was only 10. His singing, harmonica and piano playing and his virtuoso performance on the drums quickly enlisted an army of fans for Little Stevie Wonder, as he called himself then.

Today, having survived a near-fatal car crash, his talent has matured and his is a story of success on many levels. He has had a consistent flow of hit records with 14 going over the million-dollar mark and three becoming platinum records — sales over one million units.

And to top all that, he was awarded five Grammies this year. He is acknowledged to be one of the most important song writers in today's music scene by experts in this country and abroad, and has gone into producing. "Stevie Wonder Presents Syreeta" is an example of his diversified musical talents.

If "Fulfillingness' First Finale" is the closing chapter in Book One of Wonder's development, it is an exciting way to call a time out. There isn't a mediocre cut on the album. Among the best of the Wonder tunes is "Boogie on Reggae Woman," whose infectious rhythms make it a sure bet to hit the top of the singles chart. And you'll be happy to know Stevie's funky harp playing hasn't lost a beat since his "Fingertips" days. "You Haven't Done Nothin'," a great tune with the Jackson 5 backing Stevie on the vocals, has overtones of "Superstition" — what nicer thing can you say of a tune? "Too Shy to Say" is a showcase for Stevie's keyboard wizardry.

"Heaven Is 10 Zillion Light Years Away" is another great cut and the words must express Wonder's philosophy but one line has to be wrong — "Why must my color black make me a lesser man?" For Wonder has transcended color, blindness and trauma — and everyone hopes that he picks upon Phase Two of his career soon.

NOTES OF A BROWSING BOOKMAN

Can anyone else lighten your burden in that time of wrenching grief that comes after you have lost a loved one?

Writer Isabella Taves believes she can.

Miss Taves, known for her earlier book, "Women Alone," and for her syndicated column, offers her common sense counsel in "Love Must Not Be Wasted," published by Thomas Y. Crowell at $6.95.

She advises the bereaved reader to face his or her pain steadily and patiently, not denying the fact of death, and yet continuing to savor life. "Love should not be wasted," she entitles one key chapter. And she advises: "I still believe that finding a new romance, becoming richly involved with another person, is the most wonderful thing that can happen. But marriage without love isn't marriage; it's a cage . . . Life is too short to waste on anything that is less than exciting, challenging, rewarding."

Her book deals with a painful subject, but does so with a kind of practicality that is also tempered with compassion.

Sleuths & Suspense

GOOD-BYE TO BUDAPEST by Jeannette Eyerly; Lippincott, 157 pages, $5.50. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

A major offense of this suspense novel is the insufficient notice that it is intended for the young adult (meaning early teens) audience, and particularly for girls.

Once one gets into the novel, it becomes apparent that it is not adult reading fare, but by then the unwary might well have invested her $5.50.

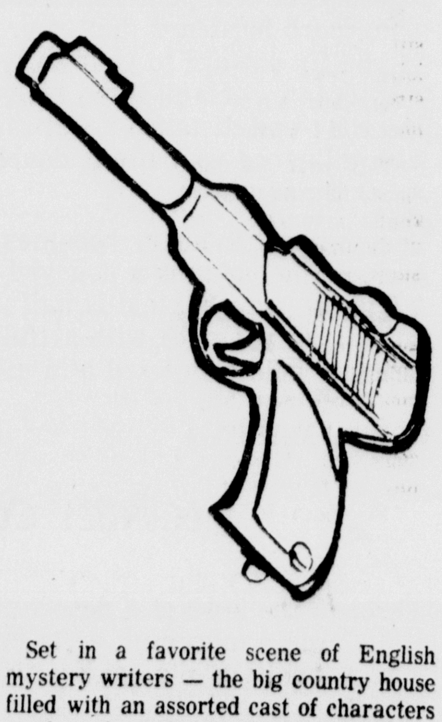
Young Megan is summoned, somewhat mysteriously, to join her American scientist father behind the Iron Curtain in Budapest where he is attending a conference. Once there, Megan learns that her father is being pressured by the Communists for information that he holds in his head. Then her parent vanishes, and Megan finds herself alone in a strange city, her only ally a mysterious young man whose own behavior is somewhat erratic.

For the young readers for which the novel is intended, the book should hold considerable appeal and excitement, although the more "sophisticated" among them may find characters and situations superficial.

APPLEBY'S OTHER STORY by Michael Innes; Dodd, Mead & Co., 192 pages, $4.95; reviewed by Mary Leydecker.

Michael Innes is really an English professor named J. I. M. Stewart, and while his clever mysteries do not take erudition very seriously, classical and literary allusions abound.

It's all fun, though, and the latest book, whose title is still a mystery at the end of story, is as entertaining as the others in the series.



Set in a favorite scene of English mystery writers — the big country house filled with an assorted cast of characters — the tale includes all the proper elements.

There are the perfect butler (and his stupid wife), an eminent surgeon, a capable male secretary, a ne'er-do-well son who's been in Argentina, a shady lady and another one that's too good to be believed. Then there is the master of the house — recently dead in a rather unpleasant manner — and his wife, who like her late spouse, spends lots of time in bedroom fun and games.

There are also some very valuable paintings (a Goya for starters) and an unethical art dealer.

Star of the show, though, is Sir John Appleby ("that greatest of detectives") who quotes poetry while sleuthing. Even if the ending is more than usually incredible, it's all fun.

Baja A Unique Trip

By RICK ORLOV

A visit to the peninsula which makes up Baja California, Mexico, is a unique experience.

Baja could never be called a pretty country. It is a vast land — forbidding and desolate.

It is sparsely populated with only about a million persons living in an area larger than Italy.

FOR THE tourist it does not have the large 'uxurious resorts of Mexico City or Acapulco. The only "real" tourist spots are at the southern tip around La Paz.

Most who visit Baja do so for the attractions it holds to campers and fishermen.

Yet, recently, more and more persons are learning about Baja and are coming to visit — especially with the completion of the transpeninsular highway.

The highway, known either as Carretera Numero Uno or the Benito Juarez Highway, runs more than 1,000 miles from Tijuana to Cabo San Lucas.

IT WAS completed in December, 1973, and opened up Baja to those who did not own the four-wheel-drive vehicle which was needed to cross the country.

And, to make it even easier for tourists, the Mexican national government has undertaken an ambitious effort to provide accommodations along the way.

Gasoline stations are interspersed about every 100 miles along the highway. In only one spot a person has to drive about 200 miles before being able to refuel.

In addition, a chain of hotels has been constructed along the highway by the government's Nacional Hotelera.

FIVE HOTELS from Ensenada to San Ignacio have been opened and several others are being planned.

La Pinta Hotel in Ensenada is the largest of the chain in Baja and the only one which is not new. It was purchased by Nacional Hotelera and refurnished.

All the other hotels — in San Quintin, Guerrero Negro, Santa Ines and San Ignacio — are new and look practically identical.

The largest of the four is in San Quintin, where there are 60 rooms. It opened in July and, as of mid-August, had not yet opened several planned shops in the hotel.

In each of the other hotels there are between 28 and 30 rooms.

THE ELPRESIDENTE Hotel in Guerrero Negro is attempting to make somewhat of a comeback following a rash of bad publicity after it first opened.

A government spokesman explained officials rushed to open the hotel before all cooking equipment was installed and all cooking was done on outdoor-type stoves. Also, work was still proceeding on the hotel when it was visited by a group of travel writers, who criticized the facilities.

Rates at all the hotels range from $22 to $28 a night.

Trailer parks are adjacent to each hotel to accommodate campers, and airplane landing strips are near each facility for private pilots.

In addition, the hotel chain has plans to start its own charter airline operation in the United States to bring visitors to the hotels.

A 17-PASSENGER Beechcraft 90 will be used for the charter operation, which will be called El Presidente to tie in with the name of most of the hotels in the chain.

Additional airplanes will be added as needed.

Cost of the charter is expected to be comparable to commercial airlines.

However, costs are expected to vary depending on whether a package tour is available and the number of persons on a flight.

Backpacking Gaining In Popularity As Activity For Whole Family

By DAVID JORDAN

Backpacking has enjoyed tremendous growth in popularity with the recent surge back to nature of millions of Americans.

It has evolved into an activity for the entire family, and backpackers have even acquired their own lingo, not to mention a mountain of equipment and supplies.

BACKPACKING can be a rewarding and enjoyable adventure or a traumatic disaster, depending upon the preparation. All beginners start out having to purchase the basics: boots, backpack and sleeping bag. These essentials should cost you no more than about $150.

Even if your budget is extra tight, this isn't the place to skimp. If money is the problem, wait for the late fall sales when many items are reduced for winter clearance.

Get boots that give you good ankle support, have lugged soles and are especially recommended for trail, not mountain climbing use. A good pair of boots will cost you about $25 to $35.

Always wear two pairs of socks, cotton next to the skin, then wool, for a comfortable fit. To avoid a great deal of discomfort, make sure your boots are well broken-in before you use them for a day on the trail.

RUCKSACKS and frameless day packs are all right for day hikes and light-load overnighters, but if you intend to do much backpacking, you'll need a pack-frame-bag combination. Most have a lightweight aluminum frame, a nylon bag with outside pockets and a padded wrist strap to transfer the load from your shoulders to your hips. You buy the frame to fit your frame. Day packs sell for about $15 and for a frame pack expect to pay anywhere from $30 to $60.

Buy a sleeping bag for the coldest climate and the highest altitude you expect to encounter. Usually this means a lightweight down model, but the new second generation polyesters are also worth looking into. Ask a salesperson to explain details of design, construction and loft before you buy. An average down bag will cost about $60 or $70.

UNLESS you intend to venture into mountain or backcountry areas where wind, rain or severe temperatures are common, you can probably get along with a simple polyethylene tarp or tube tent for shelter. If you do need a tent, always select as light a one as possible.

Backpacking combines nicely with river floating, wilderness portaging, or just plain on-water fishing, thanks to the new inflatable rafts that mount on backpacks.

A typical backpack boat weighs slightly over four pounds and has a carrying capacity of up to 200 pounds. Deflated, it fits in a lightweight nylon stuff bag and ties to a pack frame. Kits generally contain a foot pump, maintenance materials, and a packable paddle that comes apart. The prices range from about $20 to $30.

An enjoyable outing depends upon comfort. But comfort on the trail depends upon more than just a well-trodden path in attractive environs: it depends upon good quality equipment that fits you well.

Nothing Bum About Boats

The fact that Bahamians call the glass-bottomed, sight-seeing craft so popular with Nassau and Paradise Island visitors, bumboats, does not imply any lack of safety. The boats, which transport vacationers to the Sea Gardens for "in-depth" looks at fish and coral formations, are comfortable and highly stable.

ONE OF THE REASONS why Nova Scotia attracts tourists is its quiet and picturesque coves such as Hackett's Cove on St. Margaret's Bay, a 30-minute drive from Halifax.

Maritime Provinces

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

Campers who are planning ahead for next year should consider a trip to the maritime provinces of Canada.

Both New Brunswick and Nova Scotia offer a seemingly unending show of scenic beauty, the people are friendly and the camping facilities leave almost nothing to be desired.

NOVA SCOTIA may be reached by ferry from the Maine cities of Portland and Bar Harbor and from St. John in New Brunswick. The ferry trip from Saint John to Digby, Nova Scotia, is the shortest and least expensive and is recommended to families with a tight budget.

Round trips by ferry can knock a big hole in the budget, so the most practical way to enjoy a camping tour of the provinces is to go overland in one direction and return by ferry on the way back.

Enter New Brunswick at Calais, Maine, and take Highway One to Saint John, an interesting city with a fine historical heritage which includes camping facilities at Rockwood Park.

Follow Highway One and Two to Moncton, and while there ride uphill with your engine in neutral on Magnetic Hill. The hill, reached by a dirt road, is a major tourist attraction. It is said to be an optical illusion, but the ride is an interesting experience.

FROM Moncton the camper can enter Nova Scotia at Tidnish and follow the Sunrise Trail which winds along the coast of the Northumberland Strait to New Glasgow and Antigonish. There are several good campgrounds along the Sunrise Trail. Antigonish is the gateway to Cape Breton, wehre the Cabot Trail gives the camper the most magnificent scenery in Nova Scotia.

If the weather is good, the camper may wish to linger a few days along the Cabot Trail. There are more than a dozen parks and campsites along the trail, which will give the visitor time to relax and enjoy the scenic beaches and panoramic overviews.

Those who have circled the Cabot Trail recommend a drive in a counter clockwise direction, entering at Baddeck. There are campsites in the vicinity, and if the weather is rainy, the camper can postpone the trip and go from Baddeck to Sydney and then to Louisbourg, where the massive Louis XV's fortress has been restored.

TRAVEL PAGE

There is an excellent campsite only a few miles from Baddeck along this route, which features a view of the Seal Island Bridge and a towering escarpment at the rear of the campground.

AFTER completing the tour of the Cabot Trail, the camper may return to Antigonish and take the Marine Trail to Halifax. At Antigonish, the Marine Trail is Highway Seven and it provides a view of rolling hills and lakes until it reaches Liscomb, where it meanders along the Atlantic Ocean to Halifax.

There are many photogenic coves along the way. Only a few campsites are on this route, but they are picturesque.

After visiting Halifax, the camper can follow scenic Highway Three to Yarmouth. One of the must stops along this route, if only for an inspection tour, is Craves Island Park, a provincial campground which presents to the viewer a fantastic overlook on the Atlantic Ocean. There are no electric hookups, flush toilets or showers but the scenery and serenity compensate for the inconveniences.

It is an ideal campground, one of the most beautiful in North America, for campers with self-sufficient recreational vehicles.

IF THE camper does not want to go to Yarmouth, he can cut across the province and drive through the Annapolis Valley to Digby, where the ferry ride to Saint John takes less than three hours.

Nova Scotia is worth a long trip. The province is protected by the Gulf Stream and the weather is mild.

Catalina Island Has Relaxed Fall Season

Most persons think of Catalina Island as strictly a summer vacation spot.

Not true!

The fall and early winter on the island still provide a pleasant and enjoyable island retreat, clear air, uncluttered streets, and a relaxed atmosphere reminiscent of the past.

"This year Catalina enjoyed a very successful summer," says Mrs. Marvelle Hobbs, manager of the Avalon Chamber of Commerce. "It was Catalina's best summer in the past 24 years.

"NOW THAT the summer months are gone, we still find that many visitors are coming to the island. What's the difference between summer and fall-winter?

"Very little as far as the island itself is concerned. Of course, we have less visitors, but there is no "off season."

"For example, every single one of the tours we have in the summer operate year round, except the flying fish tour. They, like the swallows at Capistrano, head south toward warmer waters in mid-September.

"But every other tour — including the three and three-quarter hour inland tour of the island — operate year-round. Of course, it is a reduced schedule, but every tour is available every day unless cancelled by bad weather.

"CATALINA now has the finest transportation system we've had in more than 20 years. For example, Long Beach-Catalina Cruises provides regularly-scheduled daily morning and afternoon departures all year long with their 700-passenger Long Beach King and 500-passenger Long Beach Prince, and they also have a Friday evening departure at 7 p.m.

They are the only boats with departures regularly scheduled morning and afternoon.

"Almost all of our motels and hotels remain open in fall and winter — with one or two exceptions," she adds. "Approximately 80 per cent of our businesses stay open year-round; almost all of the restaurants are open; a few gift shops close; the casino museum is open daily until Nov. 3, and weekends after that.

"The weather? In the fall, it is usually great! We don't really get any bad weather until well into the winter time — of course, soon as I say that, maybe we'll get an early winter, but normally it is very pleasant until around December."

Mrs. Hobbs looked out of her office on the Catalina pleasure pier, and noted a few couples strolling up Crescent Avenue. "That man is a business executive with offices on Wilshire Blvd., and look at his clothes — jeans and a sweat shirt. He stopped in to my office the other day during mid-week for some information, and said he used to go to Hawaii to really relax. Three years ago, he came to Cataline Island in October, and he hasn't been back to Hawaii since."

Switch Annuals To Perennials

By EARL ARONSON

Before cool weather puts an end to your outdoor gardening you can prolong the life of some annuals, practically making them perennials.

To do this, carefully transplant your garden favorites into pots or boxes, take them indoors and place them under high-energy plant-growth lamps.

THEY will flourish indoors, as some of ours do, and be ready for replacement in the garden in the early spring after frost danger has passed. This means you'll have gained a few weeks in the growing cycle and will have flowers long before your neighbors.

There are a few ground rules, as it were, in moving plants indoors:

1. Sterilize the soil to avoid flying pests in the home. This may be done by baking the soil for an hour or so in a hot oven. A handful of peat moss tossed in later replaces organic matter in the soil that has been oxidized.

2. WHEN your plants are potted and under the lights, feed and water them a bit more than plants that depend on daylight. The reason for this is that special plant-growth lamps speed growth, and this means more food and water are consumed than if the plant were growing under standard energy sources.

GARDEN PAGE

3. The length of time the lights should be on depends on the plants you are raising. Plants that bloom in early spring or late fall are "short day" plants and will be satisfied with six to eight hours of light daily. Long-day plants — those that bloom in mid-summer — will need 12 to 16 hours of energy from your fluorescent lamp.

4. Be sure to take a good ball of earth with the roots in bringing your plants indoors. This will insure continued growth.

THERE are about 700 species of poisonous plants growing in the United States and Canada, many commonly found near homes, according to expert Dr. John Kingsbury.

Dr. Kingsbury estimates that 12,000 children consume innocent-looking poisonous plants annually, which often results in complications, sometimes in death.

Poisonous plants may grow anywhere, says Dr. Mitchell R. Zavon, president of the American Association of Poison Control Centers, who cautions:

"It is essential for children and adults to understand the dangers involved in eating plants, especially those they are not familiar with. All plants near the home and classroom should be identified in every way to make sure they are not poisonous.

IF there are poisonous plants growing where children may explore, it would be advisable to rid the area of such potential dangers. Controlled application of chemical herbicides will effectively minimize the danger of poisonous plants safely and efficiently."

Recommended: Identify each plant in and around the house; keep poisonous plants out of reach of children; do not use unknown plants as a source of food; destroy unwanted poisonous plants.

Symptoms of plant poisoning may occur as long as six to 15 hours after ingestion. If plant poisoning is suspected, do not rely on home remedies. Call a doctor immediately.

Tulip Tops List Of Easy-To-Grow

By BILL MEACHEM

Every winter I teach a course in gardening for adults in the local high school. Most of my students are new homeowners and invariably someone will ask me what is the easiest flower to grow.

Topping the list of easy-to-grow plants, I feel, is the tulip.

The tulip is grown from a bulb that must be planted in the fall. Most of the tulip bulbs that are sold are grown in Holland where the soil and climate are the best in the world for producing the bulbs.

A tulip bulb is really one of the wonders of nature. Inside the tulip bulb the tiny plant is already formed. If a bulb is sliced in half, tucked down in the middle you can even see the miniature flower.

MOST OF the bulb is made up of stored food which the tiny plant draws on for its growth. Actually, then, when you plant a tulip you are primarily just providing the proper growing conditions, you don't actually have to "grow" it as you would a marigold, tomato or petunia.

As all plants have their own "personalities," so does the tulip. One of the traits of the tulip is that it must have a cold period of several months before it will flower.

This is why the bulb must be planted in the fall so that it gets its cold period naturally over winter. (I have seen tulip bulbs offered for sale in spring. These are surely leftovers from fall and if they flower when planted in spring it would be a miracle. Don't waste your money by buying tulips in spring.

PLANTING is simple. Just dig a hole 6 inches deep, drop in the bulb — pointed end up — and cover with soil. Nature does the rest. One word of caution, though: if the weather is dry in the fall, water the tulips after planting. The bulb is a living thing and if it dries out it will not survive.

Tulips need no fertilizer. In fact, they resent a lot of fertilizer, especially animal manures. They don't need fertilizer because all the food necessary for their spring growth is already stored in the bulb. About the only thing necessary for tulip growth is a soil that drains well. This means that the day after a rain the ground should not be soggy wet. In a wet soil the tulip bulb may rot.

There are several thousand different tulips sold today. These varieties (or cultivars) fall into different classes. Each of the classes has a different blooming period and flower shape. The earliest blooming are the "species" which are among the first of all flowers to bloom in the spring.

Some of these have small flowers on short stems, but some — like Red Emperor — have tremendous flowers on rather tall stems.

THE TRADITIONAL tulip-shaped kinds include the Cottage, Mendel and the most spectacular of all, the Darwin. Most of these bloom in May, which is the traditional tulip month in the North.

But there are other tulips with distinctly different flower shapes. The doubles are a full flower and resemble the garden peony. Then there are those with long, thin petals and resemble the lily flower. These are called, naturally, lily-flowered tulips. Parrot tulips are most exotic. These flowers are streaked with green and have feathered edges. Indeed, they do resemble the coloring and plumage of a parrot.

Unlike many other flowers, tulips will do well in both sun and shade. In shady locations the flowers may appear a few days later, but they will last longer. Also, tulips can be left in the ground undisturbed where they will come up again the following spring.

One caution, though: if you leave them in the ground don't remove the foliage in spring until it has completely turned brown and died down. This assures you that a new bulb has formed.

In the South tulip planting should be delayed. Plant around Thanksgiving and select a shady, cool spot. Before planting store the bulbs in the refrigerator crisper. This helps you give them the cold treatment.

Plant Trees For Touch Of Autumn

There is a certain nostalgia that only autumn with its rustling breezes, balmy but crisp air and shorter days, brings. Nothing marks the transition to winter more than fall's brilliant colors.

For a touch of fall in your yard, the California Association of Nurserymen suggests planting at least two deciduous trees. There is a good selection of trees available now to "paint" your fall landscape.

THE GINKGO, or maidenhair tree is a living relic whose ancestors date back millions of years — to prehistoric times. Its fan-shaped leathery green spring leaves turn a lovely shade of buttery autumn yellow. If you decide to plant a ginkgo in your garden, be sure to plant a male tree. Female trees bear a fruit that has a very obnoxious odor.

American sweet gum (Liquidambar styraciflua) is another fall favorite. Growing to 60 ft. tall, its loose-open form displays an autumn color show of yellows and reds. Even in areas where fall is a warm extension of summer, the Sweet Gum will tint the town to tell of fall's arrival.

A favorite deciduous fruit tree among California's gardeners is the Japanese persimmon. After its yellow to burnt orangish red fall leaves drop, sweet scarlet fruits remain to be eaten and enjoyed. Planting the persimmon in a deep rich soil and fertilizing regularly will give you a good fruit crop in November. In spring the persimmon's dark green, leathery leaves appear.

The Chinese pistache (pistacia chinensis) is another colorful choice for fall. This tree, a native to China, grows to between 40 and 60 ft. and displays handsome rich orange and red fall colors. The pistache performs best where summers are long and hot.

THE GREEN THUMBERS AND THEIR PROBLEMS

BY JAMES J. MURPHY

Q. This spring our 2-year-old apricot tree produced about two dozen apricots that were dry inside. Now the last two months the leaves are drying out and falling, especially in the center branches. The ground around the tree seems to be solid. I water it every day, sometimes twice. How can I soften the ground?

A. When a tree is properly planted, the water penetrates the soil very easily. No tree should be watered daily or twice a day. Construct a basin and fill with water once a week during the warm months, less when the weather is cold. Use a soil conditioner to improve the porosity of hard soil. Excessive water spoils the fruit.

Q. We have seen our neighbors use a machine that shreds leaves and all sorts of garden debris. Is such a machine worth while?

A. The cost of prepared planter mixes is forcing gardeners to eliminate their use. Models of the machines for home use are now available and a good investment. A few large deciduous tree prunings in the fall will furnish enough material to mulch the garden for a year with very little effort.

Q. Can chlordane be sprayed on the soil to control ants and earwigs? Is it safe to use on all types of plants? How long should one application last?

A. Chlordane is very effective in controlling crawling insects and may be used in all parts of the garden. Read the label before using. After applying, observe the garden for signs of insect activity for repeat application.

Q. Our fruit trees produced very little fruit this past season. How can we improve the production for next year's crop? When should the tree be fed?

A. Weather plays a very important role in fruit production. Deciduous trees have required dormant periods. This varies with different species. Warm winters do not allow the rest needed for good fruit production. Feed the trees in March and September with a complete plant food.

Q. Our bird of paradise formed seed for the first time. Will these seeds grow and produce new plants? How should they be planted?

A. Use a small box and half planter mix and half coarse, clean sand. Sow the seed and cover with sand. Place in a warm location. The seed germinates very slowly. After the second leaf appears, pot in small pots until the root system is well established. Plant in a sunny location.

Mother Nature Takes Her Time

Did you ever wonder how long it would take nature to recycle some modern containers?

If you dropped a soft drink can in the woods where it would not be touched except by the air, rain, snow, natural mulch and sunlight, it would probably be completely degraded by the year 2473, according to Pennsylvania State University.

The steel or tin in the can would probably have returned to rusty dust by 2073, but not the aluminum components.

Dr. Edwin L. Owen, a metallurgist, also figures:

A conventional plastic wrapper similarly exposed would return to nature by about 2200; a glass bottle might disintegrate — or might not — by the year 1,001,972.

Decay rates vary considerably with local conditions; thus trash strewn in a tropical rain forest would break up faster since moisture and heat speed the recycling process.

THE WEEKLY CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week.

✓October is a good month to plant perennial seedlings for bloom next spring and summer.

✓Tuberous begonias which are still in bloom should be fed with liquid fish. As these summer delights fade, replace them with cyclamen, which will provide winter color.

✓Bait for snails and slugs. The cooler weather stirs them to new activity in the garden.

✓Don't overlook ranunculus and anemones when shopping in nurseries for bulbs to brighten your garden next spring.

Harvesting Of Garden Brings A Supply For Freezing, Canning

By PETER TONGE

One morning recently as my family and I were about to take off for a five-day trip, I strolled around the garden in Weymouth, Mass., to see that everything was in good shape before I left.

It was, particularly the corn, and that dismayed me somewhat. You see it was all maturing at about the same time. Most of the ears were ready for picking and if left would be past their best by the time we returned.

THERE was nothing else we could do but harvest them then and there. A good many disappeared at the lunch table and my wife froze the rest. All this effort meant we left home close to two hours later than we intended. But with something like three dozen ears of corn in the freezer it was time well spent.

As people who go in for gardening soon learn, growing crops is one thing, seeing the produce doesn't go to waste is another. As my wife commented the other day: "The trouble with us is that we have too much food."

What she meant of course was that the garden was producing a good deal more than we could consume on a day-to-day basis. Thank goodness then for the freezer, the art of canning, and the rediscovery of some old-time methods of winter storage. They help to spread the summer surpluses through the leaner months of winter.

Certain surveys suggest that buying a freezer is a questionable investment; that unless you are very wise in your food purchases you may not end up stretching the food dollar at all. That simply doesn't apply to the home gardener.

SOME FRIENDS of ours who moved out of state a few months ago sold us their chest-type freezer for a song. But even if we had bought it brand new it would have been worthwhile.

Right now it is loaded with zucchini, cabbage, beans (green and wax), peaches, corn of course, and other garden goodies.

What little space currently remains is rapidly being filled up with tomatoes.

"I suppose," someone said to me the other day, "that you have tomatoes running out of your ears right now." We have, but fortunately my wife has picked up a few freezing tricks that help a lot.

WE ALWAYS include plum tomatoes in our garden plans. They are heavy yielders and you can't beat them for cooking. We store more of these than any others.

In freezing them my wife simply cuts them in half and places them on a cookie sheet for freezing. Once frozen they are thrown into a plastic bag, like so many clunking pieces of marble.

This way the tomatoes don't freeze together in one solid mass and can be removed, a few at a time, as the need arises. You can do the same thing with big eating tomatoes by cutting them into thick slices.

The other day we boiled up a whole batch of tomatoes until they began to thicken somewhat. Then we put them through a Foley food mill to remove the skins and most of the seeds. The resultant puree was frozen into cubes in a standard ice tray and then stored in plastic bags.

Right now we're contemplating canning. With an all but full freezer what else can we do? It takes a little effort but, says a friend accomplished in the art, "any shelf will do for storage."

TO THIS end we are reading up on the subject, indeed on all phases of preservation. A good book we have got hold of is "stocking Up" (Rodale Press) by the staff of Organic Gardening and Farming magazine. One storage idea I particularly like is a storage area made out of hay bales.

Ohio gardener John Krill makes a hollow square or rectangle with one layer of hay bales. The produce — potatoes, onions, cabbage, peas, apples, pears etc. — are then placed in the hollow center and a lid of hay bales placed on top.

The hay, a great insulator, keeps the produce just above freezing even in cold Ohio.

Many folks are successful using mound storage. This simply means putting the produce in some dry leaves or straw and covering them with more straw. A thick layer of soil goes on next, covered by plastic or tar paper and boards to keep it waterproof.

SOME FOLKS suggest ventilating these mounds by pushing a pipe through the top. Remember, though, always cover the pipe during freezing weather.

And there are many other ideas too . . . like taking a garbage can and sinking it into the ground to form an inexpensive root cellar.

Time For Cool Crops

Fall is the time to start planting your cool season vegetable garden. Many of you avid vegetable gardeners already know that cool season crops such as broccoli, cauliflower, lettuce, carrots, brussels sprouts and turnips can be planted now to provide your family with tasty vegetable dishes through spring.

Cool season crops are the ones whose immature flowers (such as broccoli and cauliflower), leaves (lettuce and spinach), or roots (like carrots and turnips) we harvest. Fall and winter's cool and shorter days prompt the development of these plant parts that we are so fond of.

FOR THOSE of you who are novices to "home farming" the California Association of Nurserymen offers a few basic suggestions on the cultural care of winter vegetables:

Most cool season crops grow well in a relatively shallow soil. In fall, the soil is warm and dry which makes it easy to cultivate and work.

When preparing the ground for your winter vegetable crops turn it over to a depth of 8 to 10 inches. Next, mix in about two inches of well composted organic material and balanced fertilizer. (No cheating . . . be sure to work compost and fertilizer into the 8 to 10 inches of soil. Like a cake all ingredients must be mixed well for good results).

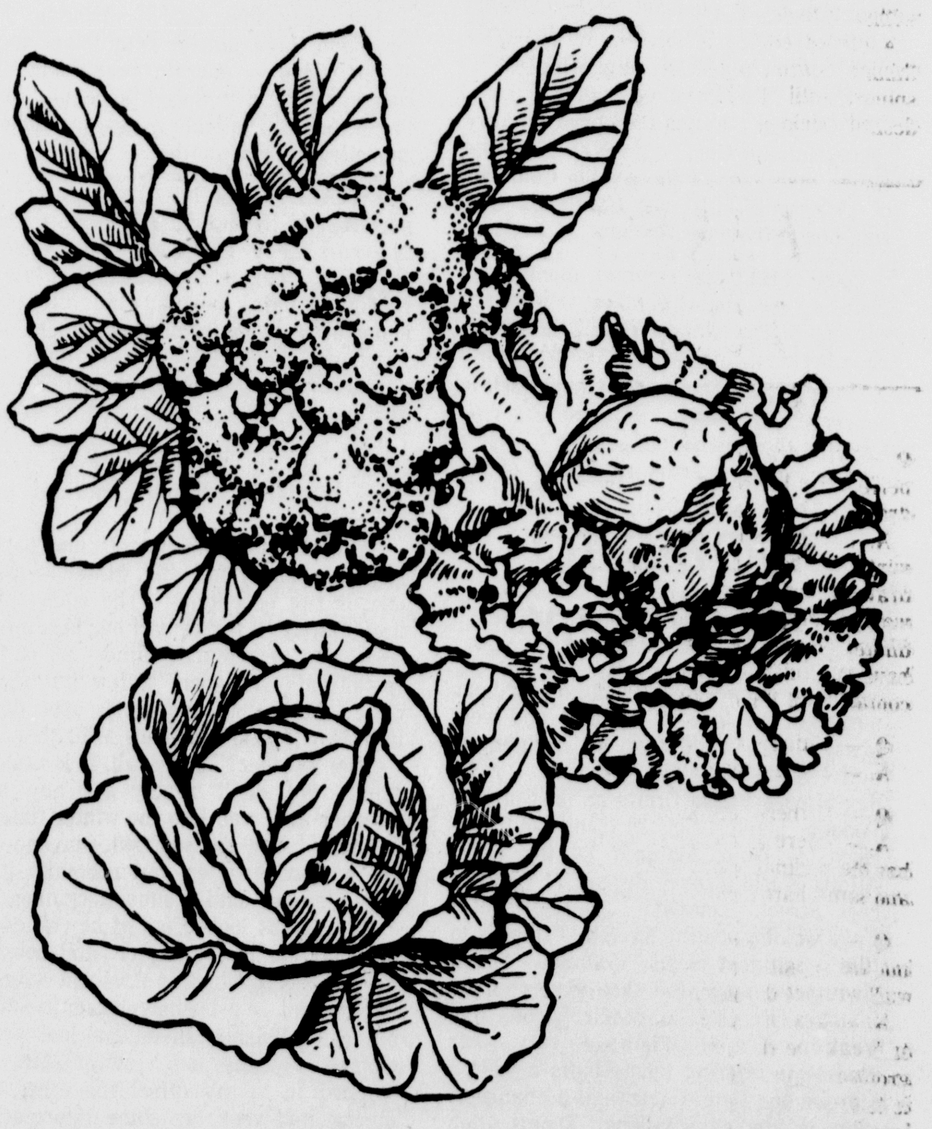
Winter vegetables may be planted now from seed flats or by seeds. When sowing seeds, a good rule to follow is to plant them three times as deep as the diameter of the individual seed.

ONCE YOUR vegetables start growing, be sure to keep weeds under control. Pesty weeds will inevitably be creeping into your vegetables' growing area. Hoeing the top one-half of soil will be sufficient to decapitate those unwanted additions to your crops. If you tend to weeds as they appear, the "Arm Strong" method of pulling weeds will work well — simply bend down and pull them as they appear.

How much rain you receive in your area will determine how often you should fertilize. Your local nurseryman can guide you on the proper amount to apply.

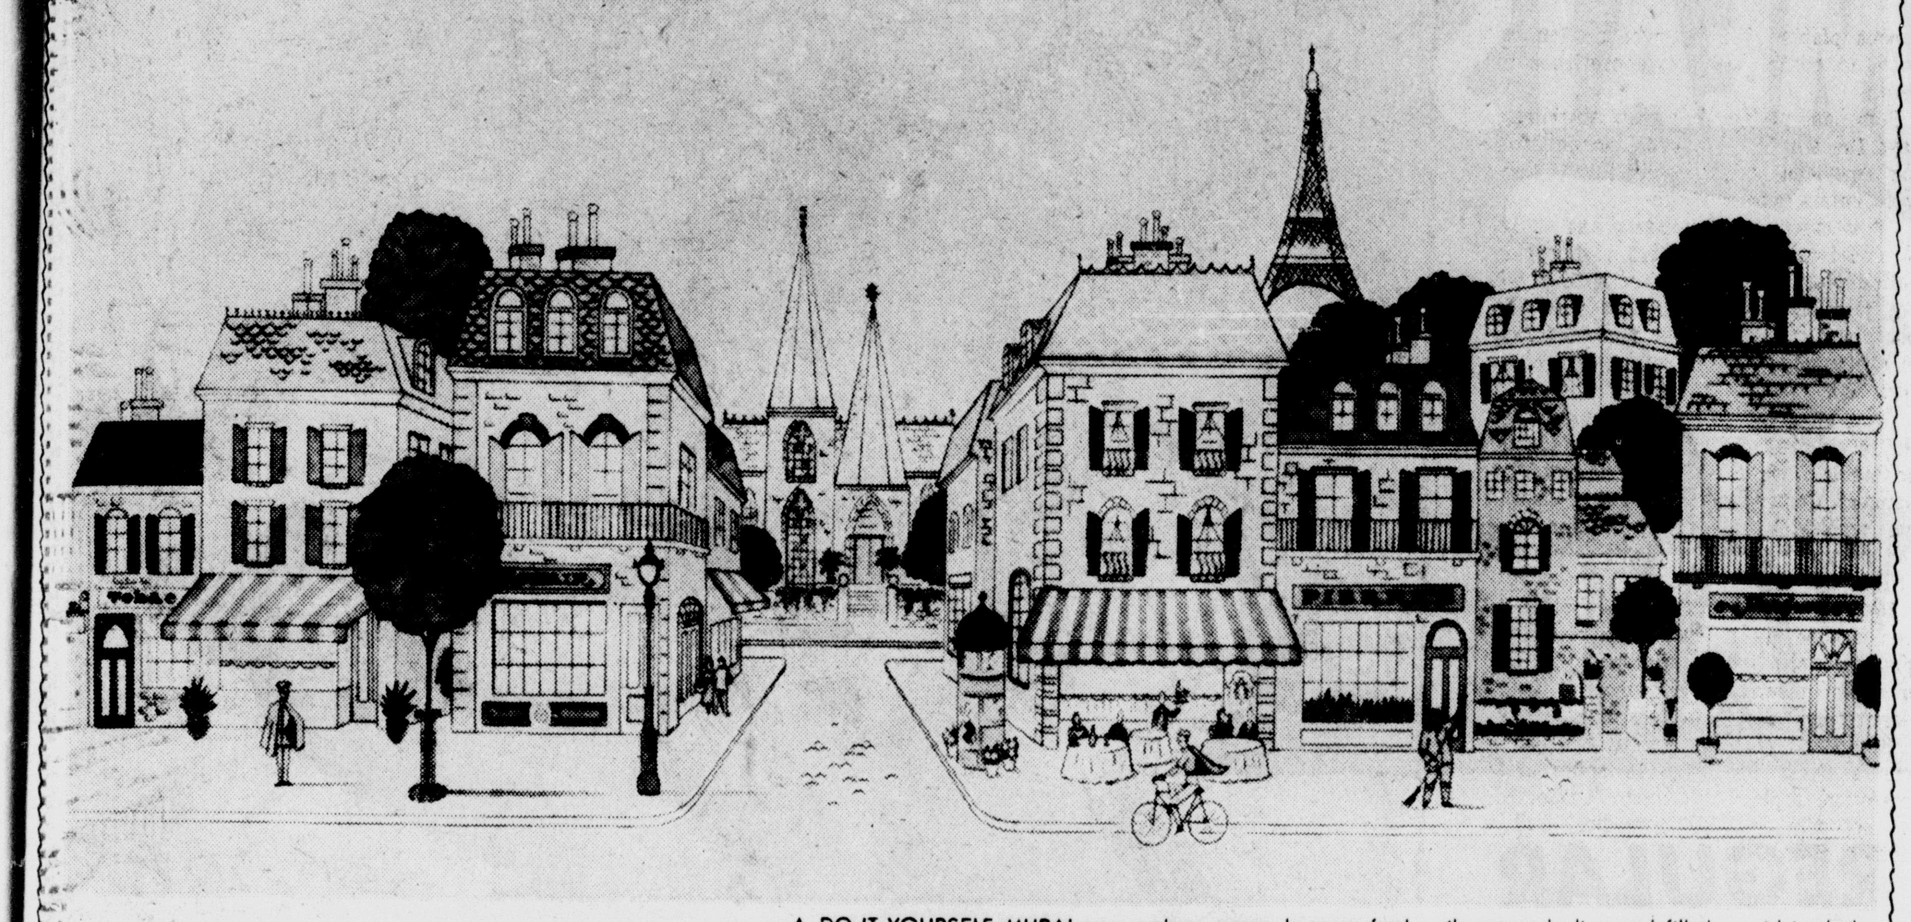
Growing your own vegetables gives you and your family the reward and satisfaction of knowing that you have prepared your meals from seed to plate.

WINTER VEGETABLES



TO REAP a winter harvest of tasty, home-grown vegetables, such as cabbage, cauliflower and lettuce, this month is the time to sow seeds and nurseries will have transplants. Nurserymen will recommend what can be planted now.

PLAY REMBRANDT WITH YOUR WALLS



A DO-IT-YOURSELF MURAL can make a room become fresh, vibrant and alive and fill the void in drab rooms where a dramatic focus is missing. You don't have to be an artist to create the European street scene mural show above. Measuring nine feet wide and thirty-eight inches high, it sets a cheerful mood for any room. All you have to do is trace the full-sized pattern on the wall, then paint over the tracings. If there isn't enought room, just leave off some of the buildings on either end. The pattern can be obtained by sending $3.50 to Steve Ellingson, Independent-Journal pattern department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409, and ask for Pattern 379, the street scene mural pattern. The pattern includes full-color, miniature picture of the completed mural to guide you and instructions on the colors and type of washable paints to use.

House For Elderly Involves More Than Number Of Rooms

By ANDY LANG

Buying a house entails a lot more than merely choosing one of a particular size and style.

This is especially important in the case of the elderly, who must find their housing satisfaction in factors that usually are more vital than the number of rooms and baths, even though these are important.

ALL OF us know at least one retired couple who sold their old home, bought one in a new location and, after a year or two, were dissatisfied and perhaps made a second move, sometimes back to the former area.

Rarely, if ever, has any such couple complained about the house per se. Their reasons for not being satisfied were related to such things as location, climate, social and personal privacy, neighbors, accessibility to facilities and, in some cases, just plain loneliness. In the latter case, the absence of loved relatives and friends played a part in this feeling.

IT WOULD be easy to assume that, considering such reasons, some pattern would be apparent on which to base wise decisions. Surveys show otherwise. People can't always predict accurately how they will react to unfamiliar situations. Some of the elderly who did not wish to be located near children or other relatives (about 60 per cent in one survey) found later that they had moved too far away and that meetings were too infrequent to satisfy them.

Others who believed it important to be near relatives wished later that they had followed their first impulses and moved to more desirable climatic locations hundreds of miles away.

LUCKY indeed is the elderly couple who can forecast precisely which characteristics will be most important to them in retirement. Even luckier is the couple who can afford to hang on to their present home and perhaps lease it while they rent a house for a year in the area they have selected.

Conscientious real estate brokers can be of great help to those who want to settle in a region not familiar to them. As Stuart Davis, president of the Real Estate Board of Metropolitan St. Louis, puts it:

"We are in the people business, not the house business. We don't sell houses; we find the right homes for people."

Used Furniture Can Be Good Buy

By JOAN HANAUER

In the old Arabian tale, Aladdin's wife was suckered into trading in his marvelous lamp by the offer of "new lamps for old." She learned the hard way that old furnishings may be better than new.

Whether you belong in the category of young and impoverished, family with small and destructive children, or you just plain won't part with the cash called for to buy new furniture — you'll find that used furniture can be a good buy.

"USED FURNITURE can Be a Good Buy" also is the title of a pamphlet written by Glenda Pifer, housing specialist of the U.S. Agriculture Department's extension service, in which the author writes:

"Used furniture can be a bargain if you choose it carefully."

Used furniture shouldn't be confused with antiques, which carry high price-tags. The woods are full of antique hunters combing country back lanes for buys that will make their fortune — but the odds in that kind of treasure hunt are very much in favor of the professional antique dealers.

IN Miss Pifer's context old furniture is just that — furniture that has been discarded because the owner died, had no further use for it or just plain got tired of looking at the stuff.

The place to find it is at auctions, garage sales, used furniture stores and thirft shops. Thrift shops may fall into two categories — those with the name but not the game and those that offer real bargains.

Best buys often are to be found at those run by the Salvation Army, Good Will or other charity. Some thrift shops are run cooperatively for the benefit of several worthy causes.

ONE CAUTION — even at charity thrift shops you can end up paying more than you should because the pricing often is done by volunteers who themselves can only guess at what a piece should cost.

It goes without saying that the more arts-and-crafts skills you bave, the more and better quality repairs you can do yourself, the better bargains you'll find. It's no bargain, after all, to buy a chair cheap, then spend a fortune having it reglued, otherwise repaired, and reupholstered.

WHEN YOU see something that catches your eye, don't get too overwhelmed until you've figured out how you're going to get it home.

Size also is an important consideration from a decorating viewpoint. Close your eyes and mentally move your intended purchase into your living room. Will it fit? Will it either overwhelm or dwarf what you've already got? Unless you're a period purist, don't worry about whether the furniture is Early American or Elderly Anonymous — mix-and-match styles are acceptable even in the swankest homes.

Next step is to check quality, and here are some suggestions from Miss Pifer:

CHESTS: ". . . take out one or two of the drawers and look at the inside corners of the chest frame. Wood corner posts are a sign of good quality. A good frame will not give or creak when you push against it.

"Drawers should pull out smoothly and easily. Handles should be smooth and easy to grasp. Drawer pulls should be fastened all the way through the front of the drawer.

"While you have the drawers out, see if the sides and bottoms are in good condition. The center guide — the wood strip going from front to back along the underside of a drawer adds to the strength of the chest and helps keep the drawer from jamming."

Tables, chairs and sofas: "Look carefully at the legs of furniture, especially if they are small. Tables should be rigid and well balanced. Turn small tables and chairs upside down to see how the legs are attached. Wood or metal braces where the legs are fastened on make the furniture stronger. Rungs or stretchers also help support table and chair legs."

WHEN IT comes to chairs and sofas, Miss Pifer advises the first step is to sit in them to check comfort. Turn upholstered furniture bottom side up to be sure the springs and frame are in good sahpe. Springs should be evenly spaced. Don't worry too much about the cushions they can be replaced, but check the back because if it's lumpy and uneven you'll have a major repair job ahead.

One final caution — don't be embarrassed about giving your proposed buy a good looking over. Even at bargain prices furniture is a major budget item.

Cedar Edgings Ease Lawn Grooming Job

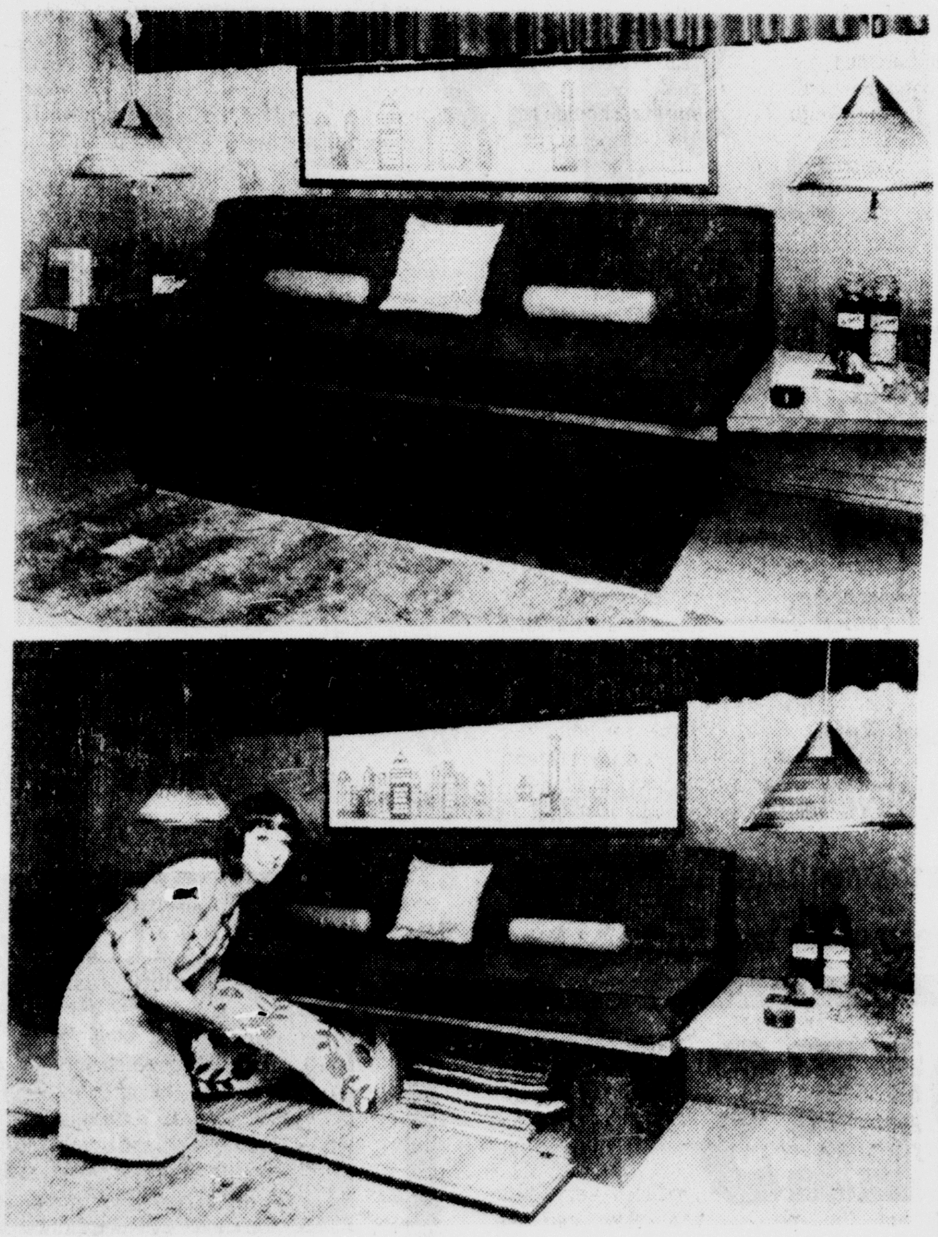
Easily installed edgings of two-by-four inch cedar or other preservative-treated western wood provide mowing strips for lawns and well-groomed divisions between grass, flower beds and walks.

The two-by-fours are spliced with one-by-fours for the desired length and set in a trench slightly deeper than the edging. After staking, the trench should be filled flush with the top of the wood.

Stakes cut from one-by-twos should be set and nailed to the edging at least every five feet. To reduce splitting, galvanized box nails should be used.

When the edging borders a lawn, all stakes should be driven on the side away from the grass so an edger can be used without interference.

A curved edging is formed by nailing thinner boards together, staggering the splices, until the laminated board is the desired thickness around the curve.



A HANDSOME SOFA BED can be built on top of a storage chest and hinged doors provided to permit access to the storage area. With the back cushions removed, the sofa becomes a comfortable bed, three feet wide and more than six-and-a-half feet long.

Take The Squeaking Out Of Your Floors

By GEORGE MONTGOMERY

The furniture buff who has become handy with wood and woodworking tools often finds extracurricular outlets for his talents. One such outlet that should win approval from all the family is the repair of squeaking floors.

INDEED, a squeaking floor can be somewhat of a psychological challenge. A broken chair rung or a gouged table top are right out in the open where you can see them. You know just what to do. But a squeaky floor is something different. It's invisible. Perhaps you hear it only in damp weather — or perhaps only in dry weather. You are not really quite sure where it is.

But take heart. A few simple procedures will take the mystery out of squeaking floors.

There are several causes of squeaking floors. A floor support beam may have sagged leaving the floor boards unsupported. One or more floor boards may have become warped. Shrinkage also can cause squeaks. Or nails may have come loose.

YOUR FIRST step is to pinpoint the culprit. If the squeak is in the ground floor and the beams in your basement have not been covered, you are in luck. Ask someone to walk overhead while you stand in the basement. By a combination of sight and sound you will be able to locate the squeak and diagnose the cause.

If the problem is a sagging beam, the easy cure is to drive wooden wedges between the beam and the floor boards. If a large area is involved, an alternative is to force a length of wood longer than the sag up flush with the floor boards and nail it to the beam.

If the squeak is caused by loose or warped floor boards a different remedy is in order. Where there is just one layer of flooring involved the solution is to drive nails from above into the supporting beams. If there is double flooring, and the problem is with the finish layer, you can again make your repairs from below. Drill holes through the sub-flooring under the squeaky area and part way into the finish layer — then insert screws to pull the two layers of wood tightly together.

YOU HAVE still another problem if your basement ceiling is covered or the squeak is in an upstairs floor. Under these circumstances you must work from the surface. Special spiral nails are made for this purpose. They must be driven through the loose or warped boards into the supporting beams or sub-flooring and counter-sunk.

Unless you have wall-to-wall carpeting, you will have to fill the holes left by the countersunk nails with a suitable wood filler compound. In extreme cases you may have to refinish the entire floor.

Clever Trellising

Trellis panels built of western cedar two-by-twos set at right angles to a long fence strengthen construction, lend interest to garden niches.

HERE'S THE ANSWER TO YOUR QUESTION

By ANDY LANG

Q. — The drawers of the bureau in our bedroom stick every summer. They work perfectly in the winter. Why does this happen and what can we do about it to make the drawers work more smoothly during the summer?

A. — The drawers stick in the summer because of the generally high humidity. In winter the heat in your house is turned on, the air becomes drier and the wood in the drawers shrinks. To correct the condition, wait until a dry day when the drawers are working properly. Take out the drawers and seal every part of them with shellac diluted 50 per cent with denatured alcohol. Give particular attention to areas which have no finish on them. Also, seal all wood portions of the frame which come in contact with the drawers, especially the sliding parts.

Q. — Which give off more heat — incandescent bulbs or fluorescent tubes?

A. — The incandescents. The fluorescents give more light per wattage but less heat.

Q. — Is there any kind of varnish that resists alcohol spills?

A. — There are several kinds of varnishes and synthetics with such resistance. One has the nickname of "bar" varnish and can be obtained in most specialty paint shops and some hardware stores and lumber yards.

Q. — One of the tiles on our bathroom wall has a big crack in it. I tried patching it but the repair looks worse than the crack did. Can a single tile be removed from the wall without damaging the others? I think the tiles are ceramic.

A. — Yes, it can be removed, but it must be done very carefully. Use a cold chisel to break the damaged tile after you have scored the tile around its four edges in the grouted joints. Hit the chisel lightly with a hammer, doing it without haste. The idea is to break up the tile with dozens of blows rather than attemtping to smash it with a few blows. You may have to shop around a bit to get a tile that will match the rest of the wall. When you do get it, have the dealer give you some cement that will hold the tile firmly as well as grouting compound. Scrape the old cement from the wall, apply the new to the back of the tile and press it in place. When it has set, use grout to refill the joints.

Cedar Chests Double

If you're an apartment dweller, you must have complained often that the architect who designed your building never lived in an apartment himself. If he had, there would be more storage space.

Nobody ever seems to have enough room to store out-of-season clothes and bedding. For a home owner, the problem is somewhat easier to solve; closets and cabinets can be built in, and they add to the value of his property.

WHEN YOU live in an apartment, you don't want to build anything that you can't take with you when you move. When you're studying your storage needs, think portable.

If you're moderately handy with hammer and saw, you can construct free-standing storage units that do much more than occupy space. Lined with readily available aromatic red cedar, such units will also protect your woolens from the depredations of the household moth.

A basic cedar chest can double as a sofa or day bed. Use two-by fours for the framing, plywood for the exterior, and cedar closet lining inside. A hollow-core door serves as the top. An eight-inch cushion of foam rubber plus a bolster finishes the sofa-bed.

THERE'S a lot of wasted space under the conventional bed. Sweaters and blankets can be well stored in cedar lined storage boxes that fit under the four-poster. Mount under-bed chests on casters so they can be pulled out easily.

Another apartment answer is free standing shelf units. Mix open shelves with enclosed, cedar lined units where you can safely pack away woolens. Coffee and lamp tables can also be planned to double as storage space.

Prepackaged bundles of cedar closet lining, in either uniform or random lengths, are available at leading lumber dealers and home centers. Instructions for installing the material are included.

Care of red cedar is easy. Leave it unfinished so its pleasant, moth-repelling aroma will be released, and simply dust it occasionally.

Bigger Is Not Always Better

Bigger is not necessarily better, as proved by small outdoor living areas that add charm to modest yards.

Stepped planting beds and board-faced planters lift the eye up and out of a confined garden space, and the effect is enhanced with a fence or screen of narrow vertical boards.

Shrubbery surrounding simple benches of four-by-four inch posts and slightly spaced two-by-four-inch seating creates a mini-garden for relaxation.

A Look At The Season So Far

By ARTHUR UNGER
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

"I don't think there is any danger in overestimating the intelligence of TV audiences — the real danger lies in underestimating it."

Those are the words of one of TV's most successful intelligence estimators: Norman Lear, producer of "All in the Family," "Sanford & Son," "Maude," "Good Times." In his Tandem Productions hopper right now is another spinoff — a show based on the Jeffersons, black next-door neighbors of the Bunkers.

Lear went on to say: "I think it is arrogant of some television people to say that we overestimate the intelligence of audiences. I have sat with hundreds of network executives and most of them have no more intelligence than the average American.

"They are usually no brighter than the less educated fellow I met in say, Winterset, Iowa, working in the car wash who, by virtue of native shrewdness and basic intelligence, is often able to fit more of life properly into his skull and come up with more of the proper answers than most TV executives."

Well, the new television season is now four weeks old and, perhaps, it is time to take a look at what the executives estimated in the way of audience intelligence and how the audience responded. With the aid of my trusty pocket computer I have averaged the ratings for the first three weeks of viewing, eliminating movies and specials, focusing only on regularly scheduled series.

The top shows are:

1. "All in the Family" (CBS, Saturday)
2. "Chico and the Man" (NBC, Friday)
3. "Sanford & Son" (NBC, Friday)
4. "Rhoda" (CBS, Monday)
5. "M-A-S-H" (CBS, Tuesday)
6. "The Waltons" (CBS, Thursday)
7. "Maude" (CBS, Monday)
8. "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" (CBS, Saturday)
9. "Little House on the Prairie" (NBC, Wednesday)
10. "The Bob Newhart Show" (CBS, Saturday)

Grouped closely after these top ten are the following: "Good Times," "Hawaii Five-O," "The World of Disney," "Medical Center," "Paul Sand: Friends and Lovers," "Rockford Files," "Streets of San Francisco," "Kojak," "Emergency," "Born Free," "Policewoman," "That's My Mama."

Even though some of those top 10 shows may not conform to your particular taste level, it would be hard to deny that they represent an amazingly superior group of programs. Each one is carefully conceived, beautifully executed, with well-delineated characters involved in psychologically authentic situations. They are skillfully written, acted, and directed. Their dialogue is relevant; their relationships valid. And in each case, the creator or exectuive producer involved is thoroughly dedicated to maintaining the integrity of his show.

Physical violence is practically nonexistent in these shows. Even the occasional violence in "M-A-S-H" is carefully calculated to discourage the idea of warfare rather than encourage it.

It is possible to break down these top ten into three basic categories: the hard-edge comedies ("All in the Family," "Chico and the Man," "Sanford & Son" "M-A-S-H," and "Maude"); the soft-edge comedies ("Rhoda," "Mary Tyler Moore," "Bob Newhart"); and the nostalgia group ("The Waltons," and "Little House on the Prairie.")

In the hard-edge group, the humor is often abrasive, the situations ticklish, the material adult. In most, bigotry is dealt a blow through ridicule. As a matter of fact, all three top shows feature aging, intolerant gentlemen in constant battle with their distorted values.

The bigotry always loses — but the audience comes away understanding it just a bit better. None of the shows treat bigotry as a dark and fearful thing — more like a sad exercise in futility.

In the case of "Maude" we are dealing with a by-the-numbers reactor who is softened and leavened by the inter-reaction of the people around her. Though her reasoning may be faulty she is thus able to make wise decisions most times.

"M-A-S-H," of course, points out the pomposity of human beings and the fallibility of hackneyed ideas, especially in war and medicine. But it is not destructive because, in the long run, it is about the foibles of people who love rather than hate one another when the choice arises.

The soft-edge shows ("Rhoda," "Mary" and "Bob") are all concerned with real people in real situations, learning to deal with their lives through humor and understanding. Every gag has the ring of psychological authenticity; minor revelation is the rule.

The nostalgia two ("Waltons" and "House") create worlds with values and virtues we all would like to believe once existed. They reflect the way things ought to have been if, in fact, they were not. One hopes, they imply, it is the way things could be once again.

In all of the shows, there are extraordinary men and women involved in the production, people with foresight and perserance. In the case of "All in the Family," "Sanford & Son," and "Maude," it is Norman Lear.

In the case of "Rhoda," "Mary Tyler Moore," and "Bob Newhart," it is James Brooks, Allan Burns, and perhaps, MTM herself. In the case of "M-A-S-H" it is Gene Reynolds, Larry Gelbhart and Alan Alda. In the case of "The Waltons," it is Earl Hammer. In the case of "Little House on the Prairie" it is Michael Landon. In the case of "Chico and the Man," James Komack.

All of the people are determined to maintain character, theme, authenticity — but most of all, integrity. It shows in the product . . . and in the audience reaction.

Of course, placement of the shows has a great deal to do with their success as well — the right show in the wrong time slot can fail miserably. Two cases in point are the nostalgic "The New Land" and "The Texas Wheelers," both fine shows which simply cannot overcome the handicap of difficult time slots.

But, on the whole, the first three weeks of the new season have proven that given valid concept and proper execution in conjunction with reasonable scheduling, intelligent, nonviolent, relevant television shows can win wide audience approval.

Let all the networks be forwarned: We now recognize that a bad season is the fault of the producers rather than the audience itself. The oft-repeated fable about the 12-year-old mentality of the average TV viewer has been thoroughly debunked.

But, let us not become too complacent either. Creeping up on the horizon, just below that top ten list, if intelligence and responsibility should falter, are: "Policewoman," "That's My Mama," and . . .

Like Any Other Author, Dick Cavett's Hustling His Book

By BOB THOMAS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — He seemed like any traveling author, hustling from radio to television stations to hawk his book, fretting about missing the change of seasons at his Long Island home.

But he wasn't just any author. He was Dick Cavett, here on a 10-city tour to sell "Cavett," which he wrote with Christopher Porterfield, his Yale roommate and now a member of his television staff.

After years of interviewing authors on his late-night talk show, Cavett now finds himself on the other side of the microphone.

"It's different," he admitted. "You find yourself groping with those general questions like, 'Tell us your most embarrassing moment on the air,' or, 'Who are the most fascinating people you have had on your show?'

"I am taken slightly aback and have to think awhile. I suppose I should have answers ready for such questions, but I hate to do that."

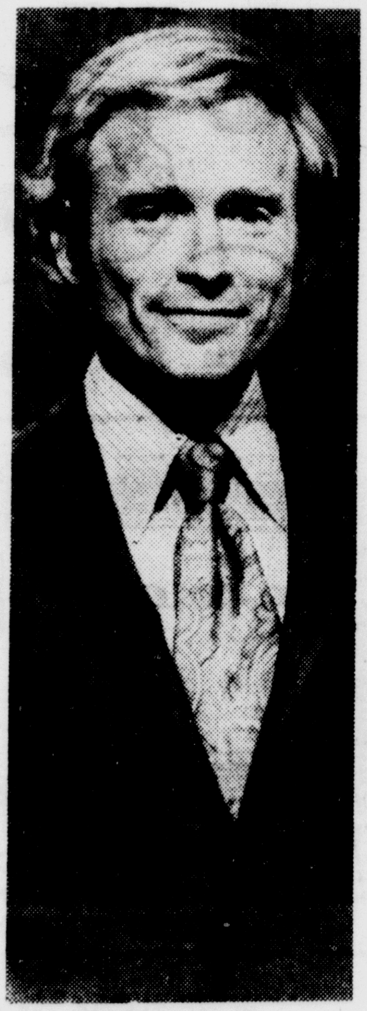
While in Los Angeles Cavett had been appearing on the shows of his sometime competitors, and he evidenced the author's trepidation about his performance.

"I'm a bit concerned about the show I did with Dinah Shore today," he said. "Somewhat inadvertently I made a couple of remarks that reflected on her age, and the audience laughed.

"Then I made another comment that wasn't meant to be a joke at all, but the audience thought it was another crack about how old she was.

"I tried to explain that I didn't mean that."

When he appeared with Johnny Carson, the audience was expecting the two wits to carve each other up. Instead, they talked about magic, with which both began as entertainers in Nebraska.



DICK CAVETT
Host is a guest

"I asked Johnny if it was all right if I mentioned that I was doing an all-magic show on my next broadcast," said Cavett.

"He agreed — then he realized that I would be on opposite his own show."

"That's the night we're going to stage an electrocution,' he said. 'Then we're going to disembowel a horse.' "

Cavett said he got along akay on the Merv Griffin Show — "fortunately I didn't say anything bad about Merv in the book, at least I don't think I did."

Predictably, Jack Paar took offense and fired off a curt letter in answer to a news magazine's review of "Cavett."

"But that's Jack's way," said Cavett philosophically. An insatiable word-juggler, he pointed out that the anagram for Paar is "A Rap."

Cavett has been learning other things about the author's huckstering life, besides the inane questions and the bone-bending schedules.

"I spent two days racing around Chicago doing every show, then the stores ran out of books," he said.

That is one of the biggest gripes of book writers, but coauthor Porterfield pointed out Cavett's advantage: "He can pick up the phone and complain to the president of Harcourt Brace Jovanovich."

"Cavett" is, in fact, a highly readable and revealing portrait of one of television's best assets.

He is perhaps the tube's best talker, and hence attracts such rare TV guests as Marlon Brando and Katharine Hepburn. Alas, he also attracts slim ratings against the indominable Carson and hence he has had his shows reduced on the ABC schedule.

"Right now I'm supposed to be on every other Thursday," said Cavett, "although that has been disturbed by pre-emptions.

"The last was when President Nixon resigned; I was willing to give up my time for that.

"My contract with ABC comes up for renewal this month, and this is about the time they start asking for an extension.

"I don't know what will happen this time. I'm not pleased with the scheduling — you need a horoscope and a birth-control pill chart to find out when I'm on. I hope we can work out something better."

Carson Film Deal

NBC host Johnny Carson has joined with Paramount Productions to produce movies for television. The first is "Black Harvest," destined for ABC telecasting during the new season. Story is about a farmer's struggle in the 1940s against a plague of locusts.

Perennial Villain Achieves Dream With His Own Series

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Claude Akins, a character actor for years and a perennial guest star on television shows, has finally achieved his dream with a series of his own, "Movin' On."

Akins' rugged features and rock quarry voice make him the perfect stereotype villain. But he's almost heroic as the tough truck driver in the new NBC show.

Ferocious as he may appear externally, Akins is essentially a softie who is family oriented. He and his wife Therese, whom he calls Pie, have been married 23 years.

Their children are Claude Jr., 17, Wendy, 15, and Michelle, 13.

Each youngster excels in a different field. Claude Jr. is a top flight amateur golfer who hopes to turn professional one day. A high school senior, he has won several tournaments.

Pie is an excellent tennis player while Akins tries to match his son on the golf course.

It is only natural then that the Akin home in the San Fernando Valley is filled with trophies, ribbons and plaques. Until this year the lion's share of golf trophies in the family den belonged to Akins, but they have been surpassed by Claude Jr.'s prizes.

The ranch style house is comfortably furnished in contemporary style. The swimming pool is outsized and used every day when Akins is in town. He starts each morning with a brisk series of laps.

Papa Akins' delight at having his own show is tempered by the fact that he works entirely on location a thousand miles or more from home. Most of "Movin' On" is being shot in the Pacific Northwest.

He left home July 15 and won't return until December. Akins eats all his meals in restaurants during production and has learned to call a variety of motels home during shooting of the peripatetic show.

He works 12 hours a day, from sunup to sundown, six days a week.

With the children in school and a large house to run Pie has been unable to visit her husband on the endless locations.

For the fifth year Claude has been unable to accompany his family on summer vacations. Just when school lets out Claude inevitably finds himself reporting to work in a movie or television show.

The actor is comfortable in denims and boots, but he most often can be found wearing golf togs, returning to or heading for the links

If any actor leads a typical Southern California existence — featured by indoor-outdoor living with plenty of sports thrown in — it is Claude Akins and family, and they wouldn't have it any other way.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR RONA JAFFE, author of "Family Secrets"*

When did you first decide to be a writer?—A. S., Hartford, Conn.

● At five—when I saw my first "Tarzan" film! I thought it would be loads of fun to be a lady reporter and go into the dark and dangerous jungle with a man reporter. My first job was editing for a magazine where I had to rewrite other people's lurid stories (cleaning them up and toning them down). At that time sex wasn't as fashionable as it is now. My bosses felt that since I was 20, I was naïve and would therefore inject some innocence into the manuscripts. Finally I decided if I could improve the work of others, I should write under my own name.

FOR ALAN ALDA

How much are you and "Hawkeye," the character you portray on "M*A*S*H," alike?—Paula Wall, Hobbs, N.M.

● Neither of us is interested in war, and we both try to do our work as well as we can. Unlike the character, I'm a family man and I don't drink martinis (I've never had one in my life); but I do have a sense of humor that's always with me. When it's not on display, I keep it hidden—just below the surface!

FOR JAYNE MEADOWS

Why do you wear furs and feathers when you claim to be a conservationist?—James Giarelli, Gainesville, Fla.

● The furs I wear are either fake or else minks that Steve bought me 15 years ago. Mink is not an endangered species. When I have to wear furs for a role, I make sure they're not from an endangered species. For "Love American Style," I wore the ostrich-feather coat designed by Edith Head 40 years ago for Carole Lombard, and supplied by Paramount Pictures. I'm not a hypocrite! I love all humans and animals.

FOR O. J. SIMPSON, football star*

During the football strike, you said that "freedom of speech" was one of the players' demands that most concerned you. Could you explain?—Ted Davidson, Teaneck, N.J.

● Too often free speech in pro football has been a one-way street. For example, in Atlanta last year Coach Norm Van Brocklin said he would fine any player who criticized the Falcons' organization in the press. Yet he held players up to ridicule in front of media people. We want the chance to speak as freely as the people who discuss us with the media.

FOR MARY STUART, star of "Search for Tomorrow"*

What episodes have you enjoyed most in "Search for Tomorrow"?—T. Valins, Pontiac, Mich.

● Two stand out. When I played a blind character and a deaf mute. It was challenging and fascinating, and it gave me enormous insight into how handicapped people live. I prefer stories in which I can become totally involved and lose my own identity. For selfish reasons, I'd love to have more of the music I write played on the show. My song, "Don't Look Back," was used on "Search," and it was very well received.

FOR JEANE DIXON, seeress*

I thought that you did not use your gift of prophecy for monetary gain but that you gave all remunerations to charity. Now I hear this is not true. Would you comment?—H. Tobola, Cadott, Wis.

● All the earnings from my lectures, articles and various radio and TV appearances go directly to the Children to Children Foundation. I personally do not receive one cent.

Doesn't being a catcher get pretty hard on your knees?—Taimi Crowell, Hawthorne, Calif.

● Actually, it's hard on the whole leg, not just the knees. When you get up and down that often, you really begin to feel it. That's one reason I like to play another position from time to time. It gives me a nice break from catching, and I still get to stay in the game.

FOR ELIZABETH POST,

director of the Emily Post Institute

Should parents accept an invitation from their unmarried son or daughter to visit the apartment they're sharing with someone of the opposite sex?—G. B., Albany, N.Y.

● I definitely think they should. To refuse gains the parents nothing but a loss of communication and influence with their child. And, of course, "acceptance" of the invitation doesn't necessarily mean approval of the arrangement.

FOR ARTHUR HERZOG, author of "Swarm"*

Is there a real likelihood that dangerous bees from South America are coming north, as you predict in your novel?—Tom Moore, Sacramento, Calif.

● Yes, there is. The bees are now in Brazil—they are imports from Africa and escaped there—and are coming north at about 200 miles a year. If they make it all the way to the U.S., they could be a problem, as they are very irritable and attack in swarms. But the U.S. Government is taking measures to try and keep them out.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

Do you have any professional ideas on whether it's better for an adopted child to be told of his natural parents and the circumstances that led to his adoption?—A. C., Philadelphia, Pa.

● Professional opinion still indicates the child should NOT be told, because of the resultant search by the child for his biological parents and the emotional trauma that might result from it. Roger Grimsby, anchorman of ABC-TV's "Eyewitness News," is an adopted child who, despite sealed legal documents, was successful in locating his natural parents. In a recent lecture on the subject, he admitted he has been left with mixed feelings. He believes that the information should not be provided to the adoptive parents, but the child himself should be able to get it when he reaches legal age.

Famous Scandinavian Design Scissors

The Scissors that are molded to your hand

- Cushion plastic handles with contour finger grip gives you more comfort and cutting freedom than you've ever experienced before.
- Stainless steel blades
- Cut paper . . . patterns . . . fabrics with incredible ease

Some time ago those inventive Scandinavians introduced an entirely new concept in scissors. It was a scissors with a special cushioned handle anatomically designed to fit your hand. The comfort was incredible. You could cut through the most intricate curve, cut all kinds of materials, cut free hand into all kinds of designs or slip the scissors along the table for an even straight line cut. People who were used to the old fashioned kind of scissors couldn't imagine a pair of scissors working so efficiently and so effortlessly as this new design. Seamstresses and anyone who needed them knew they had discovered a secret. But originally these scissors cost much, much more. In fact, even today you can find this design selling for $8.00 or more in fine stores. But now we've created this same design at a fantastically low price. "Shear Joy"! It's got the familiar orange, cushion soft, plastic handle, the stainless steel blades, weighs only 3 ounces, and they're 8¼" long. If you thought there was nothing glamorous about a pair of scissors then wait until you've tried these. At this new low price you can't afford to be without them. Order now. If they are not shear joy, simply return for full money back.

Globe Photos

Johnny Cash and June Carter with their son John Carter. Johnny and June will host the CBS-TV special Country Music Award Show on October 14.

> "On weekends, when I drive out the gate, sometimes there are 40 or 50 tour buses out there! They unload at the front gate and take pictures of the house. . . . I'd like to say it doesn't bother me."

Normally, country-western superstar Johnny Cash shuns interviews. And when he does consent to them, he invariably includes his wife, June Carter, or (as in this case) Rosanne Cash (Johnny's daughter) and Rosie Nix (June's daughter). The meeting was held in their New York hotel suite.

Johnny Cash seemed to be a very relaxed man, one who smiles so often he should pose for toothpaste ads. He is much younger looking and better looking in person than he seems on TV. He talked easily, giggled often and acted very much like a man who has just found the secret of how to stay happy. Like his wife June, he wears an Israeli wedding ring and, around his neck, both the Star of David and a gold cross.

FAMILY WEEKLY: What makes you happy now?

JOHNNY: Having my family with me. It really does. That's what makes me happy, and knowing that everything's all right! Of course, a man's got to enjoy his work. I really enjoy working. The girls and I come off the stage at night and we're as high as kites! We're just so happy with what we're doing. And having John Carter [Johnny's youngest son, age four] with us makes us all feel better. He's here today, playing out in the park.

FW: Music seems to be kind of a way of life with you.

JOHNNY: It always has been. The girls both inherited a legacy of music I suppose, especially Rosie. Music in this family goes back to 1927, when her grandmother, Maybelle Carter, first started recording. June, Rosie's mother, has been onstage since she was six. I've been at it for 20 years. All Rosanne has ever known is her daddy as an entertainer and performer. I guess she wouldn't know what it was like to have a daddy who lived a normal life and worked at a regular job.

FW: Then music has always been part of your family?

JOHNNY: It's a binding kind of thing because we feel a closeness when we're singing that nobody could feel any other way. It's like we're sharing a song together. And the song is coming from each one of us, but it's coming from all of us as well. It's like a marriage out there. We're all one!

FW: How do you explain the growing interest in country-and-western music?

JOHNNY: In many ways, country and western has grown up. It's appealing to a lot more people. It's meshing and merging in a lot of ways without losing any of its originality, pureness and simplicity of form. At the same time, which is a strange thing, people like Willie Nelson, Waylon Jennings and guys like that are calling their music "hard country rock" or "hard country." Waylon Jennings is kind of like an outlaw in country and western. In many ways, he's like me. I've never really been quite orthodox country. I've done it according to feel. And that's the way a lot of people like Waylon are doing it. There's honesty in his performance and delivery. He doesn't compromise the way he feels just to please a certain group of peole. He is himself. But it's not all a bed of roses family-wise. Life on the road is very stimulating and exciting. It's a great life, living in a nice hotel like this -and playing a beautiful place like the Music Theater. But when we get home, then the tough part starts. It's hard for a 42-year-old man to understand a 16-year-old or a 19-year-old girl! When we go home, there's a lot of pressure that builds up. Things are waiting for us to come home and take care of.

FW: But isn't home the only place you can really relax?

JOHNNY: It's the only place you can't relax unless you stay home three or four weeks. Then you can adjust to the change of pace. But you need time to separate the entertainment world and the home world. We haven't found that time.

FW: Do you find when you travel together as a family that you're so glad to be with each other that you don't need other people around?

JOHNNY: That's certainly not true with the girls. June and I are fairly exclusive. For example, when we finish a concert, we always have an invitation to go to a club or hear another entertainer. We rarely do it. If we could, we would put on wigs and glasses and go sit in the audience like everybody else. That would be great! We did that once.

FW: Would you like to be a bum and just go out there and do what you want to?

JOHNNY: Secretly, maybe I would! I have a blond wig and glasses. June put hers on one time, too, and the two of us went to see the Carter Family and sat right in the front row and nobody knew us. It was great fun. I guess there's a little bit of that in all of us, when we'd like to be just a face in the crowd.

FW: How do you relax?

ROSANNE: He goes off with John Carter mostly, fishing.

JOHNNY: I enjoy John Carter. I relax a lot with him. And I love to go to movies! Do you know what I like? I like children's movies! I looked in The New York Times and saw what movies were showing here for children. I saw "The Song of the South" was playing again. I'd like to go see that again. I took John Carter to see "Herbie Rides Again." That's the last movie I've seen. Do you know what I enjoy about it? The children! I enjoy the laughter and applause of children. I really get a kick out of that. I don't know if you saw it, but I really loved the scene when that Volkswagen ran up the side of that building and jumped across the river! All those kids were jumping and screaming and laughing!

FW: Have your exposure on TV and frequent public appearances robbed you of your privacy?

JOHNNY: Sometimes I resent the

Eighth in a series:

She's Betty King Barker, industrial designer who can list among her credits 4 careers, 3 grandchildren, 2 sons, and 1 husband. She also manages to find time for tennis, golf and looking after her good looks. To keep her silvery hair bright and beautiful, she uses Silk & Silver, Clairol's long lasting color lotion in Silvery Pearl* #14.

"So easy," says Mrs. Barker, "I just shampoo it in every few weeks – it colors away the yellow, adds lots of body and wonderfully rich deep color." And it has no peroxide.

Mr. Barker approves. "Gray hair looks so young on Betty."

Precious 24K Gold, married to pure .999 Silver by an extraordinary advance in Gold Metallurgy.

12 Great Americans 1776-1976.

The World's first Medallic Series in Gold Bas Relief.

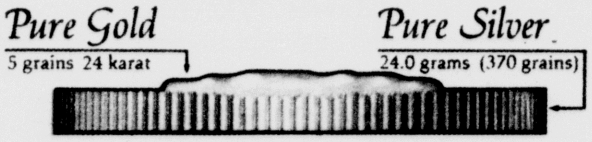
TWELVE GREAT AMERICANS
GEORGE WASHINGTON
1776-1976

As our great country approaches its second centennial. The Letcher Mint proudly presents a limited edition of intricately crafted commemorative medals...unique in all the world:

For more than four years research has been conducted in the laboratories of The Letcher Mint, drawing heavily on the latest space-age developments in the forming of precious metals.

As a result of these painstaking efforts by the craftsmen and technicians of the west's largest private mint, we now can create a single amazing piece of metal—with pure 24 K gold and the purest silver obtainable (99.9% silver) permanently combined to form a collector's item of exceptional rarity and beauty. This is not gold plating or common "gold on silver"—but an entirely new and revolutionary process.



A Treasury of Americana

In the relatively short span of time between 1776 and 1976 the ideas and deeds of these great men helped make America the most influential country in the world.

George Washington
Benjamin Franklin
John Paul Jones
Alexander Hamilton
Abraham Lincoln
Robert E. Lee
Mark Twain
Thomas A. Edison
Theodore Roosevelt
Charles A. Lindbergh
Dwight D. Eisenhower
John F. Kennedy

Now at a time when world events rush forward at breathtaking speed, the wise collector and novice alike have a rare opportunity. That of owning a series of precious medals of both historic significance and true intrinsic worth.

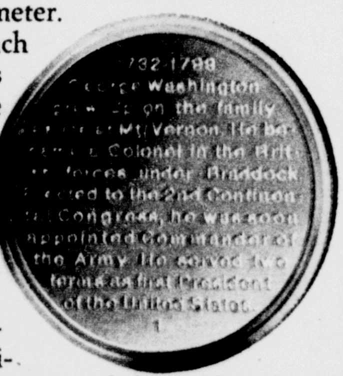
Sculptured by Boris Buzan

One of America's greatest contemporary sculptors — Boris Buzan was honored by the prestigious Society of Medalists in 1969 for his Apollo 11 design. Having recently completed his Signers of the Declaration of Independence series, Mr. Buzan is devoting himself to sculpturing the Great Americans series for The Letcher Mint.

Enduring Value

As the cost of gold and silver on world markets spirals inexorably upward, there could be no wiser choice for the collector than a purchase of pure gold and pure silver medals and coins. For here truly is a commodity whose value is timeless and virtually indestructible.

Each piece in this distinguished series measures a full 39mm (1.53″) in diameter. The obverse side depicts each of 12 Great Americans sculptured in brilliant pure gold (24 K). The mirror-like, pure silver background is finely detailed with illustrations individually designed for each of the 12 medals. The reverse dies are exquisitely engraved with fascinating biographical details in raised, frosted lettering, against the gleaming, pure silver background. And each piece contains a total of 5 grains of pure 24 K gold and 370 grains of pure .999 silver (more pure than sterling).



Limited Edition

In honor of the 200th anniversary of the American Revolution, 9,800 sets of Great Americans medals will be struck. 5,000 of these have been reserved for existing Letcher Mint collectors, leaving only 4,800 available to the public at large, on a first come, first served basis. No other sets will be struck and the dies will be destroyed, insuring the rarity of the series and its value to the collector.

Price Guarantee

The Great Americans series will be issued at the approximate rate of one medal per month. And the issue price of $30 per piece will be maintained regardless of increases in the prices of gold and silver on world markets during the life of your series. This offer will expire December 30, 1974.

Please complete the order form below and each medal will be sent to you postpaid via insured mail, in its own case. You will be notified monthly as each medal is struck. Save $30 knocks on the door. A lot of people just come walking up to our house—even at night. Of course, we have a guard, and the alarm system is always working. There's no way anybody could break in. But people come. A songwriter or somebody from a charity organization who thinks he needs my help. They knock on my door late at night and want to talk to me. Invariably, I say, "I'm sorry! I don't take care of business at home. You'll have to see somebody in my office tomorrow." I try to handle it as politely as I can.

Charge to your credit card number or send a check for $330 with your application, you will receive prepaid, all 12 medals and the beautiful presentation case without additional invoices or effort (you save $30).

FW: What steps do you take to insure your privacy?

JOHNNY: I lock the door or tell the guard I'm not at home or I don't want to see anybody unless it's an emergency. Or I go to my back room, stay in there and sleep or read by myself. I don't think I've done it more than twice in my life, but I can if I want to! On weekends, when I drive out the gate, sometimes there are 40 or 50 tour buses out there! They unload at the front gate and take pictures of the house. The bus goes up to the end of the street, turns around and comes back and picks up the people.

FW: Does that bug you?

JOHNNY: There are times when there might be 400 or 500 people standing out in front of my house! I'd like to say it doesn't bother me. Sometimes—and usually it's when I'm in a hurry—I hit that driveway and there are 300 people blocking the car! For pictures and autographs. It's taken a lot of wisdom and prayer to know how to handle it.

FW: How does June help you in this?

JOHNNY: She is a solid rock! She'll stop and talk to those people.

ROSIE: She'll give them her life story. And stand there and chat with them and give them recipes.

JOHNNY: I tell you, she has been the human anchor that God gave me to hold on to through those kinds of things. And I'm pretty hard on her. Sometimes when people want to talk or ask a question, I turn to her and let her answer it. June is a very strong person spiritually. No matter what the crisis is, she'll always stop me cold with a smile! She'll say, "Now raise your right hand and reach up for some strength!" Sometimes, if it's really a crisis, I'll say, "Don't bug me!" And I'll refuse to raise my hand! But she'll just keep looking at me and keep smiling. And she'll stick her hand up there higher and higher until finally I'll have to do it too! FW

SMART SHOPPERS TAKE NOTE!

Since September 8, consumers are finding more precise "open dating" information on packaged meat and poultry to assist them in determining the freshness of these products. Specifically, meat and poultry, which are calendar-dated, are now also carrying an explanation of what the date means.

Under the U.S. Department of Agriculture's newly amended regulations, the calendar date will have to be identified as a "packing date" "sell by date" or "use before date."

Hopefully, the new regulations will provide consumers with more information on the freshness of meat and poultry products.

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

How Much Do You Know About (Grrrrrrr!) Hostility?

True or False: Most people feel there is no excuse for husbands and wives throwing things or slapping each other.
(See number 4)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. If you are in a happy mood when confronted by someone who is angry with you, his hostility will gradually diminish.

2. If you happen to offend someone for whom you've done a favor, he is much less likely to explode with verbal or physical violence.

3. If a person is frustrated, a good way to keep him from blowing his top is to sympathize with him.

4. Most people feel there is no excuse for husbands and wives throwing things or slapping each other.

5. A chief reason why two people become hostile toward each other is that they have different types of brain rhythm.

ANSWERS

1. False. Studies show that your happy mood is likely to arouse more hostility and increase the chance of a violent altercation. Conversely, if you are in a depressed mood, this will have a cooling effect on the other person's anger.

2. False. Studies at the University of Pennsylvania have demonstrated that when a person offends someone he has helped, it makes the other person much angrier and "results in greater retaliation."

3. False. According to studies at the University of Alberta (Canada). It was found that sympathy actually elicited more aggression under frustration conditions.

4. True. A survey of more than a thousand adults showed that only 20 percent could easily visualize situations where they could fully approve of a husband slapping his wife's face. A somewhat higher percentage said they could imagine circumstances where a wife would be justified in letting her husband have a hard one right across the chops. But less than four percent could imagine situations in which they felt more extreme forms of marital mayhem would be justified.

5. True. Studies conducted by Dr. W. Grey Walter of the Burden Neurological Institute (Great Britain) have shown that if one person is a visual thinker (one who thinks in practical, down-to-earth terms) and another is an abstract thinker (theoretical as opposed to realistic or literal), neither understands the other, and a mutual hostility tends to build up almost immediately. "The antagonism between visual and abstract thinkers can cause an irrational rupture of communications among scientists, politicians, administrators, diplomats, and even married couples." The two antagonists may think they are speaking the same language, but they are not. Their brain rhythms, their mental faculties, function in diametrically opposite ways.

How to create professional-looking handcrafts like these "from scratch"

Save money on interior decorations, clothing, accessories and gifts. Learn a skill that could become a part-time money-maker.

A new library of craft projects

In all probability, you've enough materials in your home right now to plant a winejug terrarium, braid a colorful rug, block-print some handsome stationery, create ceramics you bake in your oven.

So why pay high prices for things you can create for yourself?

Let The Family Creative Workshop, a new craft encyclopedia, help you discover the personal satisfaction of making professional-looking crafts "from scratch."

Over 900 activities to choose from in alphabetically arranged volumes, are all the crafts you ever wanted to try and more! From tapestry to tie-dying, pottery to plastics. From things as simple as a paper airplane to things as complicated as building a kayak or a greenhouse.

Every member of your family will find a project to enjoy. Perhaps Dad would like to build a specialized birdhouse, or a simple concrete birdbath that costs practically nothing. Turn on a teenager by showing him how to make a free spirit out of an old car with a rainbow acrylic paint job...for less than the cost of a retread. Children will be fascinated (and learn ecology, too) from a mason-jar ant farm. Mom will love making placemats, colonial candles, luxurious strawberry soap, batik wall hangings.

Build your craft skills

You learn any of the over 200 basic craft skills by following step-by-step instructions for the variety of project ideas offered in each. Choose the ones that fit your time schedule, budget, degree of skill. There are symbols at the beginning of each project to guide you. The first project is usually a simple, quick, low-cost "starter" idea.

Each project has been designed by a highly regarded expert in the field, is explained with step-by-step directions, diagrams and photographs that show you exactly what to do. Follow them, and the professional look of your handcraft is assured.

Hours of fun and you save money too!

You can literally save hundreds of dollars by making your own lamps, rugs, pottery, gifts, turning garage-sale bargains into handsome "antiques." Or you can make money for your favorite charity by donating your crafts for sale.

Lecithin: A substance derived from vegetable oils that is actually a food, not a drug. In a recent experiment, a doctor found that Lecithin produced a decrease of as much as 30% in cholesterol and at the same time, tended to shift weight from one area of the body to another for a more streamlined silhouette.

Vitamin B-6: The fat-metabolizing vitamin that scientists have found works with body chemicals to balance and regulate body fluids to prevent water retention and bloat.

Kelp: Nature's great food mineral harvested from the ocean and our most reliable source for essential Iodine — so important in burning up fuel to melt fat accumulations away.

Cider Vinegar: Legendary solution used down thru the ages in weight control diets, is the basis for this outstanding new formula.

The Strange Way We Groom Ourselves for Failure

By Allan J. Cox

Diana Bryant

"Courage to risk failure is what leads to success," says Allan J. Cox.

> "It is always easier to blame others for some personal disappointment or problem rather than see how our own negative attitude guaranteed the occurrence."

Wise men have known for a long time that if you can change a person's expectations you can change his behavior. However, although we know this, we do not always make proper use of this important wisdom in our daily lives.

Perhaps it is because we have been burned by leaders who have misused—or, at the very least, misunderstood—the powerful tool of inspiration. Unfortunately, inspiration has been used more often than not to manipulate others for self-serving ends rather than for their own fulfillment. The lesson from political life is clear: Rash promises and the call to new hope among dispirited people lead to even greater depression and apathy when those promises go unfilled and those hopes are proved unjustified.

However, I think there are deeper reasons for our not being comfortable with the notion that by changing our expectations we can change our behavior. And I think the discomfort stems from knowing that this makes each of us responsible for the outcome of his life. It is always easier to blame others for some personal disappointment or problem rather than see how our own negative attitude guaranteed the occurrence.

At work, we see this harmful principle operating daily. For example, a subordinate has an idea with real merit, but he is sure the boss won't like it, so he never presents it. Or even if he does, his presentation is so lacking in verve that the boss is hard-pressed to take his attention away from his other duties to give the idea the consideration it deserves.

What purpose is served for the subordinate who has set up his failure with such low expectations and a consequent unenergetic performance? Is it that he can now comfort himself by blaming his "closed-minded" boss for prohibiting what surely would have led to a stellar outcome? I think so.

To one extent or another, I believe we all trip ourselves up this way. Without being aware of it, we use low expectations to get ourselves off the hook. By assuming a lack of cooperation on the part of others, we guarantee their uncooperativeness and our nonparticipation in an activity in which we would be expected to make a contribution. In this round robin, we excuse ourselves from an activity where we question our ability to perform and save face by blaming someone else for thwarting our ambitions. What we hide from ourselves, of course, is our ambition to be the star and our fear that we will never make it.

"What purpose is served for the subordinate who has set up his failure with such low expectations and a consequent unenergetic performance? Is it that he can now comfort himself by blaming his 'closed-minded' boss for prohibiting what surely would have led to a stellar outcome? I think so."

How does one break this self-limiting cycle? How does one meet a challenge on positive ground? How does one adopt a positive view of what he is, what the circumstances are and what he can accomplish? In short, how does one raise his expectations?

By not being afraid of making a mistake. Courage to risk failure is what leads to success. Self-confidence comes by taking risks where the outcome is no more than the fruition of what you truly believe can be accomplished. And remember, even when you make a mistake, that doesn't mean you are one!

LARRY MAHAN
A card-carrying cowboy

QUOTE: From Larry Mahan, six-time All Around Cowboy in rodeos and star of the rodeo documentary, "The New American Cowboy": "I've ridden over 6,000 animals in my career. I figured out that last year I was bucked off saddle broncs two times and, out of 130 to 150 bulls I rode, I was bucked off 30 percent of the time. I don't know how many times I've been stepped on, crushed or kicked. The cowboy is just as tough as he used to be, but he's had to organize to better himself. We've established card-carrying members of the Rodeo Cowboys Association because we get ripped off just like any other participants in spectator sports. The grounds owner can make $100,000 off us, so we're just trying to get a percentage of the gate. Top cowboys can win $60,000 a year while others only win $600 a month—we don't get a cent for just being there. If you don't place within the top four of a category, you don't make any money." UNQUOTE.

Steven Stills

Steven Stills of the recently reunited rock group Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young: "I like playing music with these guys. It's a social event. I never wanted to be only the main guy. It's fun, subjective, or whatever, because we're old friends. We're playing new music, and it's fun to enjoy each other. We realized why we fell apart—our size of popularity—and this time we tried to be sensible, plan for it, grow up a little. I mean it's staggering when you face 60,000 people—you grow out of your skin. You'd have to be a cold man not to be affected by that much energy. It's also expensive on the person to travel on the road; you're tired; it eats on your energy level. I want to go home. I miss my son. He was born in the spring and I want to see him."

JENNIE AND CRAIG
A cry of joy

Mother Jennie Thomson is delighted with her very ordinary baby boy, Craig, because she was such an extraordinary baby. When born 20 years ago, Jennie had a serious heart condition that forced her to live as an invalid in a hospital for the first six years of her life. Finally doctors were able to perform a revolutionary operation in which they inserted plastic plates in her heart. Since then she has been able to lead a normal, full life. Marriage, however, brought with it the fear that any children she might have might inherit the same heart affliction. Fortunately that was not the case. Every time Craig gives a hearty, healthy cry, Jennie breaks into a wide smile.

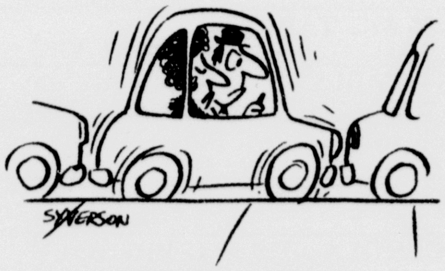
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour



CURBING MY TEMPER

My wife insists that I re-park
To get two car lengths nearer.
I do so, though I grump a bit
And check my rearview mirror.

In front and back, where first I parked,
The space was really spacious,
But now, as I work wheel and brake,
I must be skilled, sagacious.

Yet when it's done I'm rather proud
And of my deed I'm talking.
My wife? She's spared her shoes and feet
A full two car lengths walking.

A long-haired youth was getting his first haircut in a year and was alarmed to see the barber wave a large magnet over his head. "Don't worry," assured the barber, "it's not a new treatment. I'm just trying to find my scissors."

A lady complained to a pet-store owner, "You told me this cat wasn't finicky, but I can't get him to eat." The owner said, "I meant about what he drags in." —Robert Brault
